

Tuberculin Testing Dates Set for Georgetown Clinics

Tuberculin testing of the general public in the Georgetown area will start Monday, Feb. 22 when a skin test clinic is opened in St. Paul's Hall, Norval.

On succeeding days the clinics will be set up in the Glen Williams Community Hall, Knox Presbyterian Church Hall, St. George's Anglican Church Hall, and St. Paul's Baptist Sunday School room all in Georgetown.

During the coming weeks, canvassers will be calling at all homes in town. They will be leaving vital information at your home as well as survey history cards for you to complete. These cards are to be filled in as directed by the canvasser and on the day that the clinic is held in your vicinity, take the card to your clinic and hand it in to the clerk at the door. You will then be directed to the Dept. of Health nurse, who will administer this simple skin test. You will be asked to return to the clinic a few days later.

The general chairman of the survey, Rev. M. Estabrook, emphasized the importance of the return visit so the nurse can examine your arm to see if a reaction has developed. If you find that you have reacted, you will be one of the 20 per cent of Ontario residents in the same situation. It means that you have been in contact with an active case of tuberculosis at some time in your life. There is very little chance of your having active tuberculosis, but for your own protection you will be asked to have an x-ray. The x-ray will show active tuberculosis, as well as any other abnormalities that may exist in your chest area.

Rev. Estabrook added that the importance of having this test is not to be overlooked. It is only through our concerted efforts that we can be confident of destroying tuberculosis. Only by finding all existing cases in the County can we be sure that the disease will be eliminated.

LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

BY BILL COATS

The Acton Bridge Club is sponsoring a series of novice duplicate bridge games. These games are open only to bridge players who have never played duplicate bridge before.

In watching these players in action, I noticed one particular area of weakness. This was in their overcalls. An overcall is a bid made after the opponents have opened the bidding. An overcall should be made for one of three reasons:

- (1) To indicate to partner a suit which can be led into.
- (2) To compete for a part score.
- (3) To raise the bidding level so as to make it difficult for the opponents to exchange information.

Overcalls are made on relatively long suits which have playing strength in the suit. Overcalls are never made on the point count of the hand. When you overcall, you are indicating the suit in which you desire to play the hand. Partner should seldom bid another suit. Above all, partner should not panic if you are doubled.

Last week in a rubber bridge match, East broke this last rule with disastrous results.

Dealer — West.
East — West vulnerable.

North — 10 8
South — 10 8 5 2

West — A K 5
D — A J 10 8 7 6
C — Q 6

East — S — 8 3 2
H — K 2
D — K Q 9
C — J 10 8 5 2

South — S — Q J 9 7 4
H — J 9 6
D — 4 2
C — 9 4 3

The bidding:
West North East South
1 H 2 D Dble. 2 S
Dble. All Pass

North's overcall of two diamonds was quite reasonable. It indicates a lead to his partner and it raised the bidding one level. It is unlikely that two diamonds would be defeated more than three tricks.

This is not good but, down 500 when the opponents can make three no trump vulnerable, is acceptable.

Unfortunately, South decided that spades offered a better solution. The defense took the maximum number of tricks, two hearts and a heart ruff, two spades, three clubs and one diamond. Down four for a loss of 700 points.

Now it may seem that down one more at spades than at diamonds is no great crime. But you cannot afford to throw away 300 points on very many hands at bridge and still come out a winner.

Besides, next time North may be reluctant to overcall for fear that south will again rescue to a poorer suit.

