An extra has been added to this weekend's downtown sidewalk sale - a Friday night street dance. The Girls Pipe Band will be entertaining on Thursday night, Friday the United Gas store is offering free pancakes again. And there will be balloons and suckers for the kiddies.

Garbage Set Ablaze Behind Plaza Store

Another fire behind stores summoned firemen Sunday afternoon around six. This time a pile of paper boxes behind Loblaw's had been set on fire. This is just one more in a rash of such fires in recent weeks. Fire Chief Jack Cunningham strongly advocates daily commercial garbage pick ups as the answer to this problem.

Last Thursday at noon a fire broke out under the floor of a cottage on the Vaughan property on the 27th Sideroad near the tenth line. Little damage was done.

Tuesday afternoon a small fire in a shed on the 5th Sideroad and 9th line was extinguished before the fireman arrived.

Residents Protest, Esquering Drops Street Lighting Charge

Confederation Street residents outside the boundaries of Glen Williams will have the street light charges dropped from their tax bills, Esquering council decided Monday night after a heated discussion. "Until this year none of the residents had been charged for street lighting."

The Glen Williams boundary at that point is designated as 330 feet to the north west of a line between lots 21 and 22. "I've lived there for twenty years, and never been charged for street lighting," stated Bob McGowan, repeating his stand of the previous week. "No lighting improvements have been made in the last five years at least, so why should I suddenly be charged with street lighting this year," he demanded.

Referring to an argument put forward by Deputy Reeve Tom Hill, last week that he benefited from the street lights when he drove through the Glen, Mr. McGowan remarked, "I drive through Georgetown, but I don't pay for street lights." After a sharp exchange between Deputy Reeve Hill and Mr. McGowan the Reeve rapped for order.

"Why were these people assessed now, for the first time?" asked the Reeve. Cr. Ken Marshall expressed the same opinion saying "I went up there yesterday, and if I were in McGowan's shoes I'd raise hell, too."

Cr. Russell Miller proposed that the 330 feet north should be measured, if the people are beyond that and as a result out of the Glen they are not charged for street lights, council agreed to this.

Joe Ross, owner of the Ross Lake flying field, was granted a building permit to erect another hangar, the same size as the existing one.

"How are you getting along with your neighbours," asked Reeve George Currie.

"Excellent," replied Mr. Ross. "I never had a quarrel with anyone, I've got all good neighbours."

Council okayed the permit after the Reeve pointed out they had no authority to stop him. Bill Lawson member of the Halton County Board of Education, appeared before council saying he was representing the parents of Stewarttown school children. He asked the Reeve, who is also Warden of the county, to use his influence to have the county build up the shoulder of the road up the Stewarttown hill, and the curve by the golf course. "At present it is unsafe for anyone walking," he explained. The Reeve promised he would look after it.

Robert McDonald was hired as Esquering's plumbing inspector.

CENTRAL PICK-UP DEPOT SOLVES SCHOOL DISSENT

Rough Roads, Driveways Mountainview Complaints

Speaking for a group of new Mountainview Road residents, George Cook, 179 Mountainview Road South, told of difficult driveway entrances and rough travelling when he addressed council on Monday. While Mr. Cook was primarily interested in solving the problems of residents, he suggested that council should also advise developers to tell what the situation is when people are buying houses. "We were told our roads were paid for and would be installed this year," he said. Instead of this Mountainview still remains in an unpaved, unfinished state, and Mayor Emmerson could give Mr. Cook no assurance that things would be much better for at least a year.

The mayor explained that it was a question of highways department approval only $262,000 of a requested $646,000 road expenditure has been approved this year for government grants, and Mountainview is not included in this he said. "Each time residents have complained I've had the grader go over the road" he said, "I wish I could tell you we have a permanent solution, but I can't."

Cr. Ric Morrow said small driveway culverts had been discussed but thought to be throwing money away if permanent paving were to be done. Now that this is abandoned for a year, this may now be the answer, he said.

Cr. Ern Hyde said culverts would be a waste of money and more gravel is the best answer. Works foreman Frank Morette who had been asked to attend the meeting, corroborated the mayor's statements and said that the engineer and roads committee would be discussing a solution at a meeting today. "I can assure you we will be discussing it at the meeting," Mayor Emmerson promised.

Survivors include his wife Winnifred, sons Edward of Milton, David of Port Credit, Colin of Dartmouth, N. S., Russell of Newmarket, Gareth of Perth, Australia and Richard of Milton. Two sisters Grace and Neil also survive at Birmingham, England.

Georgetown Woman Now On ARC Workshop Staff

Mrs. Peggy Treahy, 11 Carol Street, has joined the ARC Industries workshop for adult retardates at Hornby, as supervisor.

