

Seek Better Quarters For Halton Children's Aid

Halton County Children's Aid society is investigating the possibility of obtaining new quarters. Director Gordon Askwith said this week.

Dr. Askwith agreed with a grand jury report to Halton Judge Alan B. Sprague last week that the quarters in the present old Milton High Street society building was inadequate.

"There's no question that this building has been cramped for some years," he added. We need more space because of the nature of our business."

He said the society required more space for privacy in the work of the staff and administrators. At the moment visitors with personal problems have to wait in a small hall for interviews, along with other people.

Health Unit

Dr. Askwith while agreeing with the grand jury's criticism of the CAS headquarters in Halton, said the society would not want to move into the nearby County Health Unit building as the jury suggested.

"I think from a long-term point of view it would not be a good thing," he said. "Each sort of service, such as health units and children's aid societies, has its own specific needs for a building which would be required."

"The needs of the health unit are not the needs of the children's aid society."

The CAS director said the society specifically required more space, especially for privacy in interviews with the people it dealt with.

"We have people with personal problems," he added. "What we really require is a building which suits our purpose."

He added: "This is the sort of thing we feel we should be moving towards — a building that is adequate for the society."

"At the moment our board is considering some plans towards a building that would be suitable to ourselves."

New Building

He said the plan was at the moment at the feasibility stage and that no definite idea had yet been established on either taking over another building or constructing new premises.

The Children's Aid Society building in Milton contains a staff of 16. A sub-office at Burlington serves Burlington and Oakville areas.

"That's a well planned and modern office," said Dr. Askwith. "We are well pleased with it. It really is a good example of how much use can be made of available space."

He said the Milton headquarters was such an old building that a lot of space was being wasted there, and that it was awkward to fit people in.

On the suggested move to the county health unit, Dr. Askwith added: "I expect the health unit has its own plans which could include expansion in the future."

Church Women's Donations Helps Education in Kenya

The June meeting of St. Andrew's United Church Women was held at the church at Mountview Rd. and Sinclair Ave. on June 12. Twenty women were present to enjoy a pot luck supper and games.

A brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Florence Baker, during which plans for a fall bazaar were discussed.

Among correspondence was a letter from Mr. John Kaman, general secretary of the National Christian Council of Kenya. This acknowledged a donation sent to him, the offering given at the Easter thanksgiving service when women of various churches in the community joined St. Andrew's to hear Miss Audrey McKim speak on her work in Kenya.

Mr. Kaman expressed his sincere thanks to those who made this gift possible. Such donations mean that the Council is able to help destitute and needy people by making a special payment of school fees for children who may otherwise miss a term of schooling. It means that often a boy or girl can complete their education which would otherwise be curtailed by lack of funds.

Apart from schooling they are able to help the destitute by giving them money for a blanket or food from time to time.

After a summer recess the group will meet again on September 11th.

Kelso Scout Jamboree Means Giant Supermarket

A mile and a half of hot dogs will be consumed by 3,000 Scouts attending the 1st Ontario Jamboree on August 17 to 24 at the Kelso Conservation area near Milton.

Plans to feed this mammoth Scout Camp have been underway for over a year and some interesting statistics are being logged. A giant supermarket will be set up to dispense over 1,000 cases of canned goods, 20,000 quarts of milk, 8,000 loaves of bread, 40,000 eggs and all the other necessities required by hungry boys.

Meat suppliers are stockpiling meat now for the big event two months away. Nearly 10 tons of charcoal will be used, to cook the meals.

To add the sanitary conditions of the camp all meals will be taken on paper plates, cups, etc. Sixty-three thousand of these will be used in the week. Once the meals are finished the remains will be neatly put away in plastic garbage bags.

A sample menu consists of tomato juice, mixed vegetables, instant potatoes and charcoal broiled steaks finished off with peaches and milk.

Arrangements have also been made to cater to the many visitors expected daily from 2:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. A giant canteen will be in operation to sell snacks, drinks, souvenirs etc.

Loblaws Groceries Have New President and president of Loblaws Companies Limited today announced the appointment of Leon E. Weinstein as president of Loblaws Groceries Co., Limited.

Mr. Weinstein will also retain the presidency of Power Super Markets Ltd. and Busy B Discount Food Markets, which he has held for the past 15 years.

In making the announcement, Mr. Metcalf said that Mr. Weinstein has been responsible for the many innovations that have made the company so successful for Power Super Markets — for example the President's "Hot-Line," the recent "Dialogue" with consumers, and the many merchandising techniques that increased Power's public acceptance among the consumers.

He said that Mr. Weinstein's deep concern for the consumer and for the role of the food merchandiser in meeting consumer needs will be an asset to Loblaws, as it enters a new phase in its long and distinguished history. His unique talents in marketing and merchandising concepts will bring a lively new image to Loblaws — new in-store services, new product lines and general all-round development.

Mr. Weinstein began his career in the food business as a young lad of 15 helping in his father's small grocery store in downtown Toronto. At 18, he became a store manager, and in 1933 he opened the first Power Supermarket at Danforth and Coxwell Avenues in Toronto. He became president of Power in 1953. Today, there are 39 supermarkets in the Power and Busy B chain.
