Free Press / Fiditorial Page

Happy Birthday C. K. ...

From horse and buggy eta to space age in one life time and accepted it all in his stride.

That's Charles Kelley Browne (affectionately known as C. K.) who was born when Canada was a child of three. The new nation had its problems even with Sir John A. Macdonald at the helm. Beginnings were shaky.

Upper Canada, where "C. K." used to live, was arural society where towns and villages housed nearly everyone that wasn't on the farm. Cities were small.

Few people have the privilege of experiencing at first hand the birth and gradual maturity of a new nation. Fewer still have a strong memory of the old days. Charles Kelley Browne qualifies on both counts, however.

The gift of longevity hasn't been wasted on the veteran Orangeman, who still finds the inclination to serve customers and swap stories at his store on Main St. N. He's fived through the turbulent years and enjoyed the better ones. If spunk is measured in centuries C, K, is quite likely to be around for another century.

He's got stories to tell, jokes to relate, eigars to smoke, and loves to pull children's legs as they go back and forth between the Robert Little school on Education Lane, a path the scholars of this community have trod for over a century.

When someone has passed the 100 mark, naturally everyone wants to know the formula. We're all looking for the fountain of youth, C. K.'s recipe may be a little unorthodox but he has the years to prove it works.

We join with the hundreds of other well-wishers in saying Happy Birthday, "C. K."

We hope you have many more of Contest dilemma . . .

Watch for an announcement before this session of Parliament ends that the current promotion war between eigarette manufacturers will be stopped.

According to the Financial Post, cigarette manufacturers are waiting for federal Health Minister John Munro to put a stop to the cash games and goft offers. Privately they are saying that the recent prize money escalation will force the health minister to act this fall or early 1971.

It is also expected Mr. Munro will introduce curbs on broadcast advertising and ask for package warning labels.

More than 60 per cent of the cigarettes sold in this country are promoted by cash or gifts and the ratio is increasing rapidly. It is believed Canadian eigarette companies are giving at least $5 million a year in incentives.

Cash prizes in packages are creating other problems also that probably even the most zealous promoter didn't conceive when the program was introduced.

Four young scalliwags in Grades 7 and 8 were caught recently smoking cigarettes behind a portable classroom in a Wellington county school playground. An indignant principal moved to discipline the quartet.

But then he found there was another problem as well. They had bought a well known brand for their illicit puffing and won themselves a winning poker hand worth $100.

The story doesn't say so but no doubt the principal was torn between knocking the quartet's heads together and congratulating them for picking a winner,

Editorial notes ...

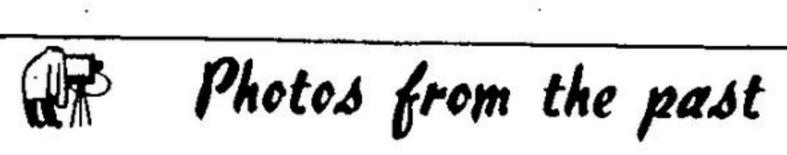

You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could do for themselves.

-Abraham Lincoln

Two University of Western Ontario scientists have created a coffee-break snack out of raw sewage. Other people might be more reluctant to try the delicacy, but Dr. Jim Zajic and student Bohumil Volesky, who developed the fungus food say, the high-protein flakes could well save thousands of persons from dying of starvation. The food tastes like dry blotting paper. It is created when a microbe found in raw sewage is treated with natural gas-the world's largest natural resource.

Jogging obviously fast becoming a new route to physical fitness. There is a visibly growing parade of dedicated men in sweatshirts puffing along quiet streets fighting off stray dogs and bemused stares. And it's all probably very good for your heart, lungs, muscle tone and weight control. Provided, warns the Journal of Industrial Medicine, it doesn't kill you, or bring on a coronary attack or leave you gimping around on bad knees and ankles. But if jogging is your thing have the good sense to see your doctor first. Some need more exercise than others, or can take more, but as little as two hours a week (that's 15 minutes to 20 minutes a day) can be enough.

