Seek Engineer Consultant To Study Esquering Roads

Esquering council set wheels in motion for an improved road system in the township at their meeting last week. Meeting with three representatives from the Department of Highways council set up a co-ordinating committee to work with a consulting engineer on a needs five phase program of roads.

An engineer will be engaged to assist in a detailed study of the township's road system, to estimate the revenue available to meet needs, to develop a method to direct anticipated revenues to areas of greatest need and to prepare a formal report summarizing the findings of these studies.

The work will be divided into five major phases:

1. Traffic counting.
2. Preparing an inventory of the township road system and estimating construction needs.

3. Estimating probable maintenance machinery replacement and housing costs and administrative costs, and reviewing the organization of the township road department.
4. Estimating future revenues.
5. Preparing a report on the foregoing.

Reeve George Leslie explained for the benefit of Department of Highways representatives the problem Esquering was having with roads. He blamed heavy traffic which exceeded that of neighbouring townships at a ratio of about three to one for difficulty in keeping roads in good condition.

Present maintenance methods cannot keep pace with increasing traffic and burgeoning population.

Reeve Leslie was chosen as chairman of the co-ordinating committee which includes all members of council, B. Newington and R. D. Martell of the Department of Highways and road superintendent Bud Snow.

Clerk K.C. Lindsay will act as a non-voting secretary and if he unable to attend assistant clerk Del French will act for him.

The committee's first act was to submit a proposal to a firm of consulting engineers.

Cost of the work is estimated to run from $10,000 to $13,000 or Esquering's 145 miles of road.
