Stanley to help

Henry Stanley, Agricultural Representative for Halton Region, will assist Halton Region's Planning Staff in offering advice concerning the agricultural potential of lands being considered for separations.

Planning Director Ed Cumming noted Stanley had been of assistance in the past on an informal basis and noted he was pleased to have his expert advice made available on a more formal basis.

The committee had earlier requested that some sort of expert opinion of the agricultural potential matters be made available.

War on inflation?

Halton Board of Education will ask the province to life ceilings on education spending. The board supported a notice of motion by past chairman Bill Priestner that would petition the province to life the ceilings.

Priestner noted the 13 per cent ceilings would limit teacher contracts to a maximum of 10 per cent increases.

He pointed to recent 21 per cent salary settlements by the province and noted Premier Davis' all out war on inflation seemed a bit of a joke.

The motion passed 14-6.

Middle school delayed

Halton Board of Education has turned down the expansion of the middle school program, for the time being anyway. Middle schools incorporate youngsters in grades six, seven and eight. There are a number of schools working on a pilot project basis in the system now.

Trustees felt more time was necessary in order to communicate with parents, explain programs and implement the programs. The expansion was set up to go into effect in September.

Garbage meeting

Garbage dump opponents from across Halton will be meeting in Burlington next Monday evening to form a Halton coalition, according to W. A. Johnson of R.R. 2, Rockwood, a well known critic of "sanitary landfill" methods.

Anyone interested in the meeting can obtain further information from Mr. Johnson at 854-2366.

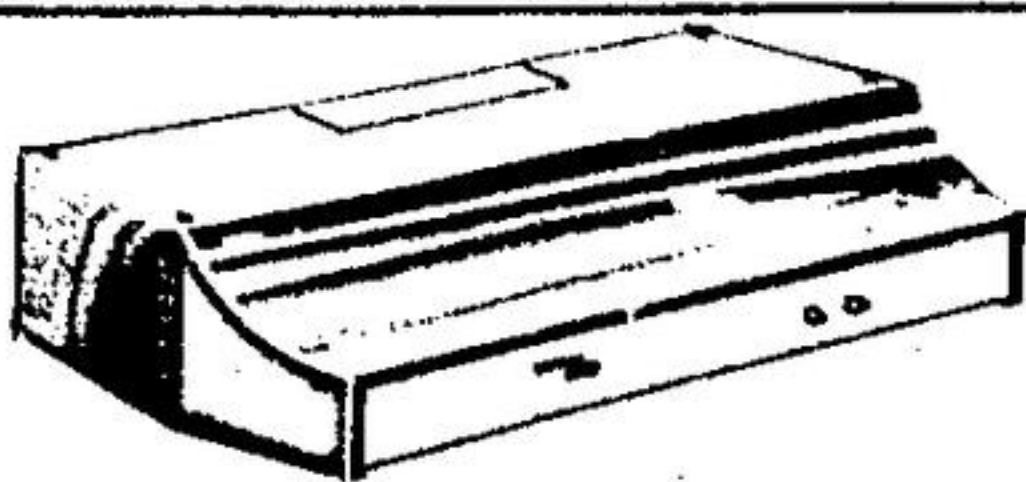

Crafts

Crafts with a Valentine day theme will be fashioned by children at Georgetown and Limehouse libraries Saturday February 8.

At Georgetown, children 8-12 years of age, will be able to make decorative mobiles, and at Limehouse 7-10 years old will be helped to design Valentine gifts by Mrs. Irvine.
