Accepts coffee offer escapee apprehended

Acceptance of an offer to stop for a cup of coffee spelled the end of an extremely brief vacation for an inmate of the Guelph Correctional Centre last week.

Hero of the episode was Acton's Merv Nesset, a custodial officer at the centre.

Driving home from Guelph following the completion of his shift sometime after 12.30 a.m., Thursday, Merv came upon the escapee hitchhiking near Crowson's Corners. Recognizing the man, Merv quickly removed his tie and cap, which carry Correctional Centre insignia, before picking him up.

Officers ride

The man said he was hitchhiking to Toronto and Merv told him he'd be glad to give him a ride to Brampton, where he said he worked.

Unable to spot a police cruiser, while passing through Acton Merv continued on to Georgetown, where again he found no cruiser in the downtown area.

Suspecting he might find police help in the Delrex Plaza on the eastern limits of Georgetown, Merv offered to treat his passenger to a cup of coffee, an offer the escapee made the fatal mistake of accepting.

EBENEZER

Belated best wishes to Bill and Ullilla Varcoe, the golden wedding couple, who have spent nearly half of their married life at "Knatchbull". A party held at the township hall was attended by 11 of their 13 children; 32 of their 45 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, as well as a host of friends and well-wishers.

Birthday greetings to Mrs. Stan Norris, and belatedly, to Dave Munro and John Kitching.

When he encountered a cruiser in the plaza area, Merv flicked the lights on his car to draw the attention of the police officer. The man tensed up at the sight of the cruiser, but Merv was able to hold him until he explained the situation to the police officer.

Georgetown police radioed Guelph and the escapee was picked up and returned to the centre. The man was unarmored and failed to recognize Merv until it was too late.

It was the second inmate Merv has apprehended during his employ in Guelph. Ten years ago he recognized an escapee from his front window, took chase and cornered him in the Thompson's Motors lot.

It is believed the escapee left his job area at the centre at 10.45 p.m. Wednesday.

Anniversary coming up
