Amend plan

Halton Regional Planning Committee processed an official plan amendment for the Georgetown area official plan at a meeting Tuesday. The amendment has the effect of designating 12 acres for medium density adjacent to the Credit River. The land was previously designated low density.

Planner Ed Cumming noted location, shape and topography were the reasons the land wasn't suitable for single family development. He noted that once the region has a plan it won't likely dictate policy for the Halton Hills plan in that degree of geographic detail.
