Four Georgetown and district people were among more than 900 graduates to receive diplomas from president F. C. Jorgenson at the spring convocation at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto.

Bruce Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Russell, 330 Delrex Blvd., and Richard Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Wade, graduated in hotel administration. Bruce left for Europe on May 25, and Richard is working with his father in Stan's Restaurant on Main Street.

Doreen Carney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Carney, R.R. 3, graduated in home economics and plans to attend the Ontario College of Education, Toronto in the fall.

Gillian Sargeant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sargeant, R.R. 3, graduated in secretarial science. She will join the teaching staff of Georgetown District High School in September, and will teach in the commercial and physical education departments.

Top Cookie Salesman 84 Boxes is Record

The recent Girl Guide cookie sale in Georgetown produced an individual record that won't soon be topped. Sandra Freeman, a Guide with the 5th Georgetown company outdid all other local Guides and Brownies in salesmanship selling 84 boxes.

Every box of Girl Guide cookies sold helps the individual pack or company, the area and provincial council.

The 50 cents received from each sale is divided as follows: 11 cents to pack or company; 7 1/2 cents to area; 10 5/12 to support provincial council. The balance, 20 5/6 cents goes to the baker. Out of this portion the baker supplies the Guides and Brownies with advertising aids, such as posters, sales kits, and material for TV, radio and newspaper promotion.

As far as memories can be searched in Ontario the first Cookie Day was held in Toronto. A Mrs. Hodgins, a Toronto Commissioner, thought of the idea when funds were needed to put a new roof on an old barn at the first Toronto Guide Camp in 1929. Since then Guiding and cookies have become synonymous in the public eye.

LET'S PLAY BRIDGE

BY BILL COATS

Occasionally, when there is an odd number of persons out to the Acton Bridge Club, I find myself without a game. On one of these evenings I might feed in a fixed hand. Now, as I have explained before, the hands at duplicate are not pre-dealt or fixed in any way. They are usually shuffled and dealt at the beginning of the evening's play. A few hands, however, are not in play immediately and it is one of these that I set up.

I am not interested in freak distribution, unmanageable trump suits or triple squeezes. All that I set up are fairly routine situations. Here is one of these.

South deals with neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
S-K Q 5 3
H-8 5
D-A 6 4
C-Q 9 6 2

WEST
S-6 4
H-J 10 7 6 4
D-8 7
C-J 8 7 4

EAST
S-J 10 9 7
H-A Q 2
D-K 9 5 2
C-10 5

SOUTH
S-A 8 2
H-K 9 3
D-Q J 10 3
C-A K 3

Suggested Bidding:

SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
1 NT PASS 2 C Pass
2 D PASS 3 NT All Pass

Opening lead - 6 of hearts.

North did not respond two clubs because he had clubs, nor did South bid two diamonds because he had diamonds. It was just a coincidence. North is using the popular Stayman convention. A response of two clubs to an opening bid of no trump asks - do you have a four card major?

South's reply of two diamonds says - no I do not. If he had had a four card major he would have bid it.

West leads his fourth best heart and it's up to East. The whole point of this hand is East's play at trick one. You have all heard the old adage "Never finesse against your partner." This is a good rule to follow most of the time, but this is not one of them.

Since South holds the heart king, what difference can it make? Well, let's see. If East plays the ace and then the queen, South will (should) hold up. Now when East leads his last heart, declarer will win and take the diamond finesse. This loses but declarer can claim the balance of the tricks.

If East plays the queen of hearts to trick one it would take a lot of nerve by South to duck.

He could picture West, holding ace-king over his king. Now when the diamond finesse loses, East cashes the heart ace and leads the deuce to his partner's good hearts.

If declarer does hold up when East plays the queen, all I can suggest is that East holds his cards a little closer to his chest.

Plan 3-Week Visit Here for Thirty-Five Harlem Youngsters

An ambitious youth project has been planned by the Christian Reformed Church.

They have invited a group of young blacks from the Harlem area of New York City to visit Georgetown for three weeks.

About 35 children are expected, mostly in the 10 to 13 year age group. Different families in the congregation have volunteered to be foster parents, and the children will be made welcome in their homes and treated as one of the family.

They will arrive, probably by bus, on June 27 and stay until July 17. During that time a vacation Bible School is being conducted at the church and many of the children will be attending this for part of their day. However, this is not obligatory and will depend on what plans each family makes for its visitor.

The visit has been arranged through a social worker in the Christian Reformed Church in Manhattan, Bernard Greenfield, from New York, is visiting Georgetown in early June and a meeting is being arranged in which he will brief the foster parents in their role as hosts.

The group will be accompanied by a youth leader who will deal with any problems which might crop up for the youngsters, most of whom have not been away from home before and whose environment in the city's black ghetto is so different from what they will encounter here.

Much detailed planning is going into the project, with hikes, picnics, and camp-outs arranged. But even more important, is the fact that they will be living in an Ontario small town home, absorbing an atmosphere totally different than they have been used to.

Sharing in the executive with Rev. A. J. VandenPol is chairman Albert Neutel of Glen Williams and secretary Mrs. William Braam, Arletta Street, Richard Van Dyke, Delrex Blvd., and Andy DeHoer, Queen St. are directing the boys' recreation and Mrs. Barney DeKleer, R.R. 1, and Mrs. Bill Walraven, Church St., the girls' recreation.

Entire cost of the project, including transportation, is being underwritten by the congregation here.

Mr. VandenPol has high hopes that the experiment in interracial relations will be the start of a much larger endeavor in Ontario.
