

Met in England, Couple Wed in Maple Baptist

A couple who met in England while she was there for a year were married in Maple Avenue Baptist Church on November 1.

Pastor R. C. Lohnes officiated at the ceremony with decorations of bronze and yellow mums and wheat carrying through the autumn colour theme of the bridal party. Wedding principals were Frances Mary Mulder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ouke Mulder, 45 Main Street South and Michael Andrew Haynes, formerly of Colombine Gardens, Walton on Naze, Essex, son of Mrs. I. Haynes.

The bride and her father preceded the attendants up the aisle in the traditional English manner and as she entered the church organist Kenneth R. Harrison played the John Goss setting of Praise My Soul the King of Heaven, and wedding guests stood while Mrs. Shirley Andrews sang "The Lord's My Shepherd to the tune of Crimond, the last verse as a soprano obligato composed by the bride's mother, with Mr. Harrison playing the melody. During the signing of the register Mrs. Andrews sang "The Lord's Prayer" followed by Pauls Angelicus played by the organist who also played Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary as the bridal party left the church.

The bride wore floor length silver and white lace in classic style with empire waist. A head dress of matching material, coronet style, held a shoulder length tulle veil and her gown had a shoulder train. She carried a nosegay of orange ice roses with ribbon trailers.

Kathy and Linda Tjart, formerly of Georgetown, and now living in Slingshampton, were her attendants. They wore street length gowns of emerald green and gold peau de sole, respectively, with headpieces of reverse colour and carried gold and bronze mums matching ribbons in semi-cascade hand bouquets.

Robert Ollivier was groomsmen and ushers were Richard Page and Ken Gould. Mr. Mulder gave his daughter in marriage in the double ring ceremony.

At a reception in the church basement, Mrs. Mulder received wearing peacock blue jersey and lace with matching hat and a corsage of white pompons with silver ribbon. Mrs. J. Tjart represented the groom's mother, who was unable to be present. She wore a brown dress with yellow pompon corsage and winter white hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Haynes are delaying their honeymoon until later this year. They are living at Berwick Hall, Main Street S. The groom is employed with General Fireproofing and the bride with a Brampton law firm, West and Associates.

Esquering Nominations

Mr. McPhail declined the nomination and Mr. Lawson becomes a member of the new school board by acclamation.

Nominated for council, but declining to run were Mrs. Jean McPhail, William Knight and R. L. Davidson.

In his address, Reeve Currie forecast this nomination as the last before regional government. "I feel sure we'll have regional government before the end of the term," he prophesied, "with the county of Peel and the county of Halton, one regional government."

He reminded the audience of the gradual take-over of municipal functions and roads as examples. "There's nobody in this hall could even guess how much of the county building costs are paid by the province," he challenged. "Well they are paying 82% of the costs of that building on the base line," he added.

Calling attention to the township interim statement, he commented the township is up about a thousand dollars in the hole—and attributed the deficit to greatly increased damage to cattle by dogs, which the township has to cover.

Tom Hill, right at the start of his speech, stated it would be impossible for him to be a member of County Council, without the cooperation of Jack Orlinton and Ron Mendham at Donker Paper Mill where he works. He paid tribute to the reeve whose guidance he said had helped in his first year at county council.

He maintained the roads were now in better condition than they had ever been, and mentioned the newly formed Planning Board. Concluding, he promised to do his best for the township.

Cr. Robert Layson termed the creation of a Planning Board, "one of the most forward steps council has taken." He lauded the '67 council for initiating the roads study which the '68 council implemented, and pointed out that the Department of Highways thinks they are so necessary that they now subsidize the studies 75%.

In conclusion, he stated he was not a candidate for any office this year.

Cr. C. F. (Pat) Patterson expressed regret at Cr. Layson's departure from politics, giving most of the credit for the formation of a Planning Board to him. He spoke of the growth of the township, citing the $3,793,000 total in building permits so far this year, as an example, and admitted he didn't know where the township was going. He felt the reeve was rushing things a bit when he said regional government would be here by 1970.

Jim France explained that he felt his twenty-one years of practical and administrative experience at Northern Electric would be an asset to the township.

Perry Hicks pointed out that in his position he has to keep a tight rein on budgets and so felt he could contribute something to the township. "It is necessary to stop the run-away spiral of taxes, and the ridiculous costs of education," he remarked. He emphasized the nuisance of quarries blasting in the township and urged they be limited in the size of the blasts.

Jim Goodlet said he would like to sit with an aggressive council. He termed some of the township bridges "death traps" and urged they be fixed, right away. "We get 80% subsidy so why not do it," he demanded. He maintained the school costs could be cut in several ways. "Don't carpet the floors," he said. "Don't have so many teachers' lounges and cut out all the frills."

Russell Miller spoke of his five years' experience on the school board, asked for a chance on council.

Kenneth P. Marshall stated he had lived in the area nearly fifty years, with service on school boards, service clubs and minor hockey. He urged the building of bridges and approximate the township and claimed he would be willing and able to negotiate with neighbouring towns in matters affecting them.

William Lawson, member of Esquering School Board for the last six years, gave a lengthy rundown on the work of the ISOC committee.

He pointed out that the proposed budget of the Halton County Board of Education was $27,318,590. From this $14,000,000 had to be raised by taxes. He advocated the forming of a lay committee of parents to keep in touch with the new further-removed board of Education.

The meeting closed with chairman K. C. Lindsay saying, "That concludes the evening's entertainment."

Recommend More Safety Measures, Fatality Scene

A coroner's jury last week recommended better lighting for a turn on the Seventh Line Road at the top of Stewarttown hill.

The inquest before coroner Dr. J. H. Chamberlain of Georgetown, heard evidence in the death of James Albert Guyett, 18, of Brampton, earlier this year.

The youth failed to respond to resuscitation treatment and died almost instantly after the southbound car he was driving went out of control on the corner, left the road and travelled 120 feet through the air before coming to rest.

The inquest was told he had been on his way home to Brampton after helping his parents build a new home on the Sixth Line of Esquering Township. He was alone in the car at the time.

The five-man jury found that Guyett died from severe brain damage as a result of an accident, caused by speeding and unfamiliarity with the road. The jury also recommended that 'catseyes' type markers be placed in the middle of the road at the corner, and that the road be straightened at the earliest convenient time.

The inquest was told that the corner now is marked only by a checkerboard sign, but it does not appear clear to approaching drivers.
