Fair Parade Growing, Over Thirty Groups to Participate

STEAMER EMMERSON
 Committee Chairman

JIM COSTIGAN, BOB McMENEMY, INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE

The committee building Georgetown's Fair Day Parade has been so successful that they've had to make changes in the tail end of the parade route.

Committee chairman Steamer Emmerson told The Herald yesterday that because of the growing length of the procession it will no longer be possible to have marchers proceed around the half mile track. Instead, the parade will now enter the track at the north-east gate pass in front of the grandstand and bleachers and leave the track at the north-west gate.

The parade will break up opposite Park Public School on Hyde Park Drive.

"At last count we had over thirty groups taking part and we're still getting more offers of floats and marchers," the chairman said.

Local industry is being contacted by a two-man committee of Jim Costigan and Bob McMenemy. Three firms have already pledged floats and others have made donations to defray costs.
