

WORKMEN FROM CIVIERO Construction are pouring cement, and building bridge on Mill St. and Park Ave. corner project this week. A new bridge has been built over the creek, right, and a retaining wall constructed along the bank which was cut away perilously close to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Parker. When finished the corner will give an unobstructed view of traffic in both directions, an impossibility under conditions before construction started. The corner has been dangerous for vehicles for many years. A traffic light was installed to warn motorists but there were many near-collisions in spite of all precautions. —(Staff Photos)

Puslinch objects to expansion of Glen Eden area

A hearing to be held in Milton September 16 will hear objections to proposed redevelopment plans for the Glen Eden Ski Area at the Kelso Conservation Area.

The hearing was called by the Ontario Municipal Board after objections were raised by Puslinch Township Council. It will very likely mean the postponement of the development work until 1972.

The Halton Region Conservation Authority, which assumed control of the ski area in 1965, has proposed borrowing the $92,500 required for the development work. The Authority planned to repay the loan within five years with the increased revenue from the ski operation.

Ski area manager Murray Stephen said some municipalities had reservations at first but passed resolutions supporting the development. Milton and Nassagaweya were in this category. He said Puslinch cannot appeal the project but just the assessment they were being asked to pay.

The Authority says that attendance figures have doubled or nearly doubled every year since they took the ski area over. The increased demand has been in the past by extension of operating hours and the clearing of a new trail. Now they feel the entire operation needs improvement and expansion if it is to meet the demand.

Only one protest

When the work was first announced it brought cries of protest from at least three area councils but the only formally to protest the decision was Puslinch.

ACTON COUNCIL BRIEFS

At their regular meeting, Tuesday, August 31, Acton Council:

—Authorized the town staff to attend a fall seminar organized by the Halton County Clerks Association. Theme of the seminar will be "Intermunicipal co-operation within the county."

—Authorized one member of public works committee, the clerk-administrator and the town superintendent, to attend the Ontario Municipal Water Association annual meeting in London, Monday, September 20.

—In reply to a query from Councillor Bill Coats, clerk-administrator Joe Hurst said worker from the Moffat tree removal service will be back in town shortly to do some more cutting.

—Notification was received from R. V. Anderson Associates that an inspection of the sewage disposal plant will be carried out in the very near future and a report will be submitted to the public works committee.

—Included in the minutes of the August 25 meeting of public works and utilities committee was a report that members feel the condition of Churchhill Road North is improving with cuts in the road being impacted by traffic. Resurfacing of the road was recently completed, but Reeve Frank Oakes questioned whether the job had been done properly at a subsequent meeting.

—The committee also learned that in all probability municipalities will be required to spray to keep weeds killed in 1972. This was part of the county weed inspector's report.

4-H program is closing

The 4-H Agricultural program in Halton County is nearing completion for another year. Eight of the nine agricultural clubs presently operating in the County have now completed their year's monthly meetings.

The clubs were organized in March and for the past five months have met regularly to discuss agricultural topics related to their 4-H projects. Many of the clubs hold their meetings at the homes of the members, others organize tours of industries, County Administration Buildings, neighboring farms, and so on, in an attempt to learn more about the community around them.

Achievement days

The final task to be completed by the 4-H'ers is to exhibit their projects at Achievement Days. The Calf Club and Field Crop Club members exhibit their projects at the fall fairs in the county, and are ranked and scored according to their level of achievement, i.e., how well they have completed their project.

County snowmobile ban okay with Acton Council

Following a request for comments from the Halton county engineer, Acton Council raised no objections to a proposed county by-law which will ban the use of snowmobiles on all county roads.

Council passed a resolution saying they have no objection to the content of the county by-law, after a brief discussion at their regular meeting Tuesday, August 31.

Reeve Frank Oakes, who doubles as Halton County Warden, explained county roads pass through municipalities and county council wanted to make sure any by-law they passed would not conflict with by-laws in other municipalities. Acton has no county roads.

Lots of owners

"Acton may not have county roads, but is certainly has lots of snowmobilers. Will there be some time that we can discuss this?" Councillor Norm Elliott asked.

Reeve Oakes felt the matter should go to a committee of council for a recommendation.

"We could be opposed to the extent county council take it, or they might not be taking it far enough," Councillor Peter Marks remarked.

Explaining the by-law in simple terms, Reeve Oakes told council, "It means if you want to take your vehicle from point A to B on any county road, you take it on a trailer."

"Gee it sounds pretty strict," Marks offered. "I think you would have to identify county roads at night properly," he added.

Although he said county council had not asked for comments from snowmobile clubs, the reeve made it clear the proposed by-law had not been drafted because of objections from county council members alone.

Councillor Marks made one final suggestion that there should be exceptions for emergency vehicles.

"They're being used for emergency sometimes," he said. The proposed by-law will not apply to roads under jurisdiction of townships.

Four top contestants at CNE from Halton

By Henry J. Stanley

Halton County won the Governor John Graves Simcoe Award for top four contestants from one county in the Junior Farmer and 4-H competitions at the C.N.E. on Thursday, Sept. 2. John Nurse, Mary Anderson, Ken McNabb and Grace Bird were the high scoring members from Halton. This award, the equivalent of 40 pounds goes to the 4-H Club Leaders Council to provide leadership training opportunities for our club members.

Some 20 boys and girls from Halton out of a total of 280 judged livestock, field crops and answered numerous quizzes on agriculture, machinery and farm safety. In the senior division, John Nurse was third in overall score, placing third in livestock and fifth in field crops. Mary Anderson was eighth in the farm machinery and safety section.

Local winner

The junior division, with close to 200 entries, was won by Ken McNabb, Georgetown. Ken was also second high in livestock, second in farm machinery and safety, and fifth in field crop. Other top scoring juniors were Grace Bird, third in field crops and eighth in championship or total score; Anne McClure sixth in field crops and 11th in championship; Paul Stewart eleventh in livestock and 16th in championship; Margaret Robinson, thirteenth in field crop, 17th in livestock and 21st in championship; Cathy Lasby sixth in livestock and 24th in farm machinery and safety; Lorne Wilson 22nd in field crop; Leah Leslie 25th in field crop; and Carol Somerville 24th in farm machinery and safety.

Following the competition, members visited the fair exhibits, watched the Ontario Dairy Princess finals and attended the grandstand show as guests of the C.N.E.
