Milton hospital

Emergency patient waits two hours

A 53-year-old Georgetown man who fell ill at work in Milton Monday waited two hours in the emergency ward of Milton District Hospital without being seen by a doctor, according to a spokesman for his employer.

Pat Straw, office manager of the Sheridan College Heavy Equipment School on the Sixth Line, charged Tuesday that the emergency patient was told by a nurse that the doctor on call was "busy" at his local office.

"Stroke or seizure" Mr. Straw identified the victim as driver Frank Brown of 97 Sargent St., whom he said suffered a "stroke or seizure" about 2 p.m. Monday.

The manager said an ambulance arrived 20 minutes later, and Mr. Brown was admitted to hospital at 2:45 p.m. and treated by a nurse until 4:30 p.m.

Mr. Straw, who was at the hospital with Mrs. Betty Brown, said the woman finally had her husband released and took him to the family doctor in Georgetown.

High blood pressure He said the doctor diagnosed the problem as high blood pressure and prescribed treatments.

Said the Heavy Equipment School manager: "This is ridiculous—if you're going to wait that long you might as well close it (the hospital)."

"You can drive to Guelph or Hamilton in the time it took not to get treatment."

Brian Brady, administrator of Milton District Hospital, told this newspaper Tuesday the incident was "unfortunate."

"I'm concerned about it of course," he said. "I've talked to the Chief of Staff (Dr. Aikenhead) and we're looking into it thoroughly.

"If it needs to be changed, we certainly will."

Mr. Brady said "the hospital in the past has adapted to changing circumstances and I'm sure we can do so again."

Starts to spin Mr. Straw said the victim was walking down a hall at the school "when he started to spin and fall—another employee caught him."

"Brown was choking and turning blue, and one of the instructors gave him artificial respiration for two or three minutes until the breathing began again."

An ambulance was then called from its base at the hospital.

It had "shocking" Mr. Straw also criticized the Town of Milton for the "shocking state" of the Sixth Line, between Five and 15 Sideroads, which he said was "full of holes again."

Bus turns too tight

A school bus, making a tight turn at Mill and Willow, was in collision with a car driven by Helen Gibson, 40 Kingham, last Wednesday. Driver of the Tyler bus was Randy Mitchell, 138 Elizabeth Dr. The front fender of the car was damaged.

He said the ambulance made it to the school in "pretty good time," but suggested the road might prevent an ambulance reaching a seriously ill or injured person in time.

Sheridan College, in conjunction with Canada Manpower and the Ontario Good Roads Association, trains men and women to operate roadbuilding equipment at the large site.

Although the student population varies, there are now 70 students and employees at the school each day.

Report from Queen's Park

The largest labor demonstration in the history of Queen's Park took place this week in protest against the Government's restraint program. Thousands of workers filled the lawn and pavement from the steps leading into the Legislative Building to the curb at College Street.

The size of the crowd brought to Queen's Park by the Ontario Federation of Labour, and its affiliated unions, was seen by union leaders as vindicating their position that they speak for their members in condemning the Government's spending ceilings as they affect social and community services.

Each year representatives of the Ontario Federation of Labour meet with the Government to present the Federation's views on a wide range of current issues, and this year the meeting reflected labour's opposition to the federal wage control programme and the province's acceptance of it, with the focus on the Government's restraint program and ceilings on grants to municipalities, cutbacks in hospitals, including hospital closings and the impact of the restraint program on social services.

The Minister of Housing announced that Ontario's renege-to-income housing units will no longer come under the provincial rent review program, an amendment which the Liberal Party will support. The Opposition voted originally to include public housing under the rent review legislation because it was concerned that the renege-to-income scale was not working fairly. Now that a review of this scale is underway, it is unnecessary to maintain another level of costly bureaucracy.

In connection with housing in the Province, Liberal Leader Dr. Smith challenged the Minister of Housing about his plans, if any, to encourage building of more rental units to avert "skyrocketing" rents when controls are removed next year. The Minister indicated that he really had no answers to the question of what could be done to encourage the private sector to cope with the situation. Dr. Smith said "there should be more incentives between government and private industry."

Rev. William Milligan of Omagh, the Grand Chaplain of Ontario West L.O.L., is organizing the event with the assistance of Omagh Church minister Rev. W. R. Lewis. Mr. Milligan will open the service at the church. A band will lead the parade and the Orangemen will wear their regalia and carry their banners for the parade, a spokesman said.

Two incidents of malicious damage were reported to police the past week. A rock was thrown through the window of a car parked at Beardmore parking lot. The right front tire of a car was slashed when it was parked on Mill near Willow.

