

Important to retain our perspective in these critical times - minister

There comes a time to stand up and be counted and according to the Hon. Donald Jamieson, Federal Minister of Transport, that time has come for Canadians.

These are critical days he told a rapt audience at the Halton County Liberal dinner-dance at the Galaxy Club in Oakville Friday night. Although he thought all wished we could return to the days of tranquility he hoped the audience felt the government had demonstrated the courage and determination as well as the wisdom to take the responsibility for the preservation of the country.

Canada is a difficult country to govern, he noted, but said mature nationhood does not come easily to any country. Mr. Jamieson said it was important for Canadians to keep matters in their proper perspective and avoid over-reacting to a crisis such as the current one in Quebec.

"We must not be lulled into complacency that it couldn't happen here," he said.

No. P.A. system
A native of Newfoundland, Mr. Jamieson spoke without the aid of a public address system to about 300 Halton Liberals, and guests, in their best bibs and tuckers for the annual fund raising event. The P.A. system broke down early in the introductions.

The minister of transport also told the Liberals that Canadians are still among the world's most fortunate people and have much better control over events than people in other countries. He compared events in Canada favorably with those in France, the United States, South America and Northern Ireland and suggested the government had prevented the erosion of security and took back the initiative from Quebec terrorists with its prompt action.

Better perspective
As a result the matter is a better perspective and there is more awareness now of Confederation and the determination of Canadians to survive as a nation, Mr. Jamieson said.

"The government is not prepared to allow the majority of citizens to be jeopardized by a relative handful of dissenters. "What ever steps are necessary, we are prepared to take," he insisted.

Mr. Jamieson termed "total nonsense" the charge that the prime minister and the cabinet had been transformed into "advocates of repression." He said the government had run counter to the world trend by expanding civil rights in Canada and the social structure and stabilization are better than any other countries.

On the other hand, the government recognized that if it didn't move to protect rights, law and order would soon be a thing of the past, he asserted.

New legislation
The government chose not to introduce permanent legislation to control the situation but the War Measures Act would be replaced by new legislation by next April. It would be wrong for the government to do this now even with the widespread support it is receiving, Mr. Jamieson said.

The belief that members of the F.L.Q. are from the deprived elements of society was pooh-poohed by the speaker, who worked without the advantage of notes. He said F.L.Q. members came from highly intellectual elements and well-to-do homes. They are converts to anarchy. They intend to stir up unrest, destroy, and scare business and at the same time divert government from the affairs of the country.

He noted the difficulty of fighting this type of "insidious" revolution but asserted the Liberal government was not going to be stampeded into changing its philosophy in the face of invasions of liberty.

Root causes
Mr. Jamieson defended the Liberal concern for the underprivileged but advocated going to the roots of the reasons for poverty and unemployment. Welfare is now costing the country two billion, three hundred million dollars per year, the minister claimed, but said it would be a mistake to build up a core of unemployed people dependent on public welfare assistance for generation after generation.

He said Liberals wanted to find the answers for these problems, not superficial solutions.

Praises Whiting
Mr. Jamieson earlier paid tribute to Halton M.P. Rud Whiting for his persistence in finding solutions to county problems, pointing to his determination in obtaining accommodation for three families in the riding in houses owned by the Department of Transport.

Mr. Whiting, with two appearances to make that evening, spoke briefly, noting the prime minister had shot down speculation of a federal election in the near future.

Diners were served with a Polish style dinner prepared and served by the Women's Circle of the Polish Alliance of Oakville. Oakville mayor Mac Anderson introduced Acton mayor Les Duby, Milton mayor Brian Best and former Halton M.P. Dr. Harry Harley.

FEDERAL TRANSPORT MINISTER Don Jamieson was guest speaker at Halton Liberals' second annual dinner-dance in Oakville's Club Galaxy on Friday. He spoke at length to a large audience about the current

Quebec crisis and a number of other topics. The crowd enjoyed a supper of Polish shish-kebab, several speeches and dancing.—(Staff Photo)

Urges Liberals reject Conservative govt.

The present mood of the electorate in turning out established provincial governments was seen as an indication that Ontario voters might reject the present Conservative administration at the upcoming 1971 election.

The speaker was James Breithaupt, Kitchener M.P.P., and he spoke at the Halton Liberal dinner-dance in Oakville Friday night.

Mr. Breithaupt, a member of the Ontario Liberal caucus, told about 300 Liberals from the county that the present Ontario government has more sins to account for than all the rest of the deposed governments put together.

He suggested that the Liberals were the only "viable alternative to the present situation."

Peddling smugness
Mr. Breithaupt, said the Conservatives were peddling smugness with their current advertising campaign extolling the province on the strength of one million of the taxpayers' dollars. He asked how the government could be so smug when O.H.S.I.P. premiums were highest in the country.

