Inside A.R.C. Visitors Find Busy Workshop

Tuesday was open house day at the Adult Rehabilitation Centre at Hornby. "A most successful affair," commented director Mrs. Peggy Treahy when she spoke to the Herald.

Visitors watched the 12 adult trainees go about their daily jobs, inspected the various types of works, and did a little Christmas shopping at the same time.

Available as gifts were a large selection of items ranging from puppets to candy dishes. The trainees devote part of their time to manufacturing articles for sale and fill contracts with district industries as well.

ARC, which was formerly known as Hope Workshop, was open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday. During the two hour interval Mrs. Treahy and the employees marked the day by going out for dinner.

Tells Commencement Audience Constructive Criticism Best

DOUGLAS STEPHENS
Faculty Scholarship

Too often people take either a destructive or an admiring stand on education, rather than making constructive criticism,

Douglas Stephens told a large attendance of students and parents in the high school auditorium on Friday.

One of a class of 66 who received their honour graduation diplomas, he was valedictorian at the commencement exercises. "A diploma gives our education a market value," he said, "but education is much more than that and student protests indicate that they are not satisfied with just this."

Education's main goal should be to spur students to a greater desire for knowledge, he said.

"Maybe students are too idealistic, but this is good to counterbalance adult cynicism," he continued. "What we put into our schooling should be just as important as what we get out of it, and out-of-class activities have importance as well as formal studies."
