

High's Operation Ookpik

The young beat was then added with the playing of "The Satin", harmonizing to "Paint it Black", "Born to be Wild" and "Faster than the Speed of Life."

Popular students Mike Cooper and Mark Hurst, next entertained the audience with a selection of songs including, "Ode to J.J.O.T.", "If I Were a Carpenter" and "Yesterday".

To the melody of "Top Hat, White Shirt and Tails", the Joyce Carpenter Dancers did their second number. "Back to the U.S.S.R." was the return song of the Lemmun Ginn. A Folk group consisting of Bob Krul, Nancy Abram, Anita Thibodeau, Dianne Frank and Stephanie Merrin on flute then sang "Sounds of Silence" and "Those Were The Days".

Perhaps the hit of the evening was a skit entitled, "Regressive Education." The stars were none other than John Christella, Brent Turnbull, Clarence Rognavaldson, Boris Shean, Brian Skerrett and Kathy Ott, all teachers. It dealt with a concept school in which Mr. Turnbull taught a lesson of anatomy while surrounded by some of the school's prettiest girls. Mr. Christello's disguise as a woman brought the house down as did his chorus of "Won't You Come Home Brent Baby". Brian Skerrett and Margaret Tamblin then sang "Michael Row The Boat Ashore". The distribution of the song words to the spectators was an excellent finale to the evening. Throughout the evening, Brian Skerrett had a variety of roles to play including those of a heckler, a drunk, a boxer and a little boy, all of which had unfortunate endings. His ape costume seemed to be everyone's favorite. He paraded as a biology experiment that was set loose.

Saturday's program began late in the morning. A powder puff football game was held between a girl's and boy's team. Rae Swackhamer was the referee. Although it was intended to be a touch football game the students found it more fun to play tackle. Although it was unofficial, the boys were declared champs.

Other activities were the Spike Driving contest, snowmobile races, dog races, and wood chopping contest. The results are as follows.

Dog sled races (8 entries) L. Davies from Galt with a three dog team won the Lions Club trophy for first prize.

Ken Marshall of Acton entered two teams, one driven by Steve McIntyre.

Snowmobile races—Mrs. L.

Diggins of Acton, Paul Braida, L. Diggins.

Wood Chopping contest—Alan McKenzie, Karen Pierce.

Spike driving contest—Bill Fields, Jim Frizzell, Norm Patterson.

The grand finale of "Operation Ookpik" was a semi-formal dance held Saturday evening. "The Flower Town Five" entertained both young and old alike, as most parents received invitations. The auditorium was decorated beautifully and the students who worked on it should feel a great pride in their accomplishments.

Competition was keen in the snowmobile races.—(Photo by Ray Saltz)

Jon Hartlin started the snowmobile races

The teachers won a prize for their comical apple.

Jim Frizzell delivers the crushing blow

Champion wood-chopper was Alan McKenzie

Last year's Carnival Queen Anita Thibodeau crowned this year's Queen

9B's walrus was the most creature-like snow sculpture.

Robert Little students sculptured this green monster out of ice.

Youngsters bundled up to watch the snowmobile races.

Best mechanical snow sculpture was 10B's bob-sled.

Bill Severinski, Jack Irwin, Gord Williams and their dragster.

Linda Perry centred the ball for the girls team in the touch football

Robert Little students built a racing car.