

Management, Labour Must Combat Inflation Together

Both management and labor must take their share of responsibility for helping to combat inflation in Canada, Dr. Harry Harley MP for Halton, said today.

In an interview Dr. Harley said that the Steel Company of Canada had demonstrated that most of responsibility for its mill-back of a projected increase in the price of steel.

"Labor, too will have to take their share of responsibility by not demanding exorbitant wage increases," Dr. Harley said.

"There has to be close co-operation on this matter between labor, management and government."

AUTO PRICES

Referring to the increase in auto prices, Dr. Harley said it was a misconception to think that industry minister C. M. Drury had ever promised or guaranteed that Canadian auto prices would be lowered. What he did say, the Halton MP said, was that the prices of Canadian and U.S. built cars would gradually reach parity.

"This has already been done to some extent this year although the addition of new safety features has tended to confuse the issue. I would like to see the gap between the prices in the two countries narrowed much more quickly than has been done so far," Dr. Harley said.

He questioned whether the current boycott of supermarkets by housewives will be very effective. After all he pointed out people do have to eat and the prices charged at the small corner store were often as high or higher than those in the supermarkets. But he feels that the publicity of the boycott has had a good effect and any public pressure that will help bring down the prices is good.

Surprise Party For Couple's Anniversary

A surprise party was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith at their home on the town line on Saturday evening October 22 on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. George Smith Jr. of Georgetown and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Norval, planned the evening for their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith had enjoyed a Chinese supper in Streetsville with neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Stan Eyre and on arriving home found about 30 neighbors and friends had gathered to surprise them. The evening was spent in games and a lovely lunch complete with a wedding cake, received a coffee table, two end tables, lamps and other gifts along with the good wishes of their many friends.

HIGH PRICES

But the rise of prices is undoubtedly the fault of the consumers themselves because they seem to want fancy packaging and gimmicks. "Someone has to pay for those free tea towels in the detergent," Dr. Harley said. "Loblaws has claimed before the consumer prices committee that trading stamps don't add to their costs. But this is splitting hairs. Instead of spending money on stamps and premiums, the stores could use that money to reduce the prices of their goods. You don't get something for nothing."

The Halton MP said he has not had any great mail or reaction from his constituency on the high cost of food but there are indications that the hearings of the joint Senate-Commons committee on consumer prices are being followed very closely by housewives across the country.

Bigamy Charge, Place Woman on Probation

The mother of seven who last week pleaded guilty to a bigamy charge has been placed on probation for two years by Magistrate James Black. She was told that people who do not observe the laws of marriage could lead to the ruination of individual and family life in Canada.

The 42 year old woman admitted last week that she went through an illegal form of marriage with a 57 year old Streetsville man in Georgetown two years ago. The man, who pleaded not guilty and claimed he didn't know the woman's husband was alive was jailed for six months last week.

Western Minister Comments On Election in Edmonton

Mayerthorpe, Alta.
October 20, 1966

Dear Mr. Editor:

Wednesday, October 19, was civil election day in Alberta. In Medicine Hat contest happy Mayor Harry Viner was defeated after fourteen years in office. In Calgary human error fouled up the city hall computer so that most of the night city hall was getting its election results from local radio stations.

But the big story was in Edmonton, perhaps the election story of the year. Most of Alberta held an opinion on the election pitting incumbent Vince Dantzer against former mayor William Hawrelak.

Most of Canada knows the story of Mr. Hawrelak's great service to Edmonton but also of the two times in the last decade that he has been convicted of misuse of public office. The third candidate, Alex Letta, never had a chance. The race was really Vince the Giant Killer against Bill the Old Giant all the way.

The campaign was clean and hard-fought. Morality was hardly ever mentioned and yet it turned out to be the key issue. Prior to the 1964 election the clergy of Edmonton mounted a massive protest on the morality issue. But this time around the clergy were silent as clergy but vocal as concerned citizens. This worked.

Barely six months after his election in 1964 Hawrelak was disqualified from office because of a land deal with city by a company in which he owned more than twenty-five per cent of the stock. During the campaign he called his disqualification a technicality. The electorate judged otherwise.

Mayor Dantzer is a vigorous young father of nine children who has captured the imagination of this vigorous young city. He's been able to work well with the aldermen and in the 18 months since his assumption of the mayor's chair following his disqualification has a number of progressive proposals of city development.

opinion of the majority of Albertans. Edmonton is no longer entitled to the reputation of being the most cynical city in Canada.

As a matter of fact it's a pretty exciting city. Canada's fastest growing and surely one of its more prosperous. When you visit Expo '67 watch for the Edmonton exhibit. The $200,000 being spent on that has been one of the campaign's hottest issues. Edmontonians approved it and of course, hope you'll like it.
