Unearth Indian Burial Ground in North Halton

At first believed to be a rare archaeological discovery, a pile of Indian bones found near the Sixth Line of Nassagaweya on Friday has turned out to be a relatively minor find, according to Walter Kenyon, archeologist with the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto.

Carcasses of four humans turned up after an instructor from the Provincial Institute of Trades' Heavy Equipment School found two whole skulls on a knoll near the school buildings. But there were no pieces of pottery or weapons buried with the bodies, and Mr. Kenyon said after visiting the site Friday that without other artifacts besides the bones, there was "absolutely no historical significance."

The archeologist was surprised to find the bones buried in the rocky soil atop the knoll in the forest. He said it was an unusual place for Canadian Indians to bury their dead. The lack of other artifacts indicated the bones had been reburied from their original burial grounds. Another possibility was that the remains were those of Iroquois or related visiting tribes which did not live in this area, who hung their dead from trees for several months and later buried the bones in a pit.

London Alderman Symphony Conductor At Terra Cotta Inn

A new invitation will take its place along side other interesting and ornate invitations that decorate the walls at Terra Cotta Inn. Sir Ralph Perring, an alderman in the City of London, on a recent visit made a gift of an invitation to the Easter Banquet there to Mrs. Harry Farrar to be included in her collection.

The collection included a 103 year old invitation to a banquet in honour of Napoleon III which had been attended by Mrs. Farrar's great grandfather.

MERCHANTS SUSPENDED

Doug Hearn will miss the opener and Jim Cole will sit out for the first six games.

Both players were suspended at the end of this season for "unfit behavior on the ice."

Ashgrove Institute Focus On Wild Flowers at Meet

On Tuesday evening, May 16 the Women's Institute held their Wild Flowers meeting at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Vern Pickett with the new president Mrs. John Ruddle presiding. The first item on the program was the showing of beautiful coloured pictures by Mr. Robert Bateman who is head of the Art Dept. in Nelson High School in Burlington.

He showed all the spring flowers, some growing wild in Algonquin Park and others from the woods and bushes around his home, also pictures of different species of spiders and beetles. These were all very fascinating and made us realize there is lots to see if we only use our eyes. Mrs. Bruce McCure thanked Mr. Bateman for coming.

The new secretary-treasurer Mrs. Fred Nurse called the roll which was answered by "name a wild flower and where you discovered it. The minutes of the April meeting were read and approved delegates appointed to attend the district annual were Mrs. John Ruddle, Mrs. Fred Nurse, Mrs. Chas. Austin and Mrs. Jas. Carney. It was announced that Mrs. Katherine Williams from Wentworth County is the new Home Economist and will be living in Brampton.

A committee was appointed to look after the exhibits for Milton Fair also to look after display for Georgetown Fair. Mrs. C.B. Dick had the motto "Go not afield to look for magic things. Take stock of beauty there within your reach." It contained many splendid things to think about. Faraway fields are not always the greenest. Sometimes the best is right around our homes. Current events were given by Mrs. Fred Nurse, Mrs. J. M.