FEELING THE HEAT? A cooling sight: Mill Street of half a century ago. This postcard was lent by Mrs. Gordon McKeown.

NEW ROUTE was taken for the first time by the parade at Decoration Day. Here marchers wend their way back out through the trees to the Cobblehill Road entrance. Members of the L.O.L. are right behind Acton Citizens Band. Centenarian C. K. Browne was in attendance - but didn't parade, - (Staff Photo)

This year again, there is a terrible panic about students not being able to get summer jobs.

It is amplified by the facts that general unemployment is steadily increasing, that a fairly heavy recession seems on the books, and that many companies are losing money or going broke,

My heart does not bleed for the stockbrokers and the financial wheeler-dealers.

But the facts speak for themselves. The construction industry is in the doldrums. The Prairie wheat farmers are in bad shape. These two big sources of labor and income can knock our economy cockeyed, temporarily.

But to get back to the students and their lack of jobs. Much of this wailing is pure hokum.

I feel genuinely sorry for the student who has tried earnestly to get a job, and failed. However, for most of the others, I couldn't squeeze a single tear. There is a job for 95 per cent of them, if they want

But they want THE job. They want one like the old man has: Five days a week, coffee breaks, nothing demeaning, and good pay.

They don't want a job, they want a sinecure: Something where they can put in so many hours and collect so much loot, whether they're any use of not; something where they can treat the job as an unfortunate interruption of their fun time; and something that is not "beneath" them.

Joolproof radar

Police in Montreal are catching speeders without being bothered by the difficulty of attributing time measurement to the wrong car, according to Canadian Controls & Instrumentation magazine, in an article titled "Photo-timer-radar clocks correct car at true speed." According to the article, a new photo-timer-radar unit inaccuracy of measurement due to fluctuations and interference.

The unit is said to be proof against radar detectors mounted in civilian cars, and is said to end the question of error in court rooms by providing evidence against speeders follows: an automatically delivered photograph at the rear of the speeder's vehicle, showing his licence plate; a speedometer registering his speed; a clock showing the exact time, the date, and the surrounding area.

One of the great values of seat belts is that they prevent ejection from the vehicle after a crash. The Ontario Safety League reports an unusual incident, not involving a collision, that led to the death of an unbelted driver. One driver apparently fell asleep, leaned against the car door and fell into the path of another car travelling in the same direction. The empty car then crashed into a field several hundred yards away.

This is not a blanket condemnation, I know a lot of kids who slug it out in dirty, tough jobs all through the hot summer months, while their more discriminating contemporaries lounge at the beach, hang around the streets; taunt the fuzz, and whine about a system which hasn't provided a readymade job for them. This, by the way, is the same system which they constantly attack for being competitive.

Afraid I haven't much patience with this large group. How many of the girls slouching around in jeans, or dazzling mankind with their bikinis, have tried to get a job as domestic help? All over the country women who can pay for it are scrambling for baby-sitters, thour-scrubbers, human dishwashers and ironers.

These kids could make about $1.50 an hour, with coffee breaks, a free lunch, and weekends off. But this is below their dignity. They didn't go to Grade 12, or to university, to do housework.

How many boys apply for menial tasks, even though they often pay well? Short-order cook; scrubbing floors in office buildings; tending gardens, mowing lawns, clipping hedges. Not many. The hours are too long, or the work is too hard, or the sun is too hot.

I know. Recently, I wanted some kids to rake my lawn because I didn't have time to do it myself. I offered the job to four of my classes, 60 per cent of them boys. Pay, $1.25 an hour. They laughed at me. Heartily, but without malice.

Know what I wound up with? Two little Grade 13 girls, about five-feet-nothing. They wanted the money to buy clothes and worked like twin beavers. Did a better job than any boy I've ever hired. Blistered all hands. Right into the thickets to get the leaves. Filled 48 of the big plastic garbage bags.