There is a great credibility gap between the people and the current administration, the speaker charged, picking the words of George Kerr as an example. "We see the gap between what George Kerr talks about and the communities in which we are obliged to live,"

Criticizes attitude
Mr. Breithaupt also criticized the government's attitude towards school boards, labor and the controversial Bill 197 which would do away with calling tenders on some occasions.

He urged voters who support the Liberals federally to get out and vote in the next provincial election, citing the increased rapport between federal and provincial Liberals. Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon get along well, he asserted and Mr. Nixon would make a great premier.

Plan work 15 sideroad

In spite of opposition by residents of both Esqueving and Nassagaweya Townships, work on 15 Sideroad is still being planned by Halton County.

Afraid of more traffic if the road was improved, a delegation appeared at a meeting of Nassagaweya Council recently asking the work be forgotten.

At a roads committee meeting this week, members felt the road was unsafe as it was and should be repaired and widened. Committee Chairman Reeve Gordon Gallagher suggested it wasn't necessary to destroy the beauty of the area when the road was widened.

Saves lives
"It could save lives to" Warden Allan Day pointed out. "If that road is safe I'll eat my shirt," vowed Esqueving Reeve George Currie. The committee recommended to county council that soil tests be taken and the project started.

We do a busy business business.

We're busy—because businessmen find our insurance programs give them something a businessman can appreciate: All of the things they need for complete protection. And none of the things they don't need. (Eliminating wasteful overlaps can cut your insurance costs considerably.)

Let us bring our broad experience to bear on your insurance problems. No matter what the size of your business, we'll be happy to develop a program. And quite likely, save you money.

A letter from Eden Mills

This is another in a series of letters written by Miss Val Barrow relating her experience during five "delightful" years spent in Eden Mills. Miss Barrow is writing the series to show her appreciation to residents of the village.

Eden Mills, Ont.
1 November, 1965

Dear May:
What a busy time fall is! But now I think things are pretty well set for the winter. I have weeded all the flower beds. There is one at the level under the porch window, and a series of four or five down the hill beside the flagstone steps. I did put petunias in them but they didn't do well which was disappointing because I thought they would grow anywhere. I suppose the soil was too acid from the old mortar.

Now the beds are full of bulbs. So many people have given them to me as housewarming presents and Mother brought about a hundred with her. Mr. Engler, who had a cottage near us up the Gattineau, gave them to her. He is a wonderful gardener and gave me a six-quart basket full when I built my cottage there. So I have a bit of the Gattineau with me.

The tulips I have put in the flower beds but the daffs are around the fruit trees and along the edge of the upper terrace. That's where I like to see them and in a few years they'll be a lovely show.

Use own apples
I've made my fruit chutnae - or whatever you call it. Tomatoes, celery, onions, peaches, pears and apples. And I was able to use my own apples for it. That gave me a thrill, alright. It sure takes ages to prepare the fruit and veg, though. And, of course, I really don't have any pots large enough so there is constant danger of the stuff boiling over and as I like it good and thick it is a long slow process.

In the middle of it all, I thought I heard someone at the back door. When I looked all I could see were two sets of little fingers at the bottom of the screen. There, sure enough were the two little fair-haired girls who are frequent visitors. Next year I suppose the tops of their heads will just show.

We've had Halloween. Here they have what seems to me a very good arrangement. The children go around to the houses for apples and candy for about an hour and then they all gather at the community hall to have their costumes judged. Some of them are really excellent. Geoff Perry was dressed as the Jolly Green Giant from the label on the vegetable tins. Green leotards and top and a most magnificent head-dress made from a real cabbage. It even had dew-drops on it.

No serious vandalism
And then there was the Mitchell boy as a frogman, and the usual collection of witches, fairies and devils. We really didn't have any serious vandalism, thank goodness. Although sometime during the night the sort of arbour gateway at the bottom of my steps was taken down. Betty Marshall said it happened every year. When I went down to look at it I found it was really very rotten so I decided not to put it back up. It was quite easy to pull it to pieces and carry it up behind the house.

Elizabeth Hoye had an art show at their place one weekend in October. Besides her textiles and tiles there were several other artists exhibiting leather jewellery, hand-made silver, pottery, etc. She asked me to help and we were on the run selling from about 10.15 in the morning until after five at night.

Gorgeous day
The men looking after the parking said they must have parked 2,000 cars in the adjoining field. It was a gorgeous day - people came in families and picnicked on the lawn where they had all the wagons and old buggies out for the children to climb in, and a cider press going for them. It was fun to hash it all over at supper.

I'd taken a casserole and till asked if he should just put it straight in the oven - to which I said "Yes". I guess we were all pretty tired because when it was served there were traces of saran wrap on the edge of the dish - so it went in the oven wrapped! We survived.

Bed time, my dear.
Love,
Val
