Some Smoke Damage In Two District Fires

An electric blanket and faulty kitchen range switch were blamed for fires at RR 1 Glen Williams and 17 Prince Charles Dr. one recent week.

Miss Thelma Tizzard, summoned firefighters to her 9th Line farm home, late Wednesday night after she discovered her upstairs bedroms filled with dense smoke when she went to retire for the night.

Flames licking the ceiling from the bed were partially doused by Miss Timard and her father, farm tenant Roy Timard, by throwing pots of water. They kept up the procedure until Georgetown firefighters arrived.

Firemen in Scott air packs entered the room, killed the rest of the flames and carried the amouldering mattress and box spring out of the house.

Fire damage was limited to the bed, but smoke damage spread to some of the other upstairs bedrooms.---

Mrs. Geoff Palk, 17 Prince Charles Dr. remained asleep in a room down the hall while firemen put out a fire in her kitchen after a neighbour reported smoke emitting from the house early Monday afternoon.

A pot of potatoes, left on the kitchen range on an element set at 'low' burned and filled the the kitchen with acrid smoke when the element overheated.

Firemen had to break in a door to get at the source of the smoke, but Mrs. Palk heard nothing until she was awaken by firemen going through the house opening windows.