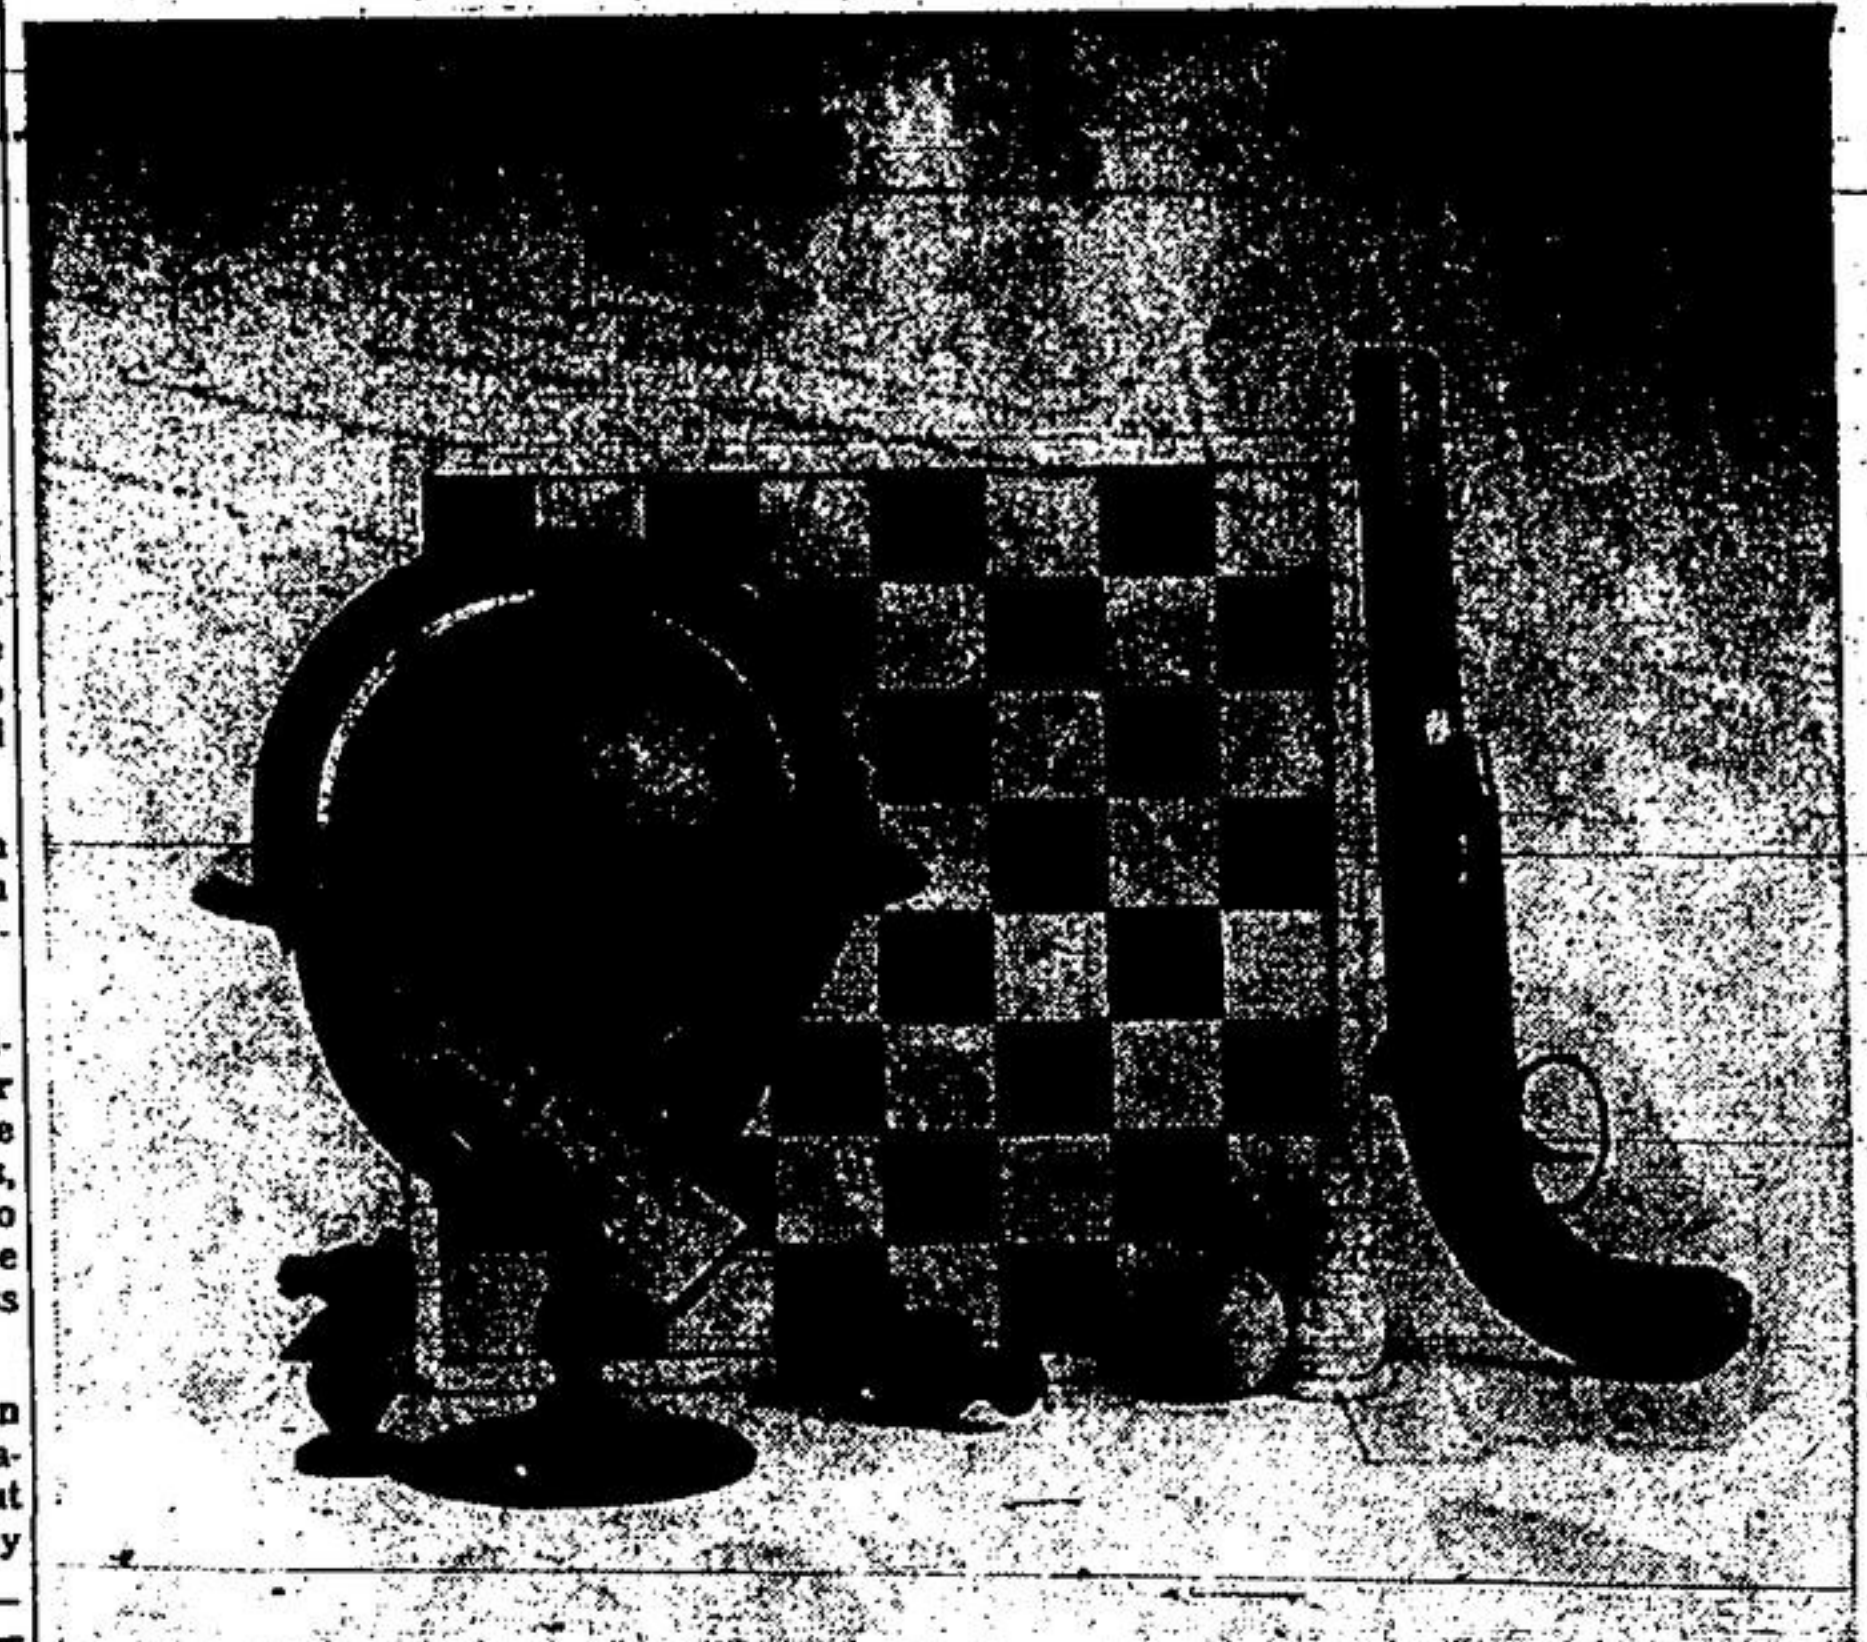

Monday night bridge winners were: Lou Bertasson and Harry Frost; Miss Olive Logan and Mrs. Kay Coats; Mrs. Mary Manning and Mrs. Gloria Coats.

Hints Own Recommendations Broader Than Federal Report

Halt County Senior Magistrate Kenneth M. Langdon of Georgetown declined comment Friday on the recommendations made in a report advising complete revision of Canadian laws on juvenile delinquency and institutions dealing with juvenile offenders.

The report was made by a committee of five federal officials set up by the minister of justice in Ottawa in which more than 100 specific changes in the juvenile delinquency laws were recommended to modernize methods of dealing with children and teenagers who get into trouble with the law.

