An increment borer is a device used to extract small cores from a living tree to determine its age and internal condition.

Fashions made at home Y's Menettes presentation

A good crowd enjoyed the Y's Menettes fashion show in the M. Z. Bennett school Wednesday evening of last week. Of particular interest is the fact the clothes are all made by the women or girls who model them, or by their children. This personal touch makes this fashion show unique in town.

Y's Menette Shirley Broadhead acted as commentator for the show with the stage attractively decorated for the evening. Organizers of the program were Carol Campbell, Carole Bomans, Lynne Robertson, Sally Leatherland, Marylea Ball, Margaret Wallis and Pat Nellis. John Taylor played organ music throughout the program.

Family ties were noticeable as the models came out. Such as Sally and Ed Leatherland and son Gregory, and her mother Margaret Wilson; Carole Bomans and four children John, Matthew, Anne and Cathy; Carol, Sharon, Paul and Steven Campbell; Lynne Robertson and son Steven; Cathy and Sheila Heeneey.

Other models were Carol McKenzie, Kae Lidkea, Anne Perry, Muriel Kingsbury, Donna Bateman, Louise Clarke, Cecilia Ryan, and five school girls who displayed their projects, Sharon Campbell, Colleen McGilloway, Kim McCristall, Susan Pataky and Diane Drysdale.

There were draws for several prizes, and refreshments were served at the end of the pleasant evening.

Collecting

Collecting for the giant Y's Men's auction sale began last night (Tuesday) and continues May 23 and 24. They take articles of all sizes from stoves and furniture to dishes and books.

Clothing took in a wide range including sleepwear, sportswear, dresses, pant suits, jumpers, top and shorts, pajamas and long dresses. The program listed the pattern number for would-be sewers and the commentator added other useful information.
