

Walls keep Dr. Young young

Dr. Benjamin Young of Campbellville looks forward to his summer at his cottage in Dorset, Ontario, especially now he's semi-retired. After practicing in Campbellville for 30 odd years, Dr. Young is glad to have some time gardening and building stone walls. A coronary a few years ago makes fishing unadvisable "too tiresome" — but he just loves to build those stone walls.

Predominantly a cattle vet, Dr. Young still has a bovine practice. "I just do the calls I want to," he comments.

Crown Land
Dr. and Mrs. Young bought their property in Dorset when land was 50 cents a front foot. "It was crown land," he says. They have to boat in to the cottage.

When the lake became more populated, water skiers created back wash that almost ruined the Youngs' point and threatened their prized pine trees. So Dr. Young started creating his walls.

The doctor is an early riser, dating back to army days, and likes to work his vegetable gardens. He grows scarlet runners to attract the humming birds. His back-ground on a Quebec farm fostered his love of the land.

Now that the snow is deep Dr. Young has to spend his spare time shovelling snow and Mrs. Young heading for but summertime will find him Dorset again.

BEN YOUNG answers the phone in his home office at Brooksville. Although semi-retired and spending much of the year at his cottage in Dorset, he still looks after his bovine patients.

Research hobby of horse doctor

What does young Dr. Peter Physick-Sheard, initiator of the Equine Veterinary Services situated on Highway 25 north of Acton, do in his spare time? Why, he does research on equine veterinary medicine and is building a detailed reference system.

He's only been in practice 18 months so hasn't really had time to worry about hobbies, he says; he's too busy establishing a practice. However, he describes himself as an academic and spends what spare time he has reading equine veterinary journals.

Catalogues
"There must be 900 different journals a year to sift through," he comments. Dr. Physick-Sheard catalogues two to three thousand references in a year and displays a concise and impressive filing cabinet.

"Equine research is small compared to small animal or cattle research," he explains.

The young vet enjoys horses and is very serious about his career and vocation. He and his wife, the former Jill McCutcheon, a well-known horsewoman from Guelph, have two Thoroughbreds and are showing one of them.

When he's not practicing, reading his journals or cheering his wife over the fences, Dr. Physick-Sheard "just messes around the house".

CHECKING THE PULSE of his wife's mare is Peter Physick-Sheard, who enjoys working on his equine reference system in his spare time.

Obituary

Dr. A. Bull

Medical Officer of Health for Halton County from 1952 to 1967, Dr. Archie F. Bull, 56, of Toronto died Jan. 17. At the time of his death he was medical consultant in epidemiology with the Ontario Ministry of Health.

During the war he was a member of the radar division of the Royal Canadian Air Force ground crew and worked on the crew of the famed Dambusters Squadron flying from his base in England.

Originally from Toronto, he had obtained his degree in medicine from University of Western Ontario in 1950 and interned at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria B.C. He obtained a certificate in public health in 1952 and came to Halton as MOH, where he helped to pioneer many public health programs.

Obituaries

Former resident dies in Toronto

A resident of Acton many years ago, Mrs. Ada McBride died at Queensway hospital Toronto, on February 3.

Mrs. McBride was born Ada Simpson in London, England in 1896. In 1907 she immigrated to Canada and settled in Huttonville. From there she moved to Brampton and then to Acton. Approximately ten years ago she moved to Toronto to live with her brother Charles. While in the city she worked at a shoe factory.

Mrs. McBride is survived by a sister Annie Brown of Huttonville, George Simpson, Acton, Edith Ryder, Milton, Mary Schacht, Kitchener, and Samuel and Charles Simpson, both of Toronto. She is predeceased by her parents and a sister Ethel.

Nephews Barry Simpson, George Simpson, Lorne Simpson, Ron Ryder, Bob Ryder and William Stock were pallbearers. The funeral was held at the Rumley-Shoemaker Funeral Home on February 5 with the Rev. C. Beaton of the United Church officiating. Interment was at Fairview Cemetery.

Robert Chalmers former resident

A resident of Acton for many years, Robert John Chalmers died suddenly at his home in Blyth, Ontario, on February 3. He was in his 68th year.

The funeral service was at the Tasker funeral home in Blyth Friday, February 6, conducted by the Rev. C. L. Wittich, and interment was in Blyth Cemetery.

Mr. Chalmers was predeceased by his wife, the former Anne Benninger, and is survived by sons and daughter James, Blyth; David, Wallaceburg; Wallace, Kincardine; Richard, Goderich and Mary Louise, Blyth; sisters Katherine Bell, Guelph; Mary, Toronto; Margaret Valby, Winnipeg; Oral Norton, Acton and Audrey Grischow, Acton.

James B. Chalmers. He learned the glove cutting business in Acton at Spilvegel's glove factory and later worked for Storey Glove. He also worked as a glove cutter in Wingham. A former friend here, Frank Jones, acted as pallbearer.

He particularly enjoyed sports and was a pitcher for ball teams in Acton and Wingham. He served with the R.C.A.F. in Canada and overseas during World War II, remaining at Clinton air base until retiring several years later.

He was a member of Blyth Masonic Lodge No. 303 and Blyth Legion.

City teacher for 35 years

The first woman ever to teach manual training in Toronto, Agnes Ann Somerville passed away in Toronto on February 7, 1976. (Rev. Andrew McKenzie, Knox Presbyterian Church, conducted funeral services from the Rumley-Shoemaker Funeral Home on Monday. Interment followed in Fairview Cemetery.)

A teacher for 35 years, the late Mrs. Somerville was employed by the Etobicoke Board of Education and spent a number of years at Queen Alexandra Public School.

She was a past president of the ladies' division of the United Empire Loyalists, a past president of the Rendezvous Club and a member of the Retired Teachers' Association.

Born here
The daughter of John and Agnes Ann Harvey, the late Mrs. Somerville was born in Acton in 1888, and in 1916 was married here to A. Watt Somerville. She was predeceased by her husband and her sisters Janet Banks, Mary Moore, Margaret Hassard, Alva Thompson and Vera Read.

Left to mourn her passing are her sister, Mrs. Dora McNeil, Detroit, Michigan and her nephews, Harvey, Martin, Brian and Murray Hassard.

John Bruce was tanner, guard

John Bruce, who for 12 years was a crossing guard at Acton Blvd. and Queen Street, died in Guelph General Hospital on February 5 after an illness of three months.

A tanner by trade, the late Mr. Bruce came to Canada from Scotland in 1914 and shortly after married Isabella Mochrie. He resided in Acton for the past 56 years, most recently on Bower Avenue.

He is survived by two sons, Jack of Stratford and Bob, Acton; two daughters, Isabel, Ottawa and May, Acton, also a brother Bob Bruce and two sisters, Mary MacFarlane and Agnes Simpson in Scotland. He was predeceased by his wife, a daughter, Margaret, and a brother, Bill.

Funeral
The Rev. Andrew McKenzie officiated at the funeral services which were held in Acton, February 7, 1976. Interment followed in Fairview Cemetery.

Palbearers were grandchildren and nephews of the deceased, Ted Russell, Ottawa; John Bruce, Stratford; Allan Mochrie, Mississauga; Wayne Mochrie, Brampton; John Mochrie and Don Mochrie both of R.R. 2, Guelph.
