LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

BY BILL COATS

Here is a hand that gave a few declarers a bit of trouble last week at Acton Bridge Club. Only one North-South pair got a plus score when they set four clubs doubled two tricks.

The dealer is South and West-West are vulnerable.

NORTH
S-8 5 4
H-K 2
D-7 6 4 2
C-Q 10 7 4

WEST | EAST
S-J 6 2 | S-10 3
H-Q J 8 6 5 3 | H-Void
D-K 9 | D-J 10 8
C-8 | C-A K J 9 2 5 3 2

SOUTH
S-A K Q 9 7
H-A 10 7 4
D-A Q 5 2
C-Void

The bidding: South 2S, West Pass, North 2NT, East 3C; S-3, H-W, Pass, N-3 S, E Pass; S-4 S, W-All Pass.

Opening lead: 6 of clubs.

Although South opened 2 spades when this hand was played, I do not approve of this bid. South is looking at six potential losers, and that is a few too many for a demand bid. The action by East varied at each table. Some bid three clubs, some four and one even went five clubs. I guess eight card suits do something to some bridge players.

Having arrived at 4 spades, no declarer found a way to make the contract. This is most surprising since declarer has only two hearts and two diamonds to worry about.

The best play on this hand would be to ruff the opening club lead and take two rounds of trump.

When the opponents' trump split three-two, declarer should leave the third one outstanding. A heart to the king exposes East's void but East is out of trump. Declarer plays a heart to his ace and ruffs a heart. Now the diamond is led and declarer should play either low or the ace.

With the wild distribution showing up, declarer must find the diamond king either single-ton or doubleton. It is safer to play the ace, remove West's last trump and exit with a diamond.

If the finesse is attempted, West will win the lead two rounds of hearts. When declarer trumps, he cannot draw West's last trump. If he does he is out of trump and will lose his contract when East gets in with a diamond.

came over for the evening, son and father teaming up, and Mrs. Raymond playing with the club director's wife, Mrs. Wellington Wilson. The Raymond-Raymond combination proved too powerful for other North-South pairs and easily copped top prize in that division.

The moral, if any, is don't open these hands with a demand bid unless you can make a game opposite a few points that dummy may provide. Monday night results, 1st pair: Mr. and Mrs. Ken Brown; 2nd pair, Mrs. Bev. Pattullo, Duke Wilson; 3rd pair: Mr. and Mrs. Pat Jeffares; 4th pair: Gloria Coats and Ivan Harris.

Other division winners—2nd, Mrs. Neil Pattullo, Mrs. Marguerite Taylor; 3rd, Jack Coats and Wellington Wilson; 5th, Earl Emond and S. Heller.

Leo Kistemaker and Blake Van Horne took first place for day in the Legion auditorium. East-West, followed by Mrs. Anne Pritchard and Mrs. Wallace Thompson, 2nd; Mrs. George Mundy and Mrs. George Walker, 3rd; Mrs. Aileen Bradley and Mrs. Sue Sullivan, 4th; and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Biehn, 5th.

Mrs. E. A. Russell was Norval School Principal

Friends of Ella Arnold Russell were saddened by her death, Sept. 6, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Russell had long been known as an outstanding teacher. Early in her teaching career she was principal of Norval Public School. From there she went to Oshawa where she taught for a number of years in senior classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell lived at Belfountain before moving to New Toronto. While there Mr. and Mrs. Russell took an active part in community affairs and Mrs. Russell was a member of the Belfountain - Rockside W.I. serving for a time as secretary-treasurer.

During the time she lived in New Toronto there has been a dearth of teachers, so Mrs. Russell went back to teaching. At this time she did most of her teaching at Kent Senior Public School, Toronto, where her work was valued highly.

She is survived by her husband, John N. Russell, who has been running the photography department at Russell's Pharmacy in New Toronto, for some twenty years. She is also survived by a sister Mabel (Mrs. E. Kendree) of Montreal and two brothers Dr. W. Clifford Arnold, Halleybury, and Alvin S. Arnold, Newmarket.

