

Appoint Stewart Saxe Editor Waterloo University 'Chevron'

When Stewart Saxe edited High Tides, a G.D.H.S. paper within a paper which used to be a popular feature of The Herald, he gained a foothold in newspaper work which has led to an important post at the University of Waterloo.

He has been appointed editor of the Chevron, a weekly newspaper at the University of Waterloo, which publishes an average of twenty pages weekly except during August and exam time.

The appointment was ratified at the last meeting of the Students' Council, and had previously received unanimous endorsement of the Board of Publications.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Saxe, Main Street south, and a third year political science student, he will take a year off to accept the full-time post.

Mr. Saxe was with the student paper until October, 1964, during which even the small week-end paper resumed as associate editor in order to devote more time to studies and to student council work. Since then he has been chairman of the $25,000 orientation program, a member of the Council, executive and chairman of the student board of external relations, which is in charge of all official off-campus, directed student activities.

Stewart is also well known in Canadian student affairs on the national level. For two years he has served as Internal Vice-President of the Student United Nations Association in Canada, and has acted as advisor to the Canadian Union of Students on international affairs. He represented the SUNA at a conference in Israel two years ago.

In his application to the board, he emphasized his desire to try out new ideas.

He finished up with the feeling among Canadian student editors that to be successful it is to mirror the practices of the professional press, he said. "The big end paper until October, 1964, during which even the small week-end paper resumed as associate editor in order to devote more time to studies and to student council work. "Imagine what can happen to a child's way of thought if he is brought up to believe in the leadership of right. Next, you know that the greatest part of learning is experiential. Take a look at the way we are taught in our schools, colleges and high schools."

"This is basically the reason why our society is becoming more apathetic every day. We are taught in our schools, colleges and high schools to do without imagination."

"The university press is becoming a media for a more closed mind, for a more new alternative. The dynamics of change are all sold out to the corporate elite that is actually in control of our society, a control that is most frightening when one views what is happening in our educational institutions. In our high schools, our public schools, even in our universities it is only a matter of time before we are being taught to do without imagination."

Kin Cooperate, Shift Plans to Suit Midget Playoff

Georgetown Kinmen have come to the rescue of Georgetown Midget hockey club to give them time for a Friday night OHLA playoff.

Kinmen, sponsors of the International Bantam Hockey Tournament which officially opens Friday night in Georgetown Memorial Arena, have okayed a Midget club request to play the third game of their playoff series with Trenton here Friday night.

The series schedule was left on a tightrope when Tuesday's snow storm forced cancellation of a game to have been played here Tuesday night.

Georgetown Midgets will host Trenton in a series game here tonight (Thursday) and then play the postponed game tomorrow night on the same ice.

Because games two and three would be held two nights in succession Georgetown Midgets have offered to arrange Thursday night "billings" of Trenton players plus their meals in local private homes.

Georgetown won the opening game of their series 6-4 in Trenton, Sunday night.

Despite the Friday night Midget game the opening ceremony of the Bantam Hockey Tournament will go ahead as planned.

Famous Cossack Chorus At Riviera on Monday

Be it the huge auditorium of the Theatre of Colon in Buenos Aires, the famous Carnegie Hall in New York or a small town community hall, the Don Cossack Chorus always performs with the same thoroughness.

For chorus members there are no such things as big or little concerts; to them all concerts are equally important.

The famous General Platoff Don Cossack Chorus will present a concert in the Riviera, Norval, Monday night through arrangements with the Georgetown Rotary Club.

The chorus was originally organized in the capital of Czechoslovakia, Prague, in 1933, and ever since its inception has been headed by Nicholas Kostukoff.

The membership has always comprised the best of the vocal talent obtainable among White Russian emigres who fought Communism in Russia as early as 1918, and who actually may be considered as pioneers in the fight against Communism.

Since 1933 the Chorus has toured all five continents and travelled on 107 different ocean liners to visit sixty-seven different countries.

All members are now American citizens and some of them fought during the Second World War in the ranks of the U. S. Army.

The New York Times said of the chorus, "they still stand among the best choral groups to be heard in concert halls anywhere."

Warns Elk Dangerous During Mating Season

The bull elk in the Halton Region Conservation Authority's game compound could be dangerous even to the buffalo in the same area during the elk's mating season, field officer Dave Murray said Monday.

Normally, the elk would be afraid of the buffalo, but during the mating season, the bull elk would attack anything, Murray said, as a warning to visitors to the 73 acre preserve near Rattlesnake Point.

Several weeks ago, some children got inside the fence and chased the elk, which are very high-strung, nervous animals, and two died after injuring themselves trying to get away from the children.

Since then, the authority has announced it will post a watchman in the area to make sure no one else gets inside the fence.

The animals have proved to be a tourist attraction, Murray said. Even in winter, he added, the parking area on top of the escarpment is full of cars on bright weekends.

The International Bantam Tournament starts tomorrow night with a "Tyko All-Star" game kicking things off.

Norval Man Prominent in Church, Scout Organization

Prominent in church and civic groups at Norval, Frederick George Fendley, 47, died suddenly in Pool Memorial Hospital, Brampton on February 20.

Mr. Fendley had twice been a church warden at St. Paul's Anglican Church and had also served as chairman of sidesmen. His church work included engineering a water system in the parish hall and other manual work in the church and hall.

He had served as chairman and secretary of 1st Norval group committee for cuts and scouts. A memorial cairn on the lawn of Norval Public School was his handiwork, on which the old school bell is mounted. And this year he had helped build a skating rink in the schoolyard, 750 children would have a safer place to skate than on the river.

Son of Harold Hillon Fendley of Glen Williams and the late Margaret Dixon, he was born at Picton, Ont., and grew up in Norval when he was a child, and later to Brampton where he attended Central Public School. He had been a Norval resident since 1929.

He had been employed as a machinist at Copeland-Chatterton, was a tool and die maker with Orenda Engines and since 1963 with Deftwilland Aircraft and Douglas Aircraft.

In World War II, he served with the Royal Canadian Artillery in Britain, France, Holland and Germany. After the armistice, he was a driver for the Maple Leaf newspaper, and often recalled taking Roy Thomson, now Lord Thomson of Fife, on a tour of Holland and Denmark.

He leaves his wife, Lois Hughes, whom he married in Toronto in 1946, four children, Diane (Mrs. Robert Taylor) of Glen Williams, Marie, Gordon and Raul; his father, Harold Fendley; a granddaughter, Gayle Marie Taylor; a sister Norma, Mrs. Arthur Atkinson, Bramalea, and brothers Wesley, Douglas and Peter of Glen Williams, David and Gerald of Georgetown, Ronald of Shelburne and Allen of Bramalea.

Rev. Harold Llewellyn conducted the funeral service in St. Paul's Church on March 4th, assisted by Canon James E. Maxwell of Stewarttown and Hornor bearers were Charles McCauley, Ross Norton, John Nunham, Sam Finnermore and Gerald Carter. Tom Pettigall, Percy Donaldson, Sam White, Arthur Sherwin, Fort Credit, Interment was in Hillcrest Cemetery, Norval.
