Husband, wife share business quarters

Two businesses will be happily sharing accommodation in one of the new stores in the plaza on Main St. S.

Hairstressing at the front, furniture at the back; and it's all in the family.

Mrs. Rigmar Nielsen is moving Rainbow Beauty salon from their home on Church St. to the new location. Her husband John Nielsen, formerly a butcher, will be operating his furniture business at the back of the new store. He will strip and refinish or antique furniture and will sell refinished, used and antique pieces. Half the basement will be his workshop.

Hobby now business He was a butcher when the Nielsens came to Canada five years ago, and worked at his trade for several years. However he became more and more interested in his hobby, and now it is taking his full time. Mr. Nielsen's father is a retired furniture designer and builder in Denmark.

Mrs. Nielsen has been a hairdresser for 26 years, receiving her training in Denmark. She had no problem qualifying for her certificate in Canada. At first she went from home to home in Acton and area, hairdressing invalids, older people and any others who wished a personal call. Then she set up shop at home a year ago.

The Nielsens have a son Peter, 10, who attends the Robert Little school. The Rainbow Beauty Salon will have an opening draw, with first prize a wig. She has Miss Nancy Faulkner of Osprey, a trained hairdresser, lined up to work with her in the new shop.

ST. JOHN Ambulance brigade, totting up 140 blood donors, recalled with disappointment the record 350 recorded several years ago, and as many as 40 high school students compared to this week's six.