Any enterprising youth could make a killing cutting fawns on a contract basis. Capital expenditure would be about $75. He could make $15 a day without pushing himself. But that isn't very glamorous.

When I think of my first job, cleaning latrines, scrubbing floors and polishing brass, 12 hours a day, 7 days a week, $30 a month, you can understand my lack of sympathy.

THE

advance $6.00 in Canada $9.00 in all countries other than Canada single copies 15 cents. Second class mark allowence for signature, will not be charged for but the applicable rate. In the event of a typographical error advertising goods or services at a errors price, goods or services may not be sold. Advertising in

Don Ryder Harriey Coles

Copyright 1970

Pepper Py Color

Perhaps you've noticed this column takes off on a tangent every now and then stating there is always a period to history worse than the current more. It is wise to take a good look at the old days to see how they made out before giving in to despair

Take the recent upheavals at colleges east universities in the states and in leases degree in this country. They have their parallel away back in the middle ages when the institutions of higher learning were really just getting started

A good look at the goings on in those days shows that although we still have a lot to learn, the old globe to showing some improvement every time we tick off 11x1 VEHIA.

Let's go back to the 13th century when days could be pretty turbulent but at the same time was also one of the most brilliant periods in lustory.

A student of that time wrote home begging for money pleading that "the city was expensive and makes many demands."

Hack came a letter, by carrier pigeon or whatever they used in those days, from the father: I have recently discovered that you live dissolutely and slothfully strumming a guitar while the others are at their studies, whence it happens that you have read but-one volume of law while your more industrious companions have read several."

You don't have to go too far from home to find similar situations. Every family has them when they send their bright boys off to bit the books instead of taking a trade or turning a lathe.

Students in those times were also often very quarrelsome. One medieval scribe said they "quarrel among themselves over dogs, women, or what-not, dashing off one another's fingers with swords, or with only knives in their hands and nothing to protect their tonsured pates, rush into conflicts from which armed knights would hold back."

Sound (amiliar?

In those days, when money was even harder to come by than it is now, the dissolute and unruly scholar was a minority. The majority of those who attended university worked hard and absorbed much knowledge,

Statutes forbade most games, dancing was prohibited and the students rose before dawn to catch as much light for learning as they could get, for candles were expensive. There were no fires when winter came. So the student took to his bed early to stay warm,

It track from or five yours to get the B.A. and these or from more years to become a timales of arts or a doctor of philosophy.

It was furbidden to bring wine into the seatmination from or to he in wait with a dagger for the examiner who marked "failure" on an exam, suggesting the Students were fresh and preverent, much like they are today but some of the must brilliant men of history came out of the universities, Examples?. Thomas Aquinas, Poger Bacon and Peter Abelard, to mention a lew.

Tunides brewed in the taverns of the

I'm instance at Oxford, England's famous university, some students questioned the quality of the wine served at a nearby tavern, in the enturing quarrel, the vininer threw the wine at the students

They arrived armed with bows and arrows and every other kind of weapon they used for aidearms in those times. Students were rallied by the bells of St.

For the remainder of the day, townslolk and students staged one of the worst donnybrooks Oxford ever saw.

Due to poor marksmanship and the preponderance of ale, few were mjured, but the next day townspeople killed several scholars as they were at sport, Farmers rushed in to join the sport and they ransacked the university, killed and mutilated students.

It took King and Church to separate the two factions and restore peace and order. And for nearly 500 years the town did penance on February 10 St. Scholastica's

There were similar incidents all over Europe where the students and burghers viewing each other over weapons.

Times really haven't changed much have

As a matter of fact the evidence seems to indicate that the students of today are an improvement over some of their predecessors.

So if you've got qualms about sending Junior or Gertie to the universities, take heart at the knowledge any trouble they get into will not be something they invented themselves. It has all been done before.

Free Press

20 years ago

Taken from the issue of the Free Press Thursday, June 8, 1950.

