

OLD ENGLISH PANTOMIME A CHRISTMASTIME DELIGHT

ROBIN HOOD PROBABLY NEVER LOOKED so good as Irene Wheeler who plays the Sherwood outlaw in Globe Production's "Babes in the Woods" but that's the way they do it in merry old England. The show, which opened Sunday afternoon, the first of three dates, is an old English pantomime and over 'ome tradition says the part of the lead boy is played by a girl. Below are 'robbers' David Fane and Bryan Wareing (genuine males) who have some fun with the audience as well as their fellow players during the action-packed three hours. Globe Productions is a Georgetown - Brampton organization. Their current presentation will also be staged Monday, December 26th and Sunday, January 1st, in Central Peel Secondary School in Brampton.

Magistrate Critical Of Base Line Stop Sign

A stop sign on the 7th Line of Esqueping at the intersection of the Base Line at Hornby was criticized this week by Magistrate Kenneth Langdon.

Before him was an RR 2 E- in youth who pleaded guilty to not bringing his car to a complete stop at the intersection. The man said he had pulled out into the Base Line because he did not have a clear view of oncoming traffic.

"It's never made a great deal of sense to stop at this particular place at this particular intersection," commented the Magistrate.

"A sensible motorist would naturally bring his car down to a point where he could see the traffic from each direction"

He reserved judgement and said next week he would register a conviction on the plea of guilty and hand down a suspended sentence.

LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

BY BILL COATS

Suppose that you were in a club for two reasons — we play a weak no trump and had a choice of two plays in order to take 12 tricks. The first play offered a 30 per cent chance of success and the second play offered a 50 per cent chance of success. Which one would you choose?

I know that the answer would seem obvious but it could be wrong. The correct answer depends on what the plays are.

Let's take a look at this hand which occurred in a rubber bridge match. The dealer is North and North-South are vulnerable.

DRIVERS! PAY ATTENTION IT'S WINTER

Too many motorists neglect to recognize the vast difference between driving in the warmer months and driving in winter. The difference is vast, and to neglect it can be disastrous.

Good visibility is necessary to safe winter driving. The car itself must be made ready for the extra struggle against cold, ice and snow. The driver must adjust his skills and attitudes to meet winter hazards. He must know how to get his car going, keep it going safely, and stop it safely. In summer, he has different worries. He must face up to the new ones that come with zero, blizzards and ice conditions.

Something is lacking in the skill, knowledge or ability of a winter driver who:

- Tries to drive with only a port-hole-sized space cleared in the snow on his windshield or with the glass splashed so thickly with slush and mud that he has to stick his head out of the side window to see where he is going;
- Neglects to have enough anti-freeze in his car's radiator and windshield-washer tank to handle sub-zero temperatures.
- Forgets to have his defroster mechanism thoroughly checked before he suddenly needs it;
- Has not had snow tires or chains installed before the snow and ice arrive;
- Discovers that his car's muffler or tailpipe are leaking deadly carbon-monoxide gas into the car — maybe too late;
- Waits until the car is stuck in a drift or on slick ice before he realizes he should have had a shovel, sand or traction mat, and a tow rope in the car trunk;
- Thinks he can scream his way out of a drift by racing his engine and spinning the wheels;
- Forgets braking and stopping distances change drastically on ice or in snow;
- Believes seat belts, properly fastened, can be of little use in city driving.

packed and polished, particularly on side streets;

• Believes seat belts, properly fastened, can be of little use in city driving.

Watch for these uninformed menaces. Give them plenty of space when they are near for they can involve others in serious mishaps by their foolishness.

BRIDGE CLUB

Eleven tables took part in the duplicate bridge night in the Legion Auditorium, Tuesday, December 13th, with north-south winners being: Ralph Barber, Lou Bertasson; L. Lawson, J. Offenbeck; R. Prust, Lloyd Keir; Mrs. Wallace Thompson, Mrs. Anne Pritchard.

East-West: Mrs. Floria Nodwell, Mrs. W. Wilson; Mrs. Helen Atkinson and W. Wilson; Percy Leslie and Miss Elizabeth Leslie; Mrs. Helen Hyde and Mrs. Beverley Pattullo.
