

"Put fire out"

Pay raises for Manor staffers

Halton Regional Council agreed to pay rates at Manor Centennial Manor, to alleviate what some members of council termed a real problem.

The Council was told by Community Services Committee Chairman David Coons and Personnel Director Dennis Cam that the people working at the Manor were working for considerably less than what similar jobs in other areas were paying.

Coons said some positions at the Manor hadn't been filled for six or eight months. He noted there was considerable discontent there in recent years and referred to a high staff turnover. He said administrator Stan Allen had done a good job in keeping the lid on the situation but he claimed council had to act to "put the fire out."

New courts

Location of the new tennis courts, beside the arena, has been marked out but no construction has begun yet.