Magistrate Langdon is a member of the executive of the Juvenile and Family Court Judges Association of Ontario, and in that capacity has studied the problem, and made his recommendations to the Ontario group.

"My own recommendations are even broader than those made by the Ottawa committee," he said, indicating that these recommendations would be made public in due course, after consideration by the executive committee of which he is a member. Beyond that, Magistrate Langdon felt further comment would be inopportune.

Delrex Street Is Named for Councillor Husband

Mrs. Amelia Lundy Hunter Lyons, 51 Edith St., died at the Toronto Hospital, Weston, on February 9th, after a long and lingering illness.

Her husband, Thomas L. Lyons, who died six years ago, was a veteran Georgetown councillor. When streets in the Delrex subdivision were named for members of the 1954 council, the family name was used for Lyons Court.

Born in Norval, Mrs. Lyons was the eldest daughter of Francis and Sarah Hunter. While attending Georgetown high school she lived during the week with her maternal grandparents at 51 Edith St., the home in which she spent the last 32 years of her life.

After their marriage in 1901, they lived at Knoxgown Farm near Cheltenham, and moved to Georgetown when they retired from farming.

She leaves a family of nine children; Hugo of Cheltenham; Mrs. Ross Campbell, (Ellinor) of Toronto; Mrs. Colin McIntosh (Elizabeth) of Wellesley; Frank of Cheltenham; Mrs. Mary McKinney, Georgetown; Mrs. H. Barrett (Lucile) of Brampton; Mrs. A. Alexander (Charlotte) of Toronto; Mrs. Jack Lawson (Kathleen) of Acton and James of Georgetown. She also leaves two brothers, Joe Hunter, Norval and Jack Hunter, Georgetown and a sister, Mrs. Nelson Carter, Brampton.

Rev. Ian Fleming of St. John's United Church officiated at a private funeral service on Friday afternoon at the Harold C. McClure Funeral Home and interment followed in Greenwood Cemetery. Pallbearers were John McCulloch, Ross Campbell, Colin McIntosh, Harry Barrett, A. Alexander and Jack Lawson. Grandsons Peter Lyons, Hunter Lyons, Donald Barrett and Bob Lyons were flower bearers.

Foliar Fertilizers Claims Exaggerated, Impractical

Costly foliar fertilizers... those which are applied to the leaves of plants — have been given exaggerated claims, Henry Stanley, county agricultural representative stated yesterday.

He said the fertilizers are being sold in Halton despite tests which discount them and show them to be 'impractical.'

"Trials have definitely shown that it is not practical to supply nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium to general grain crops through the leaves," Mr. Stanley claimed.

He said the tests have been conducted for several years across Ontario under the supervision of county soil and crop improvement associations directed by agricultural schools.

"No increase in yields of oats, barley, corn or potatoes resulted from one or several foliar spray applications," the agricultural representative stated.

He noted, though, that substantial yield increases of these crops resulted where regular fertilizer was applied according to soil test.

"Salesmen convince farmers that foliar fertilizers will work miracles with pages of results taken by their company," Mr. Stanley said, accounting for the continued sales.

He said the farmer must decide whether to accept or discard "years of carefully conducted and statistically arranged trials by soil and crop improvement associations and college personnel."

He noted that foliar fertilizers are also being sold to be applied as liquid to the seed at planting time.

"This may in most cases get the new plant off to a quicker start," he said, "but has not been found to be superior to similar amounts of the correct type of dry fertilizers applied to the seed."

Gets Prison Term For Series of Garage Break-ins

One of the four men charged with conspiring to commit twelve break-ins at garages in Georgetown, Norval, Acton and Milton, was sentenced in court last week to five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Police said $250 was taken from the garages.

The 27 year old Brampton trucker pleaded guilty in magistrate's court along with his three cohorts.

Another member of the foursome was sentenced to two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory. Magistrate Kenneth M. Langdon of Georgetown recommended the remaining two in custody to Feb. 28 for sentence.

Police testified they searched two cars on Jan. 6 and found a flashlight, electric razor, and a bag of coins taken from four of the twelve service stations that had been broken into earlier that morning.

The money found by police was approximately the same amount taken from the service stations.

Commit Georgetown Woman To Alcoholic Institute

A young Georgetown woman was committed to an institution for the reclamation of alcoholics for 90 days after being convicted of being drunk in a public place in Georgetown on Feb. 9. She pleaded guilty.

"She was staggering on Main St. N." a Georgetown police constable told the court, and she was in her bare feet. Her feet were bleeding."

The woman's apartment was littered with empty beer and wine bottles and police said they had received earlier calls to the apartment to quell disturbances.

The children's Aid Society has the care of her two small children.

The 300-page Expo guidebook will cost $1.
