Georgetown Kinsmen Club is the host club for the fall convention of district one of the Association of Kinsmen Clubs being held in the Royal York Hotel Saturday and Sunday.

The weekend actually starts this Friday evening with the Georgetown Kinsmen hosting a cocktail party for District Governor Bill Watson and his executive from Fonthill.

Some Notes on Old Georgetown

Back in the twenties, a former Herald publisher, R.D. Warren contributed a nostalgic article on the old days in Georgetown.

I think it was Crawford Bros. of Guelph who built the planing mill, just about as it still stands, although additions were made by J. B. Mackenzie.

Vote Georgetown as Best Delegation, Model U.N.

On Saturday, October 21, the panel of judges for the Model United Nations in Georgetown High School sat down to decide the best participating delegation at the Model United Nations.

Struck by Car, Child Treated For Bruises

Around the Young Street corner at the rear were the stables of Wm. McCollum and Thos. Watson. Wm. McCollum was a genial fellow and popular with travellers, who patronized his business well.

Donald McKinnon was the blacksmith who did business in the stone building, now a dwelling, I think, west of Main St. north. Mr. McKinnon was a genial Scotch citizen.

All three are in grades twelve and thirteen, so it is shown here that the years of experience gained by these students has been of great value.

It was one of three accidents on town streets within an hour and half. At 7:55 p.m. cars operated by Glen Robert Turnbull, 66 Windsor Rd., and Marks Clement Doucette, 25 Tyers Ave., collided at the corner of Guelph and Edward Streets doing $695 in property damage.

On the opposite Main Street corner there was the Bennett House, Robert Bennett, proprietor. His line of business was not easy in the time when it was much disturbed by attempts at legislation, but his later days were pleasant and peaceful.

More than a half century ago the Hamilton and Northwestern Railway was built from Hamilton to Barrie. The construction was preceded by a campaign for business which included votes by various "groups" of sections in the county.

Two other awards were also presented at the Saturday evening banquet. One was for the best of twenty visiting delegates going for the second time to Brian Hayes of Kitchener.

A car driven by David Allan Lounds, of London coasted into a parked vehicle registered to Ernest D. Pearce, 818 Main St. N., after stalling on the hill on the southern approach to the Main St. CNR bridge Saturday.

The Col. W. P. Moore, who began business just near the corner of Main and Guelph Streets, East side, moved down and built the block which later was the place of business of W. C. Anthony, now R. H. Thompson & Co. Col Moore died just a little time ago leaving a large estate.

George Gibbs was the proprietor for some years. He was very successful as an auctioneer; had a real sense of humor and was fluent of speech. The railway did good business independently for some years and then sold out to the Grand Trunk.

Irresponsible, apathetic youth? Hardly.

Damage to the car and pole totalled $550.

From Wesleyan Street (so called I suppose because the Wesleyan Church was built there) to the next side street, I do not recall that there was much

STRANGE FLOCK

Jim Doherty, formerly of Georgetown, now living in Acton has asked the help of Herald readers in identifying a huge flock of an unknown species of birds which passed over here enroute south Tuesday.

He said the flock, estimated at seven thousand, was travelling in a wavering single line stretched out for about ten miles. "They weren't crows and they were too small for ducks," said Mr. Doherty.

Anybody have the answer?

Ashgrove Friends Fete November Bride-Elect

Neighbours and friends gathered in the basement of Ashgrove United Church Saturday afternoon for a shower in honour of Miss Edna Fisher an early November bride-to-be.

Mrs. Hector Bird welcomed the ladies and after some community singing and humorous readings by Mrs. Wilbert Cleave the bride was asked to come to the platform, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, bells, a watering can and dainty parasol.

The historical research and current events meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. James Carney and daughter Thelma on October 17 with president Mrs. John Ruddle in charge.

Members displayed a keepsake and told how it came into their possession for roll call. Leaders were appointed to attend the Peel Training class in Brampton, Mrs. Wilfred Bird and Mrs. M. G. Wilson.

Mrs. Robert Alexander reported on the tea the WI had served at the Arts & Crafts show at the Riviera. Mrs. James Carney gave the district director's report. The program was in charge of Mrs. M. Guy Wilson who called on Mrs. Robert Cunningham for the motto "If it isn't recorded, it may be forgotten."

Mrs. C.B. Dick gave some interesting items about the Tweedsmuir history book Mrs. Wilbert Cleave showed. Coloured pictures taken at Expo, also some north and west of Brampton and Georgetown fair ending with the centennial fair held by the 411 girls showing them in costumes of days gone by.

Mrs. H. Bird and Mrs. Clayton Wilson sang an amusing duet "Put on your old grey bonnet" and the birthday song was sung to Mrs. Robert Alexander and Mrs. John Belloddy. Mrs. John Bird thanked the hostess and those who had contributed to an interesting evening.

to be returned to the County. The Grand Trunk refused to comply and the case went to the courts. Outstanding lawyers like Christopher Robinson, K.C. and Hon. Edward Blake argued the case at Osgoode Hall; the county won and the $65,000.00 was returned. The money was invested and the interest through the years being used in the support of the Public Schools of certain sections of the county.
