

EXCLUSIVE 90-YEAR CLUB GROWS BY ONE

Denies Injunction Laws Confine Civil Liberties

George Kerr, MPP for Halton, denied last Wednesday that the injunction laws were aimed at destroying civil liberties.

He was speaking at a rally to protest the injunction law, organized by the District Labour Council.

Mr. Kerr was taking part in a question-and-answer session followed the main speeches of the evening.

Good Laws

He declared: "For the most part legislation dealing with labor relations are good laws and are fairly up to date. I don't think they deserve to be the subject of too much criticism generally."

He believed that many of the labor laws on the statutes actually protected civil liberties.

He pledged: "I would have no part of a government that passed laws preventing the proper exercise of a man's rights."

Good Faith

He believed that militancy today was the result of things that have happened in the past years. He said there were employers who avoid bargaining in good faith and all the halos did not belong to management.

Mr. Kerr said that the law must be used where irresponsible flout the wishes of the union leadership in illegal striking.

Dr. Harry Harley, M.P. for Halton, was asked if he agreed with "the archaic federal-provincial way of legislating men back to work."

Dr. Harley said where it affected the nation — as the rail strike did — he believed the action was justified although he did not agree with a Saskatchewan law which gave carte blanche to the government to order workers back.

Break Strike

On a related question — Mr. Kerr was asked if he thought other workers should be allowed to be employed to break a strike.

Mr. Kerr said he did not believe outside workers should be allowed to come in if the strike was a legal one.

And summing up his views Mr. Kerr gave as a long term solution to labour-management relations the possibility of more economic participation by labour in industry.

By buying shares the worker would become aware of economic conditions and take an interest in productivity.

He hoped for this day when such remedies as the injunction would be used sparingly or eliminated altogether. He said it should be harder and harder for an applicant for an injunction to prove an emergency.

Summing up Pat Clancy, first vice president of the District Council, said the meeting had given food for thought and he hoped those attending would go away and draw their own conclusions.

Set Next Blood Clinic Date for October 17

At the branch meeting of the Georgetown and District Red Cross held at Cedarvale Centennial Centre on Tuesday, September 8th, the following items were discussed.

Blood Donor Clinics

The third and last clinic of the year will be held at Knox Church Hall on Monday, October 17th. To prevent waiting periods in the evening, persons who can donate in the afternoon, are advised to do so.

Home Nursing Education

There might be a possibility of a "TEEN" Home Nursing Course in the fall. The yearly Home Nursing Course has been scheduled for January, 1967. Further details will follow in this paper.

Loan Cupboard

The Red Cross Loan Cupboard (sickroom supplies, wheelchairs, etc.) is now situated at the Cedarvale Centennial Centre. This service of which Mrs. Eric Balkind, 877-8553, and Mrs. V. M. Sinclair, 877-2948, are in charge, is given "FREE" to the public.

Senior Citizens

A Telephone Chain is to be started by the Local Red Cross between elderly shut-ins, who are living alone. Each chain-member makes one telephone call and receives one call every day. In a pre-arranged order: If one chain-member cannot reach the number he is to call, a visit is made to find out the reason of the unanswered phone call. Chairmen John Elliott, 877-4115, and Doug Tucker, 877-9906, are trying to locate such individuals. If anyone knows of someone who needs this service, please get in touch with the chairmen. Representatives from the Branch will attend the Senior Citizens Workshop in Toronto on October 6th.

Disaster

A burned out family of seven was supplied with clothing.

Individual Emergency Aid

Information was sought for two families regarding missing relatives. Six families were assisted in various ways.

Sunday Dinner Party for Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Evans, 5 Valleyview Road, entertained sixty friends and relatives to dinner at the Estaminet in Burlington, Sunday afternoon, September 11, on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary.

Campbellville, Moffat, Acton, Milton, Guelph, Newmarket, Toronto and Georgetown.

Ontario has the largest number of Canadians of Indian origin, about one quarter of the national total.

Graham Farnell, 19 Durham Street, was master of ceremonies for the after-dinner festivities. Mr. and Mrs. Evans' daughter Barbara sang "Because", and was joined by David Farnell to sing two duets: "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "Desert Song." Mrs. Evans' brother, Andy Frank, Milton, was their accompanist.

After dinner the guests returned to Mr. and Mrs. Evans' home in Georgetown, for the remainder of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans have two daughters, Mary, who is entering her third year in Honours History at McMaster University, Hamilton, and Barbara, a nurse in her second year of training at Guelph General Hospital. Mr. Evans is Business Administrator of the Georgetown Public School Board, and Mrs. Evans is a member of the teaching staff of Chapel St. School.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smale, Burlington, sister and brother-in-law of Mr. Evans, were the wedding attendants of twenty-five guests. They were honoured guests at the anniversary dinner. Other relatives and friends were present from Sudbury, Stratford, Burlington.

Four New Members Join Kinetite Club

The Kinetite Club of Georgetown held its first meeting of the 1966-67 term with the Kinmen at Hornby Towers Golf Course on Sept. 12th. Special guest of the evening was Kinmen Deputy Governor Harry Levy of Georgetown who installed the following Kinetite officers:

President, Marilyn Sunnucks; Vice President, Rosine Levy; Secretary, Jean Murphy; Treasurer, Donna Moorgs; Registrar, Joan Ditchfield; Directors, Gail Collett and Jackie Kent; Past President, Mona Milne; Bulletin Editor, Trudy Lavoie.

Four new members were welcomed into the club by President Marilyn Sunnucks. The new members being — Willena Redden, Jane Sunnucks, Anne Roberts and Marg Stapleton. A silver spoon was presented to Jackie Kent for her new son, Geoffrey George.

This month will be a busy one for the Kinetites as they prepare for their bake sale at Georgetown Fall Fair on October 1st. Chairman for this project is Rosine Levy with Joan Ditchfield as co-chairman. The Helping Hands Club of Georgetown donated a home-made quilt which the Kinetites will raffle. The draw will be held during the Fair with proceeds going to the Kinmen Senior Citizen's Apartments.

Once again the Kinetites will be collecting toys for Christ Welfare and will be happy to receive these toys at their Fall Fair Booth from those who wish to drop them off.

Small Fields Handicap Now Government Assists

Farmers in Halton County handicapped by small fields, unsuitable for the use of modern farm machinery, may now receive assistance under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act.

Under the joint Federal-Provincial Agreement, farm operators will be able to receive financial assistance for the removal of fences to enable economic use of large fields which lend themselves to mechanical equipment.

Many farms were laid out in small fields separated by stone and brush fences and which are now impractical under modern farming procedures.

Under the plan the Federal-Provincial ARDA pay 40 per cent of the cost to the farmer of hiring heavy equipment and operators, for the removal of stone, stump and brush fence rows up to a maximum grant of $500 per farm.

Farmers wishing to participate in the proposal can obtain an application form from the Agricultural Office, Milton. The ARDA grant will be paid on presentation of a certificate that the work has been carried out.

33 Prizes Won by Halton 4-H Club Members

Larry Gardhouse and Verna Thompson, representing the Halton 4-H Beef Club, competed in the 4-H Inter-County demonstration at the CNE on Sept. 2. They demonstrated and discussed the Beef Feedlot of the future. Their feedlot for a 200 acre farm with all the feed grown on the farm, consists of three silos and a pole barn. Corn silage, haylage, and high moisture corn were their feeds used to fatten the steers.

The competition was won by the York County Club, with 40 prizes placed in the
