Wedding anniversary celebration for Beattys

Their family — from as far as Australia — and hundreds of friends brought 50th anniversary congratulations Saturday to Wesley and Nellie Beatty, Church Street Their beautiful home, Moorecroft, was extended by a large marquee in the gorden to accommodate the guests. Three children Daughter Eleanor is home from Carnarvon, 600 miles north of Perth, Australia, where husband Joe Sonia is now director of operations at Texada sait mines. Two girls are there with them, Angela and Trudy, with the others, Charlene, Joe and Sue Ellen, still in the States.

Gordon was here from Guelph with wife Jay and Carol Ann with husband of a week John Partridge; John with fiancee Maggie Hoare (they'll be married in August); twins Jeffrey and James, Brian, Joey, Nina and Jimmy. Gord was leaving that night on a business trip to London and Paris.

George was home from Daybreak, the residence where he lives at Richmond Hill. It was started by Jean Vanler, and George was with a group which travelled to Europe at Easter, taking part in a special parade at Canterbury on Easter Sunday with Dr. Vanier. Wed in Toronto

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty met as members of a young people's group in Toronto, and were married May 28, 1924. RETIRED PRESIDENT of Beardmore, Wesley J. Beatty and Mrs. Beatty welcomed guests to their home Saturday on the occasion of their 50th wedmember of the National Club, was a founder and vice-president of Halton and Peel Trust and Savings; a director of Canada Trust; and has served on the United Church board.

Arts, crafts Arts and crafts have meant much to Mrs. Beatty. She was a founder of Acton Arts and Crafts over 20 years ago which developed into night school and she is now with Georgetown Arts and Crafts. She is a former regent of the Duke of Devonshire chapter of the LO.D.E. and has been on the lady curlers' executive. Both of them recall their activities with zest. Their home was always a hospitable one and they welcomed the groups they were associated with there. They have lived at Moorecroft for the past 28 years or so. With gifts and cards and flowers came plaques and letters from Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Davis, Governor-General Leger and Robert Stanfield. M.P. Terry O'Connor, M.P. George Kerr, Mayor Tom Hill, and former mayor Les Duby were among the many guests whose presence reflected the many aspects of the Beattys' busy lives.

By Wendy Thomson One day last week, I was doing the usual spring puttering and thought awhile. The more I thought and the more I looked around, the older felt. It was almost 15 years to the day since we had our first visitors to our newly acquired property. We drove up from Oakville one morning bringing Molly Cummings, school friend, and Sid Savage, friend of the family. sat, ate, planned, and enjoyed the trees, stream, wildflowers, and natural unspoiled land. Over the following years we sort of lost touch with Molly. Once she married she drifted on her own way, but Sid stayed a part of our lives, helping us build. He enjoyed the country visit enough that before long he found his own little parcel of land by Eden Mills and started into building his own house.

Not long after he was settled in, we rolled our Papagoose in a sack and presented him to Sid. Once unwrapped, the gander walked up the back step to where Sid was sitting, eyed him for a minute, then climbed into Sid's lap and settled down. From then on it was man and his gander-Sid was followed everywhere.

One day, when starting off to work, he glanced in his rear-view mirror and saw Papa-goose flying down the road after him, flapping as hard as he could! Since he couldn't rise more than a few feet off the ground, he was giving himself a boost with a foot every few yards, like taking giant steps down the road. After that, leaving the house became a complicated

Whenever Sid came here to dinner, he was full of tales of Papa-goose, one being the day he took a look at the two female geese on their eggs and decided since he hadn't anything better to do, he'd give it a try too.

The gander found himself a duck's nest, gently cleared away the straw and settled down-or tried to. No matter which way be turned, the nest day.
