McKenzie, is 595, comprised of 57 kindergarten children, 382 in grades one to six, 126 in grades seven and eight and 30 in special education classes. The M. Z. Bennett enrolment was projected at 392 but Principal Elmer Smith said there were 501 children the first day of school and he is expecting more.

A few months ago, an invitation for an August 25th wedding arrived. I accepted, noted it on the calendar, then put it out of mind for while. Then when it came time to make more definite plans, (like the week before), I had to stop and really put some thought into it. After months of running around in blue jeans, sloppy shirt, bare feet and pony tail, my mind was out of gear as far as dressing up was concerned. But I knew that I had the clothes (somewhere) that would be suitable, without getting into the long dress bit.

Our main problem (if you can call it that), is that neither Gord nor I dress up often enough to wear out our good clothes enough to warrant buying anything new. We just sort of shift the same clothes around to suit any occasion,—funerals, weddings, showers, or dances. It DOES cut out trying to decide what to wear.

The one thing I was lacking, was a hat, but nowhere in town could I find a pale yellow hat to match my skirt. Instead, I bought a white one,—a bow, a wisp of net, and a few flowers,—then bought a yellow magic marker and colored the flowers.

It looked ALMOST right, but the yellow was a bit too bright. By the time a layer of white shoe polish was applied over the yellow, it was perfect! (When we arrived at the wedding, I was the only woman, but one, in a hat, so I took it off and shoved it under the front seat.)

Next I made a trip to the hairdressers and got all my hair lopped off. Now that sounds such a simple thing, but it took a month's deliberation and much pushing from the family to get me there and get it done.

It's been almost 20 years since I've had my hair so short, and I've sort of grown attached to it (no pun intended) over the years.

Nuisance
Still, it was time, I guess. To begin with, I have what is usually called "baby-fine" hair, which is great if you've got some-one who likes to run his fingers through it, but a nuisance otherwise. I could spend half an hour arranging it sleekly, then pass through a small draft and have it all fly straight up on end.

Or spend all night in misery from sleeping on rollers, and comb it out carefully, then have each curl slowly unwind from the steamy heat of my morning coffee.

Anyhow, that's all over with. Within half an hour of arriving, most of my hair was on the hairdresser's floor, and the rest was all wound up getting a permanent. I thought maybe THAT would get it in some sort of manageable shape.

Ladies' Aid meeting in hall

Knox Ladies Aid met in the Dr. A.C. Stewart hall Tues., Aug. 29. The president opened the meeting with a poem Darwin's Mistake, which was followed by the hymn There Is No Night in Heaven, and prayer by the president. The roll call was answered by naming a street in Acton. The secretary gave her report and the treasurer reported the financial standing.

At the close of the business period the Scripture was read by Mrs. Mann and Mrs. MacPheerson led in prayer. The offering was received, followed by prayer by the president. Two short contests were won by Mrs. MacPheerson and Mrs. McIntyre. The meeting closed with the hymn Safe In The Arms of Jesus, and The Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Mrs. Mann played an instrumental while lunch was being prepared.

Liquor gone

The theft of 15 bottles of liquor from the community centre, following the Saturday night dance, was reported to police by the committee in charge. The incident is still under investigation.