Damage to cars

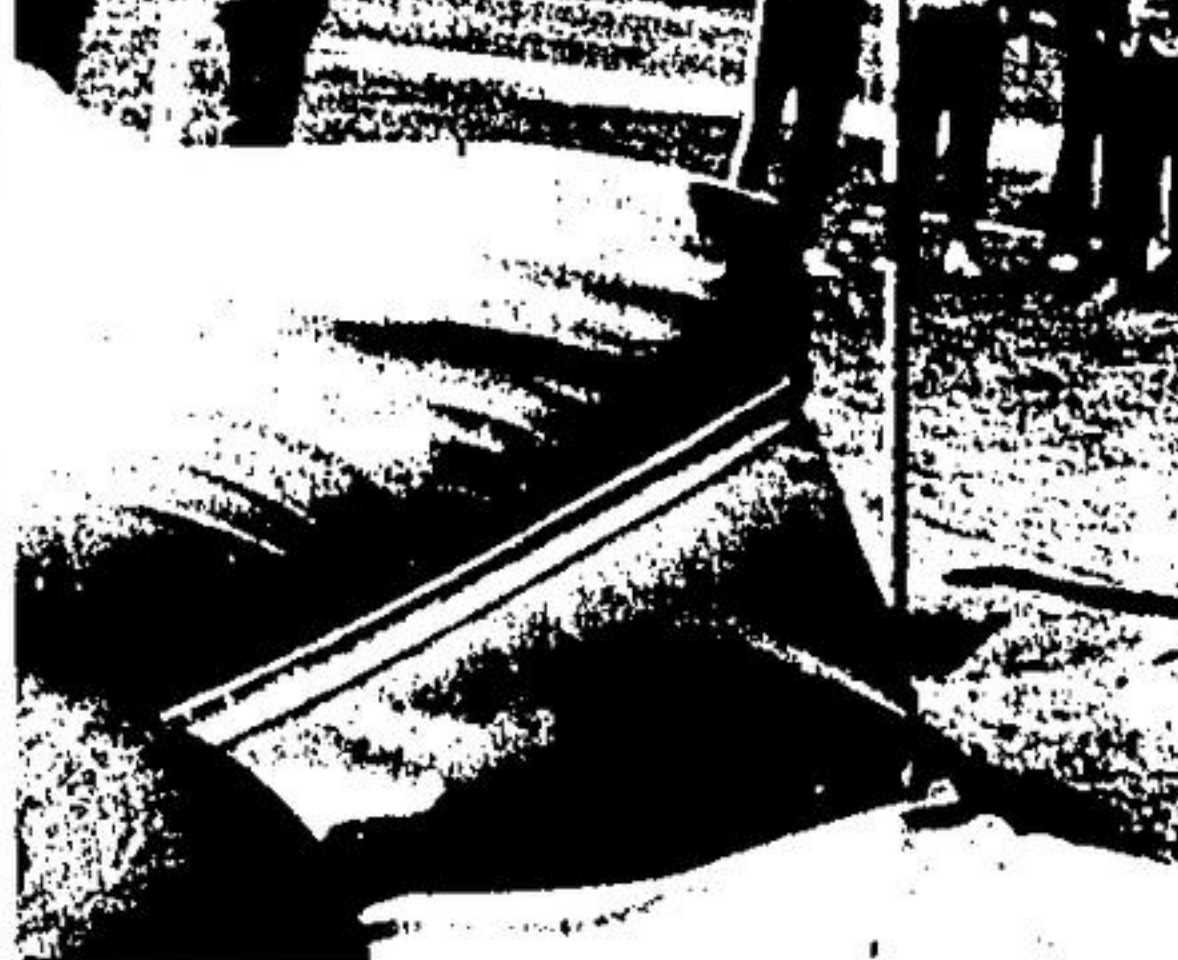

Asbestos to pay employees who suffer financially, in this type of situation. The Minister of Natural Resources said there is nothing the Government can do to force the firm to pay employees laid off because of the clean-up. However, Mr. Bullbrook said "We are a legislative body. Let's pass a statute forcing them to."

Liberal Leader Stuart Smith has questioned the use of isolation cells in juvenile training schools in Ontario. According to an article in the magazine "Toronto Life" 101 juveniles in the Bowmanville Training School were put into isolation last year. "Why is this brutal and mentally disruptive form of punishment still in effect?" he asked in the Legislature. He said isolation cells exist at each of the 10 Ontario training schools, and the regional diagnostic and assessment centre in Oakville, and expressed the opinion that such treatment hardens juveniles and makes them more determined to continue in crime. The article in "Toronto Life" described the cells as small, with steel bars and either no mattress or a rudimentary one.

Halton's Loyal Orange Lodge will hold its annual church parade to Omagh Presbyterian Church this Sunday, May 16.

About 125 to 150 marchers are expected to form up at Boyne Community Centre and march the half mile to the Britannia Rd. church, for the 11 a.m. service. Several visiting Lodge men will join the Halton group.

Greg Robson made it up and over the bar, even though high winds knock the bar down several times during the annual track and field meet at Acton High School.
