

K. Campbell attacks education director on comments, Bibles

In one of several press releases issued by Renaissance leader Ken Campbell recently, Campbell attacks Halton's education director Jim Singleton. Campbell's most recent attack on the education boss comes as a rebuttal to Singleton's suggestion that Campbell went to the principals before the trustees and by-passed the administration altogether with his complaints about nude portraits in Halton schools. Campbell now claims that Singleton is a trouble maker causing bad relations between the Renaissance Committee and the trustees to maintain his own "military" control. Campbell first became involved with Renaissance during a controversy last spring when two lesbians appeared at a health class in M. M. Robinson High School. Charges At that time Campbell made numerous charges against Singleton. Eventually Renaissance drafted a lengthy brief and met with the Board. The meeting was a calm one and discussion centred on suggested improvements to the education system. Since that meeting Renaissance has kept the campaign low key. Singleton's comment during a board meeting concerning the fact the administration was by-passed and trustees contacted only after principals appear to have kindled the Campbell fire once again. The most recent release deals with a review of the events that have happened and how poorly Campbell feels the director has handled them. Campbell's press release also deals with what he feels is unfair criticism from Singleton concerning the distribution of Bibles in the schools. Release According to the press, "Mr. Singleton has implied that Renaissance had unilaterally taken it upon itself to promote the distribution of Bibles among elementary schools for classroom study. In view of Mr. Singleton's military attention to detail, his ignorance of the facts of this situation is rather appalling. But his public criticisms of Renaissance in this matter is mischievous and derogatory in its intent. If he were to inquire first before slanderously misrepresenting the work of a voluntary citizens' group, he would find the following to be the facts of the case: 1. That a trustee contacted Renaissance concerning requests received from high school teachers for a modern language version of the Bible; 2. That the trustee asked us for suggestions in this regard; 3. That we recommended "The Greatest is Love", the Living New Testament, published by The World Home Bible League; 4. That the trustee asked us if we might be interested in supplying the same for these teachers with the added suggestion that there might be others in the region who would also be interested in having them in their classrooms; 5. That through the generosity of an anonymous Renaissance member, we were able to supply freely the original request for about 50 copies and to offer to continue to make this publication available freely to their similar requests; 6. That the trustee agreed with the suggestion that a memo be sent to all the principals of the region informing them of this offer, the release points out. These facts hardly substantiate the accusations against Renaissance implied by the Director's comments to the press that we were engaged in a sort of sinister back door bit of religious proselytizing in the schools!

Powys upset

Blasts Region staff

Regional staffers were the subject of a verbal blast from Milton Councillor Marjorie Powys during a Milton Community Service Committee meeting. The councillor was angry because regional staffers were apparently making what she felt were council decisions and suggested staffers were overstepping their authority. Powys became angry after learning the region had refused Milton residents to tap into the 20 inch water transmission line from Kelso for household supplies. Works Superintendent Bruce McKerr told of one man who is building a new home and requested permission to tap into the line. According to McKerr the region's advice is to have the man drill a well instead of hooking into the line which will pass his house. McKerr said, noting the former Milton Council had intended to allow Milton Heights residents to tap into the line once it was built. McKerr and Deputy Clerk Campbell Thompson said it might be necessary to run a smaller water service line parallel to the main line in order to service people in the Heights and Peru area. Miltonians will be "ringing in" 1975 next Tuesday evening at midnight as the community's annual New Year's Eve bell-ringing ceremony takes place at the town hall on Main St.

MMM-GOOD and Guides at the Eden Mills Christmas party enjoyed a scrumptious repast before they prepared for a program of games and fun. The evening was organized by leaders, Captain Ann Chesworth and lieutenants Diana Wallace and Inge Wuebbolt. Many of the girls dressed up for the occasion, others wore casuals. They all enjoyed the evening and said it was one of the best parties they'd ever attended.
