Bureau, two brigades win scrapbook prizes

Halton Fire Prevention Bureau, the Oakville and Milton Fire Departments were among the award winners when results of the National Fire Protection Association's 1969 fire prevention scrapbook competition were released today.

The Halton Bureau, which includes firefighters from the five county fire brigades, once again received a "special recognition for an outstanding fire prevention program" judges announced. The Bureau's 218-page scrapbook was compiled by public relations officer Roy Downs, Milton.

Oakville firefighters also won high honors for their large scrapbook of activities, compiled by fire prevention officer Capt. Wes Miller and Insp. Peter Campbell. It was judged first in Ontario in the 25,000 to 100,000 population group, second in the same population division for all of Canada, and sixth ranking in Canada regardless of population.

Milton's scrapbook, done by Fire Chief A. E. Clement and the brigade's fire prevention committee, earned the fee department a second place prize in the 5,000 to 10,000 population category for Ontario and a third in the same category for all of Canada.

Certificates will be presented to the local fire departments by a representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in the spring. This year 236 Canadian communities and 215 in the United States competed in the 43rd annual fire prevention contest.
