Backward Season Delays Seeding On Halton Farms

For the second consecutive year, a cool backward season has delayed seeding and growth throughout Halton.

To date, over one-half the oats and barley acreage has been sown. However, it has been very slow in getting done because of the cold weather. Adequate amounts of fertilizer should prove very beneficial this year to encourage rapid growth when the warm weather arrives. Farmers who are planting Herta barley early have been encouraged to apply up to thirty pounds per acre of additional nitrogen. This practice has resulted in increased yields.

Serious heaving took place this spring in newly seeded alfalfa on our heavy clay land. There has been up to 100 per cent loss of alfalfa on some farms owing to the freezing and thawing of the soil this spring. This is of great concern to the farmer as he must find an alternate source of hay. He can work up the field and reseed to a hay mixture without using a nurse crop of oats, or he can seed to oats and use this crop for hay. If there is a good catch of grasses remaining in the field, the farmer could apply up to 300 lb. of Ammonium Nitrate per acre as soon as possible this spring. This would provide some hay for this year.

Corn is being seeded despite the cold weather. Many farmers still have a small percentage of their 1965 grain corn remaining to be harvested. Some have disced or plowed it into the ground because of the excessive lodging and poor quality of the crop after coming through our winter season. Early planting of corn is a necessity for top yields. However, with a cold spring, the corn should be protected from insects with insecticides such as diazinon and lindane. Fertilizer must also be used according to soil test.

Halton County farmers who suffered 25% or greater loss of yields in corn, grains and hay in 1965, can apply for the Province of Ontario Interest Free Guaranteed Loan of up to $1,000. This loan is for the purchase of seed, plants and fertilizer for the 1966 crop. Application forms are available at banks or at the Agricultural Office.

Aberdeenshire Lass Will Visit Halton County Farmers

Miss Elsie Gall, of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, will be visiting in the County for two days during June. She is one of the nine young farmer delegates from the United Kingdom participating in an annual exchange visit conducted by the Junior Farmer Association of Ontario and the Young Farmers' Clubs of the U.K.

While they are here the Young Farmers will live with host farm families in all areas of the province. Their counterparts in the exchange leave Toronto International Airport on May 13th, for a ten-week visit to Britain where they will also be guests of farm families.

School Attendance Slipped in April

Georgetown's public school enrolment totalled 2,247 at the end of April, principals' reports to a public school board meeting last Wednesday revealed.

Harrison public school leads in enrolment with 681 pupils. There are 547 at George Kennedy Public School, 461 at Howard Wrigglesworth Public School, 336 at Chapel Street Public School and 270 at Park Public School.

The principals' reports also showed the unseasonal weather was influencing attendance figures. Percentage of attendance throughout the system hovered around 93 per cent during April.

AMBULANCE RUNS

Georgetown Volunteer Ambulance Service was required three times last week. A routine transportation run from Georgetown to Toronto Western Hospital was taken by Reg Broomhead, and John White at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Two runs Friday sent ambulancemen Alan Prouse and Bob Matthews on a run from Stewarttown to Georgetown hospital at 5:20 a.m., and Bob Bradley and Chris Walker on a run from Georgetown to Georgetown hospital at 5:40 p.m.

HARLEY TO HALTON

WEEKLY OBSERVATIONS BY DR. HARRY HARLEY, M.P. FOR HALTON

ANOTHER WEEK has passed in the life of the 27th Parliament of Canada. This has been most newsworthy in the two days of debate, during the calling of a Government supply motion. This is a routine motion, necessary for Government estimates, but is also an opportunity for the Opposition to put before the House of Commons a motion of non-confidence, on any topic of their choice. This occasion saw a criticism of the Prime Minister in particular. It referred to his request to the RCMP to have a report of any files they had dealing with security and Members of Parliament. Early in the debate (the Prime Minister had the flu and could not personally answer the charges on the first day) found the Opposition blasting the Prime Minister for spying on the private and personal lives of Members of Parliament and so doing turning Canada into a police state. Most of the Opposition Parties appeared to be united to unite to defeat the Government.

THE NEXT DAY, (the last day of debate on this motion) the Prime Minister returned and rose as soon as the House of Commons turned to its normal business, to answer the charges. He reminded Members that at the time in question there were charges that crime extended into even the Prime Minister's office and other high places. He felt it his duty to see if this was indeed true. He therefore, asked the RCMP if there was anything recorded on their files concerning security and Members of Parliament. He did not ask for a check of Members of Parliament nor for any knowledge of their personal lives but only for details of charges from the RCMP where the security of Canada was in question. He pointed out that he had private and personal files of only received the Munsinger Members of Parliament add by file, that there was no other so doing turning Canada into a police state. Most of the Opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker, to be about this at the time (December, 1964) and offered to table the letters regarding this but Mr. Diefenbaker refused. At no time did he keep the file or reveal its contents to anyone else.

I THINK THE Hansard record is clear and speaks for itself. The Prime Minister asked himself and answered four questions...

First, we should ask ourselves, and have, indeed, asked ourselves: Has the RCMP ever been ordered by the Prime Minister or anyone on behalf of the Prime Minister to enquire into the private lives and activities of any Member of Parliament? The answer is, no.

Second, did the Prime Minister keep in his possession or in the files of his own office any report by the RCMP or anyone else on the Munsinger case? The answer is, no.

Third, did the Prime Minister have any knowledge of any kind that the name Munsinger was to be mentioned in any debate in the House?

Again the answer is, no.

Fourth, did the Government, as the amendment before this House alleges, have the RCMP provide information to the Government as to the past conduct of all Members of Parliament. The answer, Mr. Speaker, is no.

On the vote that followed, the Prime Minister won a vote of confidence, and the House returned to normal business.
