

Dozen models display the latest from Zellers

The third fashion show presented by L'Arche Auxiliary was held Wednesday in the M.Z. Bennett school auditorium; attendance was down somewhat from past years and about 150 watched the constant array of clothing from Zellers in Georgetown. Auxiliary member Mrs. Shirley Skeggs was a knowledgeable commentator and there were 75 stage appearances on her list, some of them youngsters together.

Zellers also provided the co-ordinated accessories—shoes, scarves, hats and purses. The Auxiliary arranged its own models this year—Brian Skeggs, Jo Anne Skeggs, who's just two, Darlene Beerman, Janice Drinkwater, Ada Brown, Anne Krystein, Maj-Lis Thomas, May Allan, Geoff Banks, Jocko Garton, Mandy Silcock, and Theresa Conroy.

Varied clothing
Each of them hurried through about 10 changes to make a full and varied showing. The evening began with bathing suits and proceeded to sportswear, bag pants and tops, then dressy suits and pant dresses. For the finale the charming youngest models displayed sleepwear.

Beryl Bennett was in charge of the smart stage decorations, the artificial trees blooming in paper leaves and tissue flowers borrowed from the Sunshine school. Taped music was played by Harry Arble.

Sarah Coventry Jewellery was also demonstrated, with Mrs. Skeggs again describing the items. Judy Beerman acted a model for the jewellery, and some of the pieces were also worn in the show.

Coffee and fruit bread were served at intermission.

Draw winners

Draw winners were Judy Beerman with a bottle of wine, Mrs. Marion Patterson a floral arrangement and Melodie Hall a crocheted centrepiece.

L'Arche Auxiliary has been holding a fund-raising fashion show every 18 months, and this is the third.

Working backstage to help produce the show smoothly were Kay Banks, Gail Beerman, Jenny Kulken, Pat Garton, Jessie Price, Freda Buckman, Julie Conroy, Pauline Leslie, Judy Beerman, Marguerite Peel, Beryl Bennett and Frank Brown.

THERESA CONROY fell in love with the umbrella she was given to carry at the fashion show, and her brother later bought it for her birthday present.
