No Space, Sheridan Couldn't Make Float
Sheridan College whose "Peanuts" float featuring Charlie Brown, Lucy and Snoopy was judged best entry in the Georgetown Lions Club's Santa Claus parade last year, were not part of the local procession this year because the school lacked the space to build a float. Faye Cooper, public relations co-ordinator for the college, said last week that because of crowding conditions at the college, the visual arts department was unable to find a large enough workroom to put together an entry. She said that even last year the students had problems locating a warehouse to build the "Peanuts" gang float which was also a winner in other parades in the district. The situation was aggravated this year by increased enrollment, she pointed out.