Winners and contestants in the Musical Festival were given a chance to present their talents to an Acton audience when the Lakeside Chapter of the LO.D.E. sponsored a program of festival numbers and presentations in the town half. Mrs. Orr welcomed the rather large audience and Bob Parker was master of ceremonies for the evening, Over 70 students took part in the program and raised money for the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. The prize-winning 45-voice choir of Acton public school trained by Miss L. Stewart won the Acton W.I. shield which hadn't been won by an Acton entry since 1938.

Singing solos were Margaret Armstrong. Ann Maplesden, Margaret Morrison, Paul Lawson, Grant Surbey, Marjorie McDonald, Helen Landsborough and Bill

Empire Day awards were presented by Miss Bennett and Mrs. F. Blow.

50 years ago

Taken from the issue of the Free Press Thursday, June 10, 1920.

The Committee of Five has examined many designs for the monument to our soldiers and has let the contract to McIntosh Granite Co., Toronto,

Acton Women's Institute garden party will be the premier attraction of this week. Our schools' honour roll for the May examinations included the names of Clara Lantz, Neil Gibbons, James Talman, Edna Johnston, Maxwell Bell, Isabel Elliott, Ray Agnew, Esther Starkman, Frances Hurst, Martha Orr, Sabra Nelson, Jessie Mann, Margaret McNab, Mary Gibbons, Helen Anderson, Harold Wansborough, Marie Mowat, Dulcie Talman, Earl Cooper, Edna Henderson, Nellie Hall, James Ross, Marie Lantz, Laird Dancey, Laird McDonald, Marguerite Ryder, Vera Hurst, Lloyd Forbes, Minnie Blair, George Jiggins, Laura Scott, Fred Warren, Lena Costello at the high school. Jean Orr, Millie Rowles, Ivy Precious, Madeleine Masales, Dora Lambert, Helen McDonald, Alfred Bishop, Helen Coxe, practice was not unknown.

and went home to rally his kinsfolk.

Mary's, the university church.

didn't see eye to eye so they restored to back issues

Chartie Landsborough, John Gibbons, Teddie Clifford, Frank Kelly, Hazel James, Russell Weadge, Howard Statham, Addie Hurst, Ada Mills, Edna Green, Max Starkman, Marjory Mann, Doris Bristow, Lily Tyler, Newton Hurst, Kathleen Kelly, Phyllis Tyler, Margaret McDonald, Meryl Grindell, May Bristow, Allan Marshall, Doris McDonald, Bert Gibbons, Mildred Hollinger, Abbie Price, Edith Mills, Billy Williams in the public school.

Vic Coleman, who was secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in London, will join the staff of Colorcraft in Toronto, The managing director is another Free Press graduate, Chas. A. G. Matthews. It is a very prosperous business institution. Isn't it time a "tracer" was placed on the transformer for the power house? It's over three months unce the outside street lamps quit blinking

75 years ago

Taken from the issue of the Free Press Thursday, June 6, 1895.

Mr. John Copeland, one of the earliest settlers of Eramosa township, died Thursday aged 74 years. The deceased came out to Esquesing and settled in the Scotch block in 18343 He went out with the volunteers at the time of the rebellion and received a medal for service at that time. He afterward settled in Eramosa where he married Miss Ann Talbot who died in 1843. He has since remained unmarried. He was an earnest member of the Methodist church and in the early days was an exhorter. He leaves hree children. He passed away peacefully at a ripe old age after a well spent life.

In the town hall Monday and Tuesday the Townsend Shakespearean Company produced a number of dramas and historic plays. The first night's performance consisted of The Merchant of Venice, the humorous farce A Dead Shot and the historic drama Delicate Ground, On the second night the beautiful comedy The Honeymoon was followed by the historical tragedy King Richard III. Betsy Baker, a comical farce, completed the entertainment. The plays were moral and had an elevating tone. The troup moved on to the Guelph Opera House.

A Petrolia man has offered a prize of $50 to the first girl who will ride through the main street of the town in bloomers.

Statute Labor has commenced this season. Road working is the order of the