These department heads can all be reached by dialing the operator at 877-5185. At any time a local resident has a problem and fails to receive fair and courteous consideration from the staff I would welcome a call at 853-0614.

29. If you want to ask yourself a good question, ask it here.

Duby: In answering your 27 questions, I feel I have answered any question I might ask myself.

Hurst: Every time I ask myself how I can better serve the residents of Halton Hills, I recall the reassuring words of the Serenity Prayer:

O God
Grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference.

McKenzie: When will the community of Acton recognize the fact that, with the creation of the Town of Halton Hills, the former towns of Acton and Georgetown and the Township of Esquesing become vital parts of a new community.

I fail to see what can be accomplished by "flogging a dead horse" or looking for things that we are losing as we work towards establishing our new community. Some day the majority of people will be proud to be part of our new town of Halton Hills and as council works toward that day I'm encouraged to find men and women in every ward willing to co-operate and work together to make it a reality.

(This concludes the series of questions.)

Hide head if invaded: McCreary

In accidental air raid siren sounding early last week throughout Southern Ontario has left some people with a very important unanswered question.

What do we do in the case of an actual invasion by unknown enemies?

Acton fire chief Mlek Holmes, who was one of many who did not hear the siren, said "Go down into the cellar and hide your head." According to the Emergency Measures Organization book Eleven Steps to Survival, Mr. Holmes was not that far out.

Survival steps
The book says to take protection in the strongest part of your house, to protect yourself against the blast, heat, light and any other effects of the explosion. If you are outside, hide in ditches. When you have settled in a safe place, you are to lie down, cover your eyes and listen to a battery radio for any further news.

Bill McCreary is in charge of emergency operations in Halton county. When asked how to tell an accidental sounding from the real thing he explained that if we are faced with an enemy attack, the siren will sound an undulating wail of three to five minutes. It will not be repeated.

However, in case of war, the country will know weeks in advance of any impending danger because of military upset. Therefore a full program will be introduced at that time.

Location
Georgetown has two air raid sirens located at Wrigglesworth public school and George Kennedy public school. Acton has one at Frank Heller & Co. plant. Milton's sounding system is situated at East Mary St.

When these sirens do happen to go off, whether accidental or otherwise, it will depend where you are living as to the volume you hear. The sirens are turned in one particular direction, and if the wind is blowing a certain way, and you live behind it, more than likely you would only hear it faintly, if at all, according to Mr. McCreary. Sound sleepers beware.
