

One of the finest collections of Canadian currency in existence is on display during Expo 67 at the Main Branch of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Montreal. It is part of the Bank's own collection of coins and notes which traces the development of Canadian currency since pre-Confederation days. It includes many collectors' items, and is being viewed above by two hostesses from the Expo 67 branch, Donna Kennedy (left) and Alice Archambault. Free-standing showcases allow visitors to inspect closely the colourful bills that have been issued by Canadian banks. Many of the bills with a face value of only one, five or 10 dollars, have a value to collectors of several hundred dollars. Showing of the collection coincides with the 100th anniversary of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. It features examples of currency issued by the 14 banks that have combined to form the Commerce, including The Canadian Bank of Commerce and The Imperial Bank of Canada. The display of bills (left) issued by the Eastern Townships Bank in the mid-1800s is an eye-catcher for collectors, while the currency issued by Canadian banks in the early 1900s attracts the most attention because of its colour and variety.

Advise Farmers to Check Frequently on Wet Hay

A lot of hay is going into local barns in damp condition because of recent rains and it makes for an explosive situation according to the Department of Agriculture representative for Halton, Henry J. Stanley.

"Fire from spontaneous combustion usually occurs during the first two months after storage, and it would be wise to check it at least twice a week for the next month to ensure that it is not heating," Mr. Stanley said this week.

He said an easy way to check the temperature of the hay is to make a probe from a ten-foot length of half inch electrical conduit or tubing. You can then rivet a sharpened hardwood point to the bottom end of this tube and drill six holes of three eighths inch diameter within the bottom six inches.

Said Mr. Stanley, "Lower a thermometer on a twelve foot cord to the bottom of the completed hay probe and you are ready to take temperature of the hay. A piece of sponge rubber should be used at the bottom of the tube to act as a cushion and prevent the thermometer from breaking."

Push the probe well down into the hay and leave for ten minutes. Pull out the thermometer and note the temperature and watch for the following temperature warnings.

If 150 deg. F entering the danger zone. Make temperature observations daily.

At 160 deg. F Danger! Inspect every four hours to see if temperature is rising.

At 175 deg. F, fire pockets may be anticipated. Call the fire department pumper, and wet down hay.

At 185 deg. F, remove the hay. The pumper should be available since flames will develop when air comes in contact with the hay.

210 deg F — Critical! Hay is almost sure to ignite. Workmen should not enter alone, or without ropes tied to their waists, since fire pockets may have developed and there is danger of the men falling into them.

Long planks may be placed across the top of the hay for workmen to stand on while making observations or removing the hay.

Quick Thinking Saves Farmer Fatal Injuries

Mr. Clarence Anderson who farms near Terra Cotta considers himself very lucky to be alive following an accident on his farm while mowing hay on Saturday, July 8th. The tractor on which he was riding hit a deep ground hog hole and the sudden jar threw Mr. Anderson off the tractor and in front of the mower. He stretched as flat as he possibly could and the mower passed right over top of him inflicting a bad cut on one arm and injuring one leg. He also has many bruises all over the rest of his body. He has returned home following a week in Georgetown & District Memorial Hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Norval Rangers enjoyed a trip to Expo on the weekend of July 8th. They left on the Rapido train from Brampton on Friday morning. They visited Expo Friday evening and all day Saturday. The weather was hot with little air in the buildings and all were ready to call it a day by Saturday evening. They stayed at the Gid Guide dermatary camp site and travelled by bus and subway to Expo Sunday morning. It was pouring rain so the girls did a little sight seeing in downtown Montreal before boarding the train for home in the afternoon. Ranger leader Mrs. Julian Reed was accompanied by Mrs. Jim Fraser of RR 3, Streetsville. Debbie Reynolds, Joyce Heger, Barbara Youmans, Donna Fishburn, Marie Fendley and Wendy May.

Norval and Union Presbyterian Church Sunday Schools held their annual joint picnic at Terra Cotta Conservation Area on Sunday, July 15. The picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Julian Reed. The picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Julian Reed. The picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Julian Reed.
