

Sheridan Summer

Sports Mississauga take one!

Four first year Journalism students from Sheridan College have been working during the summer on a TV series entitled "Sports Mississauga."

The 16-week series started May 28 and will be broadcast over Channel 10 Cable TV Monday to Friday until mid-September. Each 30-minute program consists of six five-minute "sports shorts", featuring a number of summer activities such as squash, lacrosse, canoeing and tennis.

The main objective of the program is to inform the community of the organized recreational activities and facilities available and to make the public aware of the sports programs being offered to handicapped children.

Students Brian Durrant of Islington, Michael Proudlock of Caledon East, Frank Baliva and Dave O'Brien both of Mississauga were awarded a Youth in Action grant by the Ontario government to co-ordinate the series. Contributing agencies for the student project are the Town of Mississauga (Parks and Recreation Department) and Terracom Cable TV.

Lillian Jackson of Trinidad, combined her summer vacation with her summer education.

She was one of 19 primary and nursery school teachers who took the Sheridan College summer Early Childhood Education program in conjunction with the Chinguacousy Day Care Centre.

Lillian hopes to get involved with the setting up of nursery schools in Trinidad now that the government has recognized the need.

She was referred to Sheridan by the provincial government after exploring all possibilities for such a program.

The course drew students from such areas as Owen Sound and Parry Sound. The two Indian women from Parry Sound who signed up for the course, would like to set up a day care centre on their reservation.

Some of the teachers took the courses for credit while others are using the training for upgrading purposes.

During the five weeks, students studied child development, music, art and early childhood education. Upon successful completion, eight credits were awarded toward the college's two-year day-time diploma program which carries 56 credits.

As part of the summer course requirement, students observed and recorded children's play and work habits at the day care centre near the Civic Centre. Evaluation was based on observational assignments and written reports in class.

"For anyone who wasn't used to studying, this course proved to be a heavy workload," said Sheila Meers, supervisor of the centre.

Mrs. Meers of Bramalea was one of the first to receive an ECE diploma through the Sheridan College Continuing Education Division. She has been with the centre since it opened last September. The centre is run by a full-time housekeeper, six teachers and one supplementary teacher, along with Mrs. Meers who also taught the early childhood education portion of the course on an alternate basis.

Many students have expressed an interest in completing the program and obtaining the ECE diploma on a part-time basis. According to Don Hamilton, Dean of Community Services at Sheridan, a recommendation has been made to continue the program next summer.

Scrubaloe Caine kicks off fall frolics

As part of Sheridan's first Homecoming and Orientation Week, the students will hold a special pub-night Sept. 6 for anyone who is or was a Sheridan student and 'can prove it' (presentation of college I.D. card).

Pub-night will feature Canadian RCA recording artists Scrubaloe Caine, a five-member rock band, currently on tour with the Guess Who.

Entertainment gets underway at 8 p.m. in the Oakville Campus cafeteria. Admission is free to all Sheridan College students; guests will be charged a nominal fee.

Marty Herzog, President of the Visual and Media Arts Student Senate has more information. Call him at 845-9430.

Campus Highlights '73

This year the student senates of Sheridan's Oakville Campus have some interesting campus events planned. 'A' Student Store, located in Room 108, sells student-made goods such as leather bags and belts, fashions and pottery. Also available are records, magazines and paperbacks at discount prices. Students name their own prices and the store takes a 10 percent commission on goods sold.

The store opened last March and is operated by students on a volunteer basis.

'A' Student Magazine has started the presses rolling again with the first edition coming out the week of Sept. 4. The publication is issued to all students of all campuses every two weeks. It carries editorials, cartoons, illustrations, poetry and photographs of student interest.

The student Film Society has an exciting lineup of top-notch feature movies ready for viewing. There will be 52 shown during the academic year—two films every Friday night at the Oakville Campus. Membership cards are available at $7. Others pay extra.

Pub-nights are popular events at both on and off campus locations. Regular scheduled socials featuring well-known Canadian talent, are planned by the student senates.

Conference creates co-operation

More entertainment will be available to more students at a lower price as a result of the Ontario College and University Entertainment Conference held at Sheridan in July.

The one-day event was planned as a trade fair and information-giving day between entertainment companies and colleges and universities in Ontario.

About 250 representatives attended the conference and plans are now underway to set up a co-operative social planning organization within the colleges and universities.

According to conference organizer Marty Herzog, president of the Visual and Media Arts Student Senate at Sheridan, block or circuit bookings with entertainment organizations is an obvious way to save money and at the same time increase the number of company and band bookings.

"Up until now all the senates at the various post-secondary institutions worked independently in organizing entertainment and socials," he said.

At the conference, music agencies, record companies, film distributors, breweries and wine companies provided information through panel discussions, display booths, slides and feature films.

Each company was given an opportunity to promote its product, talk with representatives and come to an arrangement for co-operating on planning social functions.

Herzog hopes to make the conference an annual summer event.
