held their annual mid-season championship races during the weekend at their track just south of Limehouse on the Fifth Line, Halton Hills. The races, run Sunday afternoon, included over 40 entries in seven classifications. Although there was not as many entries as club officials had hoped, action was fast and furious on the 15-year-old quarter mile track. The track which is run and supported by members of the club on a volunteer basis is laid out in a Grand Prix style circuit, including seven turns. Two of the turns are hairpins, one is a monza and another is a dogleg. Classifications include the hobby class which is for learners and uses four cycle engines. These carts are slow, averaging between 40 and 45 miles per hour while the larger carts used by some of the more experienced drivers run at between 65 and 85 miles per hour. The other classes are according to age, weight and engine size.

Bare facts

Polar bear research at the University of Guelph has received a boost in the form of a $150,000 grant from the World Wildlife Fund (Canada) for a three-year ecological and physiological study of the glant white

Canada has a large per-centage of the world's polar bear population and hunting of the animal has been controlled to the point where it is no longer believed to be a serious threat to the species. However, the recent dramatic growth in human activities in arctic areas has imposed new dangers, and the polar bear is still considered a threatened species by many conservationists.

Guard for park washrooms

Halton Hills is going to hire someone to lock up wash-rooms and change rooms at Prospect Park, Acton, the works committee decided Monday.

Mayor Tom Hill suggested the town might hire one of the crossing guards to lock up the recently renovated buildings at night and keep an eye on them in the hope of curtailing

Mayor Hill thought a crossing guard might appreciate the work in the summer but there is only one male crossing guard in Acton and the town realizes he may not be interested

If he isn't then someone else will be offered the job.

these Johnnies

Two bright blue portable tollets are the centre of attraction in the park this week. In use during the repairs in the changehouse, the Johnnles-on-the-Spot have been moved right out into the centre of the grass recently. You can't miss them.

Plumbing in the changehouse is being repaired and there will be new windows and screens. Painting is also included in the job.

The washrooms had been in very poor condition when council authorized the work

The portable toilets were needed in the meantime by the ball clubs and picnickers.

Attendant for Prospect Park

Vandals at Prospect Park, Acton, may be discouraged by a part-time attendant hired by the town to keep an eye on the changerooms and park in general, if an administration committee recommendation is approved by council.

The administration committee authorized the recreation department to advertise for such an attendant, Monday night.

Facility Superintendent Pat Sheehan said the town looking for a mature university student who would command respect.
