Want to maintain road in township

Nassagaweya Township will ask the Department of Highways to waive a restriction that currently forbids the township from maintaining a road at the Guelph Junction in the township.

Because the dead end road does not belong to the township, because it is not part of the township road system, and because the road allowance is not 66 feet wide it is illegal for the township to take their equipment on the road for plowing of snow or maintenance of the road.

The township asked the CPR and the landowners on the road to deed enough land to the township to make the road allowance 66 feet and provide a turning circle at the end of the dead end road.

Impossible
 A delegation of residents told council there were portions of the road where it would be impossible to take 66 feet. Roy Woods, speaking for the group, said 57 or 58 feet would be the maximum.

The delegation was anxious to have the road maintained and the council is eager to maintain it. It was agreed that if the 66 foot restriction was lifted and the Department allowed the township to maintain the road, this would be done and the expenses would be calculated and paid for by the landowners.

Nassagaweya Council Briefs

At the regular meeting of Nassagaweya council last week council:

- Discussed the necessary by-law and restrictions concerning overnight camping areas with a representative from the Ontario Department of Tourism.
- Received a letter from Murray Stephen, Halton Region Conservation Authority Manager, objecting to a concession stand being set up by an individual immediately before the entrance to the Kelso Conservation Area.
- Learned Fred Herensberger withdrew his application for rezoning of property.
- Eighty per cent of the people hurt in cars are pulled out by frantic rescuers - and many are made worse, or even killed in the process. The Ontario Safety League says that crash casualties should be left where they are until trained help comes. They should not be twisted, turned or moved.