OVER 100 BRAND NEW CARS ON DISPLAY

Introduced in '68, it got popular fast. Despite all the other sporty cars in its category. Javelin's big windows, big space, big bumper and big engines made it a whole new styling race. Now in '69, we're being followed. But who's doing the following, wild horses couldn't drag out of us.

JAVELIN S.S.T.

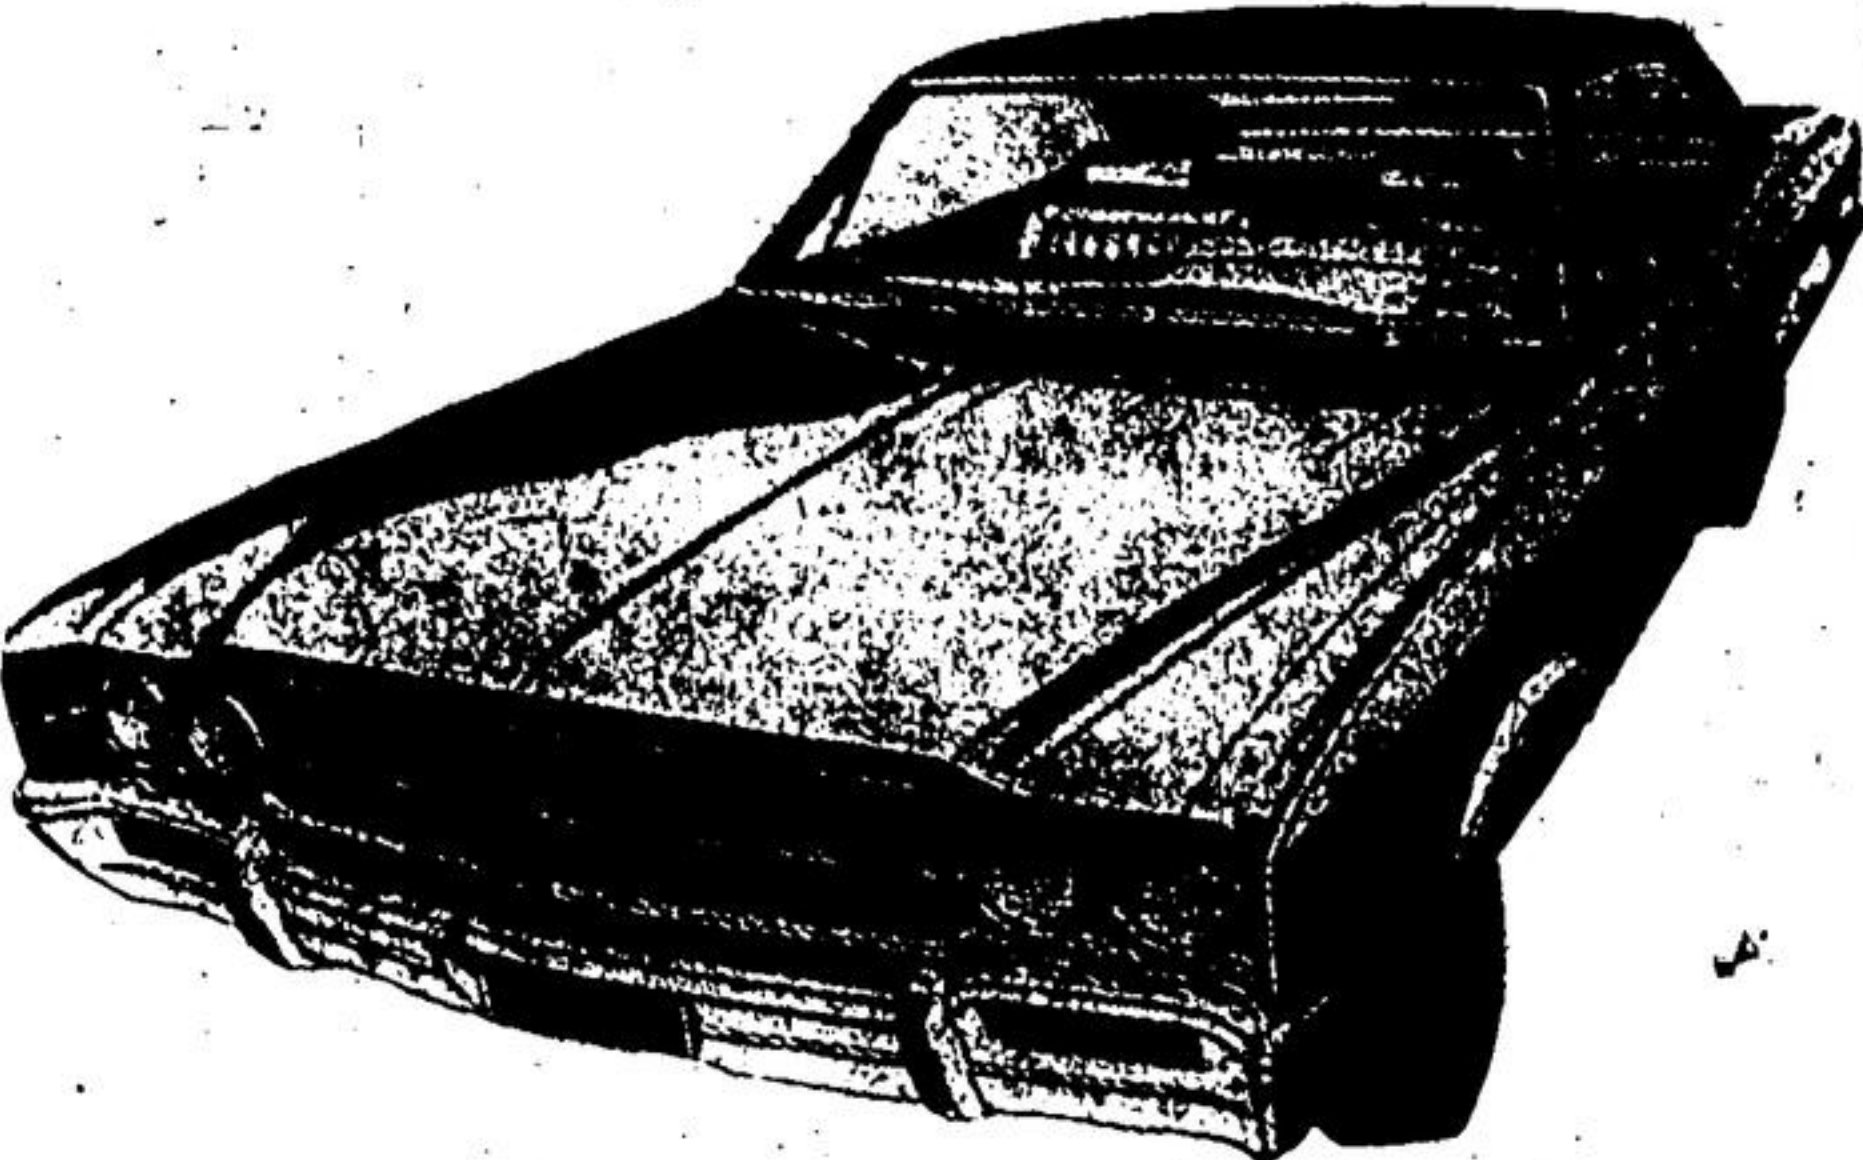

The Rebel is a machine that likes its work. Even when it's rough going. For one thing, since body and frame are welded in one unit, it can't develop rattles and shakes from body bolts working loose. For another, we've put a dirt shield on the front shocks to help keep dirt, grime and stones out of the works. While these are things you never see, other features are more evident. Like the dual-swing tailgate of the Rebel wagon that opens as a door when you want it to, or drops down flat. And like the standard rooftop travel rack.

AMBASSADOR S.S.T.

Once upon the 1920's, people who made money could keep it. And buy things with it. Great estates. Yachts like floating mansions. Automobiles like rolling parlors. Packards, LaSalle, Pierce-Arrows. Now for 1969, American Motors has added the elegance of those days to the power of these days in the new long-lined, 122 in. wheelbase Ambassador. And priced it so people can afford to buy it. Even in these parlor-less times. This is the top of the line: The new Ambassador SST 4-door. With massive grille and bold, almost straight-line sides, only slightly sculptured. Air Conditioning Standard.
