

FISHING . . . GEORGIAN BAY STYLE!

RAINBOW TROUT LURE MAY FISHERMEN to the Beaver River at Thornbury, just west of Collingwood, where the river flows into Georgian Bay after a quarter-mile of turbulence. On the shore of the bay itself, the rods of 'still fisherman' stand tall after heavily-weighted lines are tossed far out into the rolling surf. Salmon eggs proved too tempting for one six-pound rainbow!

Photo featured by Gerry Flaherty