

Jet Unveiled
By U.S. Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy quietly has lifted the confidential label from its A-7 Corsair II, a lightweight jet bomber which ultimately may carry a television-guided missile.

The Corsair was designed specifically to meet the needs of limited war, such as the U.S. is encountering in Vietnam.

In the next five years the navy and the air force are expected to purchase nearly 1,600 Corsairs for an estimated $1,500,000,000.

Both the Corsair and the television-controlled missile, known as Walleye, are expected to enter the combat inventory this year, albeit in very limited numbers.

The Corsair is designed for pinpoint bombing in direct support of ground troops and for bombing missions over enemy territory.

Imported Blight
Destroying Pears

LONDON (CP) — The pear, a fruit introduced into North America by English settlers three centuries ago, is under attack in England from a disease somehow imported from North America.

Government agriculture authorities have ordered the destruction of all pear trees of the Laxton's Super variety in an attempt to control the spread of fire-blight disease to other strains.

Inspections this year showed more than 11,500 trees infected by fire-blight, a bacterial disease common in North America but first detected in England 10 years ago.

Ask Protector For Indians

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India may soon have a lok pal, or people's protector, to investigate complaints about bureaucratic inefficiency and dishonest dealings by officials and politicians.

A commission examining the question of administrative reform called on the government to create the new post immediately by an amendment to the Indian constitution.

The amendment would enable the lok pal to function as a fourth arm of the state, completely independent of the government, the judiciary and the legislature.

The post so far has been conceived only for Britain, New Zealand and the Scandinavian countries and is a revolutionary idea for a state the size of India, with its 500,000,000 persons and unwieldy federal structure.

Bee Sting Venom Stops Radiation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bee sting venom may protect against lethal doses of radiation, concludes a research chemist.

William H. Shipman, research chemist at the U.S. naval radiological defense laboratory, and Leonard J. Cole, a radiological biologist at the laboratory, have been experimenting with bee venom as a radium-protective agent for eight months.

The scientists in a news release said they injected a group of mice with bee venom and subjected them 24 hours later to heavy doses of radiation. A control group of mice received no venom injections before the same radiation.

Shipman and Cole said 80 per cent of the injected mice survived while all of the others died.

Four Prices On Seesaw

OTTAWA (CP) — Eggs, pork and carrots should cost less in January but beef prices may go up, the federal agriculture department says in its monthly food forecast.

The outlook by commodities. Eggs: The present downward movement of prices is expected to continue.

Broiler chickens: With a seasonal build-up in supplies no price increase is expected and there may be some decline.

Pork: Marketings are expected to continue to rise and easing of prices will probably continue.

Beef: With decreasing supplies of beef, prices are expected to be firm or higher.

Apples: Somewhat heavier supplies are available at prices which are little changed.

Potatoes: Potatoes are plentiful and of high quality with prices considerably below last year's.

Carrots: The supply is plentiful at lower prices.
