Demands Small Acreage for Industry

There is a demand for one acre jobs in Georgetown's industrial subdivision, Cr. Jim Young told council Monday. He mentioned one firm which wishes to build a couple of 3000 square foot factories, and said he knows a few other which are interested in a smaller type of industrial building which would locate on an acre of land. At his suggestion, the industrial commission was asked to study this and devise a plan which would make such lots available in one part of the town's newly acquired acreage in Delree.
