

Ice Review 1973 another 'best yet'

Attendance added up to the highest ever, and a backlog of training again showed up in the polished performance that was Ice Review 1973. It's happened before, but again this year many said this was the best show ever.

Pro Sally Leatherland was delighted with the way her 150 skaters performed. Their technical ability was her special concern, and she had particular praise for Carol Campbell and assistant Pat Streets who did a magnificent job on costuming.

The show was staged Saturday afternoon and evening in the arena, with the night performance considered the better one. While there were empty seats in the afternoon, the benches were packed with proud parents, grandparents and partisan friends of the cast at night. Cheers and clapping burst out throughout the show. The applause was triggered by such varied causes as a wailing monkey bawling "Don't help me", a particularly fine spin or even an embarrassing fall.

The delightful costumes, lighting, lively music and well-rehearsed routines were all enhanced by the fact the audience had plenty of affection for the young people on the ice.

Grow in skill

Mrs. Leatherland said the years of lessons certainly show as the older girls (and a few boys) grow in skill with each carnival. "There's more to work with," she said happily.

A brilliant display of speedy and graceful skating was given by Linda Tasker and Allen Carson, who have a list of championships behind them, the latest placing third in Paris at the 1973 Canadian championship.

Win trophies

Trophies are awarded for attitude, co-operation, attendance, hard work and achievement and the winners were juvenile Sharon Turkoz, novice Debbie Turkoz, junior Kathy Toth, senior Cindy McGilloway. As well cups were presented to Jean Elliott and Anne Smith who as junior coaches assisted with the younger members. Merv Barber made the presentations.

Flowers were given to the instructors, and leather skate bags and flowers to the guest skaters.

Assisting Mrs. Leatherland this year for the carnival were Sharon Dwyer and Karen (Townley) Hofstede. Many parents and executive members worked particularly hard to produce the show, including club members young Rick Baginski, Brad and Steve Buchanan.

Past president is Marie Shadbol who was presented with an engraved silver tray.

President is Merv Barber, vice president Garry DeBruyn, treasurer Sheila Buchanan, secretary Andy Hudson, test chairman Barb Jackson, badge chairman Peggy DeBruyn, costume chairman Carol Campbell, carnival chairman Harold Townsley, social chairman June Longstreet, stage director Charlie Perry, musical director Ed Leatherland and directors Ed McGilloway, Mario Baginski, Marilyn Kunz, Shirley Rosenbursky, Pat Streets and Sheila Smith. Ron McKnight was master of ceremonies.

All on deck

Surprisingly, every single cast member expected showed up — no measles this year!

The first part of the show highlighted the youngest skaters — including the one who just held on to the scenery, the one who couldn't bend her knees, the one who made his exit through the sound box where his daddy was.

It was in the solos that training showed. There was special applause for Kevin Parker who twirled nonchalantly through a speedy routine. Other soloists were Cindy McGilloway, Anne Smith, Debbie Drinkwater and Sharon Barber.

YOU CAN'T perform your best without a little nourishment. Sharing their box of popcorn are Greg Leatherland and Stacy Perry, while Lee Ann Butler waits.

SPACE SHIP cruised out onto the ice Saturday guided by astronaut David McGilloway.

ME AND MY Teddy Bear was Cindy McGilloway's solo number in the first half of the show, which was entitled Toyland.

ALPHABET BLOCKS formed part of the Toyland portion of the Ice Review at the arena Saturday. From the right, the nearest blocks to the camera are Heather Michie, Donna Evans, Karen Jackson, Mandy Silcock, Colleen Petty, Brenda Porty. There were 15 delightful young girls in the number.

FOUR CLUB members whose years of training are noticeable are, front, Debbie Drinkwater and Diane Baginski and back, Susan McPhail and Sharon Barber. They appeared Saturday in several numbers.

WELL, you have to do SOMETHING while you're waiting in the wings for your big moment.
