

Will not allow any boundary changes

Nassagaweya Reeve Mrs. A. MacArthur told her colleagues at Halton County Council that she and her council would not tolerate any changes in the boundaries of Nassagaweya Township.

The Reeve made her comments during a discussion on a report from the county's TECO committee, Tuesday. The report suggested members of TECO study structure, organization, financing and methods of operation of all municipalities and their local boards in the region composed of the county of Halton.

Reeve boundaries? They would also study the future development of the region which requires revision and improvement over the present system of local government as well as future changes in boundaries and planned extension of services.

The Nassagaweya Reeve asked Warden F. G. Oakes why they would study revision of boundaries, but he said he didn't know.

She said there would be no way she would tolerate a change in boundaries. "I don't want it shored over now, or the first opportunity to voice opposition will have been missed," she said.

Reeve Al Masson of Oakville said the county couldn't overlook revision to boundaries if it was needed in order to provide services.

A motion by Nassagaweya Deputy Reeve Don McMillan to have the reference to boundaries deleted was defeated.

The committee will go on with their study as they recommended.

County Council will meet in committee of the whole Jan. 12 at 4 p.m. with MPP's George Kerr and Jim Snow to discuss what direction the county should be taking in regards to a restructured unit.

Barr sings swan song

Milton Deputy Reeve Percy Barr bid farewell to his colleagues on Halton County Council at the last meeting of the year, Tuesday in Milton.

Barr said he had enjoyed his term on council and expressed sincere appreciation for the co-operation he had received. "I hope to be back here again," he said.

Steps down
Dr. F. G. Oakes of Acton said it was his last meeting as Warden and indicated he had enjoyed the job and looked forward to continuing as a councillor at the county level.

"You've been a great bunch of guys and gals and I wish my successor the same co-operation I have received," he concluded.

Hospitals role study

The roles Guelph General Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital will play in the community have been discussed and a "gentleman's agreement" made.

Basically the view is that both hospitals will continue to function as general hospitals. Guelph General would be medically oriented and St. Joseph's would be surgically oriented.

It is hoped an agreement will be threshed out for a meeting of a regional planning council for hospitals in January.

Ontario Hospital Services Commission has reported that if this council passes on the joint submission from both hospitals it would be prepared to review the starting date for major work at St. Joseph's. It's hoped the building program will start before 1975.

Draw winners

Winners in the firefighters' Christmas draw are Doug Haslam, Milton; Bill Field, Chris Steen and Mrs. K. Turkosz.
