Wearing Milton Uniform, Junior Sinks Opener

FRANK KING

A Georgetown junior hockey player wearing a Milton Merchant suit, scored the first goal as Milton flattened Thornhill Lions 13-3 in Suburban Junior C hockey action in Milton, arena Friday night.

Frank King sunk the opener at 5:01 from Ches Beck and John Gagne. King, and Jerry Nash have both joined the Merchants following the collapse of Georgetown Raiders. The locals packed it in last week because of an insufficient number of players.

Milton had the score board all to themselves in the first period with a six goal streak. The game was extremely clean with only a few minor penalties being called.

OUTDOORS with GEORGE HOARE

The Weatherman Wasn't The Only One Confused

My wife Dolly and I finished the unpopular job of placing the storm windows on our home the evening of Oct. 20. It was quite dark when we put the last, small one on.

We decided to do the job early, to avoid a cold finger job later on. As it was we made several trips inside to warm our hands. At times we just can't win.

About 8:20 we had supper. I was sitting in front of our TV set about 9 p.m. Dolly came to the living room door and held up her thumb and index finger. I thought she was suggesting a wee drink of Duggan's Dew. I said "No thanks to soon after supper." We had had a nice steak supper with the trimmings and medium dry Lorton Red Table wine with it. So I was feeling quite contented. I noticed a puzzled look on her face, when I said "no thanks."

She then beckoned me over to the door which was open and politely pushed me outside. I was in my sock feet and landed in 2 1/2 inches of fresh white snow. I hollered "throw me my snow shoes." She said "you write about the Outdoors, there is some real news for you."

SO EARLY

I was really surprised to see snow so early. Some say it sets a record as far back as 85 years. Well anyway we were glad the storms were on.

The next morning the alarm woke us up and after a 20 minute catnap I scrambled out of bed, dressed, had a wash and plugged in the electric kettle. Then I glanced up at the clock, it said 4:20. I said to myself, that clock is never wrong, one thing really baffled me, why was I feeling so good after such little sleep. Any way back up stairs I went. Beaver said, "are you not going to work." I said "not at 4:30 I'm not."

I reset the alarm for 5:30. I'm sure she had set it for 4:30. I thought to myself I will encourage her to come with me and have Mr. Bob Hamilton the optometrist test our eyes. With that I said, "I'm going back to bed for one more hour."

MORE LIKE IT

Bang goes the alarm, up I get. The clock said 20 minutes to six. That's more like it, I thought. I plugged the kettle in and glanced outside. It was a little lighter than usual. I thought and figured it was the reflection from the snow that caused it.

I was filling my thermos with coffee when the phone rang. I picked up the receiver and a voice said "George." Oh, Oh. I thought, not more bad news I hope. I said "Yes." The voice said "It's 7 o'clock." I said "it's only 20 minutes to six." The voice said "in the same tone as the first time." "George it's 7 o'clock." I thought it can't be a recording, I said what the heck do you mean 7 o'clock, and furthermore I said I was up at 4:20 and went back to bed for another hour.

The voice said the hydro has been off. I new then it wasn't a recording, it was either Jim Dobbie, Trevor Williams or Herb Arnold calling from Abitibi Provincial Coating mill.

I said "OK, I will be in as soon as I fill my thermos." These new fangled electric clocks apparently start back making time as soon as the power comes on. The clock was given to us as a wedding present by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tost.

I found out later that Herb Arnold was the one that phoned me. He made sure I was aware of the right time the rest of the day because every time he made his rounds he would say "George it's such and such a time."

Well anyway that's what happened to me. Let's see what happened to a few more. Another chap who I was depending on when I knew I was late was Fred Engleby. Fred said "George don't feel too badly my electric clock never went off till 20 to eight."

Another man came in at 7 a.m. Clock trouble again. The wife of another worker woke him up to put in new bulbs and check the fuses.

Others admitted they would have been late also, only they were up to visit the washroom during the night. Another family was up, had the camp stove going, candles burning, bacon frying, the man was very happy and humming away to himself and thinking boy just like camping out.

The lady of the house said "I think I will make the kids their first porridge of the season this morning." Before she could get the mix made up the lights came on and every one was back to normal again. Well we can dream can't we? The storm caused extensive damage due to the fact that the snow came before all the leaves were off the trees.

The morning after the storm was the only time that I can remember that Dan Armstrong had not been clean shaven and had his hair combed. I asked him why. He was secretive about it. His brother Lyle informed me that he had called him and woke him up.

Llano has won "The World Championship" twice, once in 1966 and again in 1962. So it was hard to beat a record like that. Rumour has it that there is a run of big fish at Goderich on Lake Huron. Probably coho's, from the USA stocking program.
