Regional police spell end Acton O.P.P.

When the regional police take over in Halton on January 1, it could also mean that Acton will be without a detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police for the first time in almost 25 years.

The O.P.P. took over duties in Acton, in 1949, replacing a town force of two policemen who enforced the law without the use of a cruiser. Three constables and a cruiser first came to man the Acton detachment which has since grown to seven, including a corporal, a part-time secretary also assists.

A steering committee has been formed in Halton to guide the transition from local four forces to regional force but since this is the first time the O.P.P. have no secret about their satisfaction been involved in a regional shuffle there are other wrinkles to iron out.

Could renew

The O.P.P. could be moving out of town at the end of the year and then again they could stay still another year under contract to the new region. These problems the steering committee is looking into before a regional police commission is named sometime in October.

Acton police chairman, Councillor Orv. Chapman, has been named to the steering committee which includes Halton worden, Mrs. MacArthur, Jim Watson of Nassagaweya, Milton mayor Brian Best, Burlington mayor George Harrington and Esquesing reeve Tom Hill as well as three members of existing police commissions, Judge William K. Warrender and Percy Cowan of Oakville and Glenn Magnuson of the Georgetown and Constables Bruce McArthur.

A working committee of nine police officers has been established to come up necessary facts and figues for the steering committee. Included are the four chiefs of existing Halton police forces. There is no representation from Acton.

Nothing definite Councillor Chapman told the Free Press that nothing definite has been decided about the future of the Acton detachment yet. He will be attending a meeting of the committee this Wednesday ((oday) and expects more information will be available then.

Acton councillors have made · with the O.P.P. policing the town. There have been minor disagreements and some dissatisfaction but in the main it has been a harmonious relationship which the town has done its best to preserve. Former Reeve Frank Oakes once told reporters that Acton gets excellent police service at a cost lower than the town could act with its own force. "We'll hang onto the O.P.P. as long as the law allows us," he said. The present detachment is composed of Corporal Bob Arbour

Five new businesses - upward trend

by Dave Pink Five new businesses on Acton's main thoroughfare have left only two Mill St. stores vacant. Buildings formerly housing Mark's Groceteria, Bradley's Meat Market, Watson's Music and the Motor Vehicle Licence Bureau, Dollar Daddy and the Family Store have been renovated and reopened for a different market.

Newest of the new, Gal's Pal, a ladies' wear shop, opened Monday in the former Marks Groceteria. Proprietess Vinette Howell lives in Erindale and operates a similar store in Streetsville.

Miss Howell felt there was a need for a store in Acten and chose her location to allow customers more accessible parking space.

Ballinafad columnist retires

A faithful and talented correspondent for the Free Press, Mrs. Richard Shortill has retired. She has written the Ballinafad news for the past seven or eight years, following Mrs. Robert McEnery who now lives in Acton.

Mrs. Shortill says it's time for someone else to take a turn. She knows the district and its residents well and to her capabable writing talents added humor and wisdom in personal com-

She wrote the Ballinafad news for the Erin Advocate as well, but changed her columns somewhat for each paper.

Her column will be much missed and her district readers as well as the main office staff will join in expressing their regret, and wishes for relaxed retirement.

Teaching career

Mrs. Shortill, the former Rita Oakes, was born in Brighton. She was teaching at Cedarvale public school when she met and married Richard Shortill, who died this summer. She left teaching for 20 years to act as farmer's wife and mother at their bome on the seventh line just north of the village. When her children Richard Jr., the late Harry and Lillian were older she returned to teach-
