

MORE THAN 600 people packed the auditorium at the Ernest C. Drury school Thursday night for the Progressive Conservative nomination meeting.

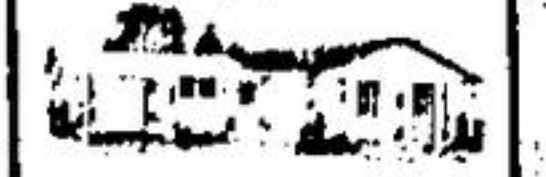

Wrong hour
A wrong guess brought former Actonians back to one of last weekend's special events an hour late. They mentioned they couldn't look up the advertisement in the Free Press, since their paper doesn't arrive till Monday or Tuesday after publication usually. They live all of 40 miles away.

arrow to work in the riding, and said he had arranged for a zenith phone number so anyone in the riding could call free of charge.

With the bell ringing to signify his time was up he said he felt he could bridge the gap between the urban society and the farmer.

Howard McGrath of Burlington, who nominated Gray, said his candidate had demonstrated his ability as a free enterpriser and administrator, by successfully operating two farms and a construction business at the same time.

Surprise runner
The surprise dark horse of the race, Mrs. Bonnie Newton, R.R. 1, Campbellville in a crowd-stirring speech said she was concerned with the way the world is heading, and said she is convinced only the Conservative party can lead the country out of the valley of recession.

She attacked the education system, saying students were leaving high school virtually uneducated. "They have been treated as guinea pigs by every innovator over the past 12 years."

She claimed the system was top heavy with overpaid management. She called for a disciplined system. "I don't mean giving children a thick ear."

She said teaching children in languages other than English is wrong. "They came to Canada for a freer richer life and they owe it to this country to learn the language. They are Canadian first and ethnic minorities second."

She called on Ottawa to listen to Ontario, and claimed the less they allow the Liberals to do now, the less the Conservatives will have to clean up when they get there.

She urged the return of capital punishment for murder, and the closing of the doors to all immigrants until the employment market is better.

Continuing to hit out in all directions, Mrs. Newton said no one should be able to refuse work without their welfare or unemployment payments being cut off.

She said sometimes all the farmer has is his land, and counts on it to keep in his old age. "If the government wants to freeze the land let them pay the farmer market value."

She said Conservatives should be alert to creeping socialism and said "We are being slowly smothered in a suffocating blanket of bureaucracy, and being led like sheep to the promised land of socialism, that doesn't exist."

Mrs. Phyllis Ferrier, who nominated Mrs. Newton said Mrs. Newton had her theatrical company during World War II, and came to Canada in 1948 where she has worked in elections ever since. She described her as full of vitality, and an individual dedicated to free enterprise.

Mrs. Doreen Pice, second, simply said "Her views are the ones I would like to see expressed at Queen's Park."

Dr. Leno Braida, chairman of the Halton Separate School Board, has no fears that the teacher shortage in Toronto and southern areas of this county will affect schools in North Halton.
