Dairy Converts To New Plastic Milk Containers

Steen's Dairy has announced in an advertisement elsewhere in The Herald this week the conversion from the conventional wax-coated milk carton to a new bright plastic Pure-Pak carton.

According to Steen's Dairy owner Fred Steen the plastic carton is the dairy industry's finest container for fluid milk.

"The new carton is smooth to the touch, easier to handle and eliminates the leaking and flaking problems sometimes found in other types of cartons," he said.

The new gable top carton with a sealed in sanitary pouring spout will be available from both route salesmen and stores handling Steen Dairy Products.

Mr. Steen said the move to the new plastic cartons was made in keeping with the dairy's policy of bringing the latest technological improvements to its customers as soon as they are introduced.

The Pure-Pak method of packaging milk now accounts for about thirty-eight million units a day making it the world's most widely used food package.