Her appointment followed the sudden death in June of ARC director Harry Isham. His wife, who had been associated with him at the workshop since it was set up, has assumed the position of director. Mr. Isham died in hospital in Toronto on June 14. With his wife, he had attended the Ontario association workshop in the city, and at a dinner and dance winding up the workshop he collapsed on the dance floor and was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Born May 4, 1910 at Birmingham, England, he had 23 years of service with the Royal Navy as chief engine-room artificer, including service during the second war. He came to Canada in 1956, lived at Etobicoke, then moved to Milton six years ago. Mr. Isham was an active member of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 136, Milton, and a member of Grace Anglican Church.

Mr. Isham had been active in the local association for the mentally retarded for several years. He was president of North Halton Association for the Mentally Retarded in 1967, and was chairing the 1969 Flowers of Hope fund-raising campaign at the time of his death. For three years he was adult services chairman of N.H.A.M.R.

Famed Inn Sold to Toronto Group

Terra Cotta Inn, well-known picturesque country inn situated on the banks of the Credit River, has changed hands. The new owners are Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Greenhill, who came from England in 1961. Former owners Mr. and Mrs. Harry Farrar, bought an old country store in 1961, and with hard work, and imagination, transformed it into a charming inn, renowned all over Southern Ontario.

They left the inn July 1st and now plan a leisurely trip around the world. The Greenhills had the help of the Farrars for three months before they left, and now plan to carry on the same tradition of excellent food in gracious surroundings which established its reputation. The Greenhills report they expect to have a liquor license soon, but won't serve liquor on Sundays since they are already crowded then, with lunches, dinners and their famous high teas, which served in the beautiful grounds Sunday afternoons has become a special feature.

1.7 Miles Farthest Walk For Students

Despite a move to the contrary, high school students within the town limits will be bused to school after all. Originally there had been a tentative decision by the Halton County Board of Education to drop all transportation within a three mile radius of any high school in the county.

Visits Newfoundland With Young Voyageurs

Gwen Paterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Paterson, 20 McGillivray Crescent, will be leaving for Labrador City, Newfoundland on August 17.

She is one of 624 Ontario 'Young Voyageurs' who are this summer visiting Canada's other provinces, Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Gwen, a Grade 11 student, was chosen to represent Georgetown District High School and her town, for the trip 1500 miles east. All Young Voyageurs are between 15 and 18 and were chosen by the school staff on the basis of marks and school spirit.

Students usually travel in groups of 12 boys and 12 girls, accompanied by two escorts - in Gwen's case, Mr. and Mrs. Burton of Hamilton. Leaving from Toronto Union Station, they receive a green and white labelled shoulder bag luggage name tags and identification stickers.

In the past five years, more than 15,000 students have learned first hand about their country in this education through travel project. Sponsored jointly by the federal and provincial governments, no charge is made to the students for the program which last year cost $600,000.

En route home, the party will have a one day stop in Ottawa on August 26.

Reverse Decision Okay Hotel Sign

Another neon sign will be added to the downtown area when the McGibbin Hotel completes plans for erecting this. Council turned down the sign recently, on the grounds that it was too large and would dwarf others on Main Street.

Monday, Cr. Ern Hyde told council that he re-examined their plan and the 48 square foot sign is actually smaller than one on another building and not much larger than several others on the street.

"It may not have the square footage but it is still going to be the dominant sign on Main Street," observed Cr. Sandy Mackenzie, who with Reeve Hunter voted in opposition.

"If it's going to stand out that's the intent of advertising," said Cr. Hyde.

The motion carried 5-2, with Crs. Denison and Smith absent from the meeting.

Ask By-Law Clarification For New Bank Building

Three problems about a new bank building at the Main-Mill corner were discussed briefly at Monday's council meeting. Mr. Hallford, member of a firm of architects which is designing a new building for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said that the town's building by-law would appear to require that not more than 50% of the land be covered; that one parking space for every 200 square foot of building be allowed; and that only one advertising sign would be permitted.

The bank is replacing its present three storey structure and the adjoining part of the building which it purchased from Garner's Department store, with a modern one-storey structure. During the building, the bank will move to temporary quarters on Mill Street in the former residence of Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Paul.

Planning chairman Ern Hyde told Mr. Hallford that while a new zoning by-law is in process only a new official plan has been passed and approved and the old zoning by-law is still in effect.

He said that in the old by-law signs would be the only problem, and council deals individually with such applications.

Mayor Emmerson suggested that Mr. Hallford contact Municipal Planning consultants, a firm retained by the town for planning, to help answer any problems.

Paraded on Derry Day
