

Legion Pipe Band Trophy Winner for Second Year

By Ralph Hawes

Some weeks, writing for the Branch is a dream. Committee chairmen seek you out to impart information by the ream. You are in. The column becomes a piece of cake. But other weeks such as this, the poor PRO gets the impression he must be a carrier of a plague by the way many chairmen avoid him.

However, there is lots of scuttlery about the rooms pertaining to the extension situation and the lounge permit. Names of new committee chairmen are tossed around. People claim to know for sure how the Industrial Darts and Cribbage will be dealt with, all of which is prohibited and taboo to your PRO for its not official.

In spite of the adversity, Legion PROs keep a stiff upper lip and press on regardless, bringing the news of the branch to the branch.

Special Deal

Bruce Collins who is without a doubt one chairman who does truly co-operate with yours truly, let it be known that there is a special deal for new members. A veteran joining the Branch right now, can obtain two year's membership for almost half price. How's that for a bargain? Shop early and avoid the rush.

Bruce, who in the absence of the Branch president, represented 120 at the first meeting of Georgetown & District Memorial Hospital Disaster Plan, revealed the part Branch 120 will be expected to play in this plan should a disaster strike this district. Members will be needed as volunteers. The building could have several functions—a clearing station, a central kitchen for emergency meals, a satellite station for militia and/or a collecting and distributing centre, for vital and essential supplies.

The Legion sponsored Air Cadets are in the news this week. Thursday evening, 756 Squadron and their ladies were guests of the Branch at a social and dance held in the auditorium. Refreshments and buffet lunch plus music by Jack O'Sullivan were laid on, but there was a noticeable lack of ladies.

However the boys and the few girls that were there enjoyed themselves, and had as much pop and hot dogs as they wished.

Shooting and Swimming

Saturday morning thirty-seven members of the Squadron were at Cedarvale awaiting the bus to take them to Downsview where they were expecting to swim and visit the rifle range. We arrived at Cedarvale in time to see Lt. Carl Graskoth demonstrating with power driven model aircraft. Carl was doing fine until his lines became tangled, then the model took a perfect one point landing. On its nose. Seriously, the model club that Carl has organized within the Squadron is most popular with the boys and is carrying on through the summer months.

The bus arrived at 9:30, Capt. Rod MacDonald formed the cadets into two flights—one to the swimming pool the other to the rifle range. The boys at the pool had a ball. They played water polo. Those at the rifle had a brief lecture on the rifle. They shot off a number of rounds at targets which they were allowed to keep. The flight at the range having completed their target practice, changed places with those in the pool. Competition among the cadets while at the range was keen. The high scorer was cadet Trevor Window, with a score in the eighties. Sgt. Paul Scott was next in the high seventies with Ken Burgoyne right behind him.

This Saturday, Cedarvale has an Open House. The Air Cadet quarters will be open to the public and it is hoped to demonstrate flying with powered models built by the cadets. During the half time period of the soccer game.

Triumphant Return

Last Friday, the men of the Branch took over the kitchen where they prepared and served a small banquet to the staff of one of Georgetown's Industries. Comrade Bowman, along with Jessie Hayes, C. Hennessey, R. Lincoln, L. Boyd, R. Dumper, and A. Roberts saw to it that everyone had ample to eat with lots left over, which David made available to hungry members on Saturday afternoon.

The Saturday night dance which was organized by the Air Cadets Sponsoring Committee, was a terrific success, filled to the walls, with the couples kept happy by Bob and Cory.

The draw for the Air Cadet Barbecue was made during intermission. Mrs Taylor of Raylaw Crescent won herself a really fabulous barbecue. Spot prize was taken home by Mr. and Mrs. Rod MacDonald. Dave Billings won the ways and means prize while Lionel Strong received the other prize.

The highlight of the evening was the triumphant return of the Branch Pipe Band bearing for the second year the trophy they won for their efforts at Tillsonburg in the torch light parade. Russ Stephens invited Pipe Major Merv Allen and his band upstairs where they rendered two numbers to the delight of the audience.

Steady Drizzle Dampens Picnic

Activities were reduced but not washed out completely by a late afternoon rain which dampened First Baptist Church picnic goes Saturday.

A good sized crowd retreated to the shelter of the trees at Kelso Conservation area for the traditional picnic supper after which some games and races were run off despite a steady drizzle.

The dampness and cool temperatures didn't spoil the day for many of those attending who spent much of the afternoon inspecting the historic collections in the Halton County Museum buildings.
